CLOCK PULLS FAST ONE ON SUNDIAL

Clocks and sundials today agreed to disagree until Sept. 29. They will officially come to parting of ways at 2 a.m. Sunday, when clocks move ahead one hour for Daylight Saving Time. Marge Goodwin chose noon to set her clock for last time by sundial. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

ON STANDARD 4 YEARS, MISSED ONLY ONE DATE

WINNIPEG (CP)—Greater Winnipeg goes on Daylight Time this weekend but there's one watch that won't change.

Resources Minister Charles Greenlay will keep his wrist watch on Standard Time as he has done for the last four years.

It's both a matter of principle with Mr. Greenlay, who opposes Daylight Time as "an awful nuisance," and a question of convenience. Much of Mr. Greenlay's ministerial time is taken up with problems in rural areas where time does not change.

Mr. Greenlay says he has missed only one appointment in four years. He got to church once just as the rest of the congregation was getting ready to go home.

Arab Refugees Plan March Into Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—More than 250,000 Arab refugees living in the Gaza strip were reported today preparing a "peaceful" mass march back to their homes in Israel.

United Nations Relief Agency officials disclosed the plan as UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld flew to Cairo to start a second round of conferences to strengthen shaky peace

SNOOPER-DOOPER?

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (Reuters)—A radar set which detects the approach of a teacher at a distance of some 500 feet has been invented by John Fulton, a schoolboy at Christ's College here. He calls it a "snooper-scope."

Rain Due? 'No' Says Forecaster

This area is hanging on in its effort to equal the all-time spring dry-spell record of 29 days in a row without measurable precipitation, set in 1951.

Today will be the 22nd consecutive day of the current dry spell without rain—if the cloud cover behaves as the meteorological office expects it to.

"Cloudy, becoming sunny," is the forecast, both for today and Sunday.

Temperatures are expected to be a little cooler, ranging from 45 to 60 degrees.

SUN GONE?

Although the clouds are unlikely to bring rain, they have ended any possibility of this April matching 1951's record of 303 hours of sunshine during the month.

There were 7.7 hours recorded Friday, to bring the month's total to date to 252.5 hours, compared with 1951's 271.4 hours for the first 27 days.

Clouds here are the result of a mass of moist air from the Pacific, suitable for clouds and the "odd sprinkle," according to the weather office.

But pressures "rising satisfactorily" should nullify threats of serious rain.

Investments by U.S. In Canada to Grow

VANCOUVER (CP)—Washington State Senator William C. Goodloe, 36, here for a radio forum, said Friday night United States investment in British Columbia will "increase tremendously" in the next few years.

The Republican senator said electric power, forestry products and natural gas are some of the fields in which the increased investment will be felt.

"Washington needs your province's resources," he told reporters, "and we consider B.C. a good, sound investment."

Senator Goodloe said: "We Americans are continual-

Yukon Sneers At B.C. Plan

'It Stinks' Rebuff Given Bennett's Annexation Scheme

Northern residents strongly indicated today they want no part of a proposal by Premier Bennett to unite B.C., the Yukon, and part of the Northwest Territories into a single province.

The premier hadn't completed his speech on the subject before a Prince Rupert audience before the first cool wave of reaction swept down from the Yukon.

And in Ottawa federal authorities announced they will oppose any attempt by B.C. to annex the northern territories.

The premier made the first mention of his proposal in an interview at Kitimat, Alcan's smelter city. By the time he reached Prince Rupert, Yukon residents provided their answer.

Even the bait of a 600-mile extension of B.C.'s Pacific Great Eastern Railway into Whitehorse failed to deter John Phelps, territorial council member, native Yukoner, and operator of Whitehorse's electrical system, from remarking: "It stinks!"

90% AGAINST

A poll conducted by the Yukon Star showed 90 per cent opposition to the invitation to unite with B.C.

"B.C. is big enough anyway," said W. D. MacBride, a leader of the Whitehorse Historic Society. "Taxers are all we can stand in this city now. If B.C. took over, they'd go up some more."

Publisher Harry Boyle of The Star said "many of us came up here to get away from too much organization."

"We have our own color and character. And I say let's keep it," said Mr. Boyle.

Premier Bennett told his audience he was so confident his proposal would be accepted that the PGE has already ordered survey parties out in the field, making preliminary studies of the railway extension. "We don't want to gobble up

Langley Man, 51, Charged in Savage Killing of Child

LANGLEY (CP)—Gerald E. Eaton, 51-year-old ferry worker, was charged with murder today a few hours after the broken body of Carolyn Moore, eight, was found about four miles from her home.

Inspector G. A. Gerrie, in charge of the New Westminster, B.C., RCMP subdivision, said the girl was beaten to death. "She was savagely beaten,"

He said he did not believe she was sexually attacked, but "that will have to wait for the medical evidence."

The girl vanished after school Thursday, while on her way to meet her mother at a nearby church. Langley is 30 miles east of Vancouver, a bush-covered district cut by side roads.

Eaton worked aboard the tiny

150 Searched Bush for 40 Hours

The 40-hour hunt for the girl began Thursday when 20 volunteers tramped through the bush between her school and the Anglican church hall where she was to have met her mother.

Mrs. Moore had attended a bazaar of the women's auxiliary of the Langley Hospital Association Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Moore and Carolyn were to have gone to Vancouver to welcome back her father, Lawrence Moore, a veterans' affairs department employee who had been on an extended trip through interior British Columbia.

The search spread and an RCMP dog was brought in. Later a light airplane joined the hunt.

Langley's small RCMP detachment was reinforced by radio cars and officers from Cloverdale, Chilliwack, Burn-

Sheffield U., Bolton Drop From Div. 1

LONDON (Reuters)—Leeds United today earned promotion to English League First Division soccer with a 4-1 victory over Hull.

The win assured Leeds of second place in Division II, Sheffield Wednesday, which previously clinched first place, also will be promoted for next season.

This was the last Saturday on which there will be a full schedule of league games.

Relegated from the First to Second Division were Huddersfield, which today defeated Bolton Wanderers, 3-1, and Sheffield United, which lost 3-1 to Tottenham Hotspur.

Grimby Town, which defeated Bradford City 2-0 today, was previously assured of the Division III Northern championship and promotion to the Second Division.

Volcano Spits Back At Planes

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A sleeping volcano woke up Friday and fired an angry blast of smoke and cinders at a couple of air force pilots.

Capt. Lloyd Kelly and Lieut. Harry Krebs of Elmendorf air force base said they dipped down and buzzed the mountain at 300 miles an hour in their jet trainer plane—just out of curiosity.

Kelly said they noted a peak with a crater at the top and dipped a wing to peek in. The mountain belched an immense cloud of smoke and cinders and the pilots left the area at top speed.

From their description the mountain apparently was Mount Trident in Alaska's famous valley of 10,000 smokes, 300 miles southwest of Anchorage.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O GOD turn our steps to Thy house again tomorrow that we may rid ourselves of fear and fret and open our minds and hearts once again to the call of Thy Son, our Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

LIVE 'TEDDY' FOR PRINCESS

"Oh, isn't he cuddly," Princess Anne cried, when she saw Nikki, the Russian bear cub, who is pictured here with his keeper. The baby bear, gift to Anne from Marshal Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev, was taken from London Zoo, where he is living, to Windsor, and shown to the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and the Royal children.

Riding Clubs Active in May 24 Plans

Horsemen Announce Program of Events

Program of events in senior and junior horse shows planned in connection with Victoria Day celebrations were announced today by Victoria Riding Academy and Victoria Riding Club.

A total of 27 events are planned with the junior horse show taking place May 19 and the senior show May 21. Both will be held on the riding club grounds on Cedar Hill Cross Roads. Starting time is 2 p.m. in each case.

First of the children's events will be equitation for ages seven to ten inclusive, who will walk, trot and canter their mounts.

In the hunter hack event, walk, trot, canter and gallop may culminate in taking of two jumps. The jumping (maiden) event is open to children who have never won a first place ribbon in hunter or jumper class in any show. Performance of the rider only will count.

Seat and hands event, youngsters 14 to 18 inclusive may require individual performance at walk, trot and canter. Children's Hunter, open, shown over a select course will be judged on performance, manners, way of going, conformation, substance and soundness.

Maiden equitation for children who are previous non-winners will include three-foot jumps. In the open jumping event jumps will be up to four feet.

A pony class event will be open to ponies 142 hands and under. Open hack event will be judged for walk, trot, canter, ability to back easily and stand quietly while rider mounts and dismounts. A junior jumping event will be open to children under 14. There will be an equitation event for children 11 to 13 inclusive. Last event is team jumping.

Entries close May 12 with post entries accepted at double fee until noon of show day. Parents' permission must be obtained on club forms.

Prizes range from $5 to $35. Entry and fees should be sent to Miss Patricia Jones, 2946 Westdowne. Committee in charge includes Mrs. J. Dunbar, Mrs. D. B. Carley, Miss Judy Mangin, Miss Pat Jones, Miss Barbara Williams, Miss Bonnie Green and Mrs. Thompson.

The senior events, judges to be announced, will include novice jumping, hack, middle and heavy-weight hunter performance, ladies' saddle class, working western, team jumping, western pleasure, jumping (maiden), stake race, open jumping, sack race, light weight hunter, hack under 15.2, pair jumping and bareback wrestling.

All classes with less than six entries will be cancelled. Entries and fees should be mailed to Miss Marjorie Milligan, 1430 Begbie.

Colwood to Stage Band Parade May 4

COLWOOD—Annual "parade of bands" sponsored by the evening guild of St. John's Church, Colwood, will be held May 4 at Colwood Community Hall, starting at 9 p.m.

Among entries will be the Belmont High School orchestra, Colwoodaires, and the Davis Trio. Prize-fighting will take place during the program, and

Anti-Red Plots Foiled in U.K.

Underground Plans to Kill Khrushchev Nipped by Yard

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A British government source said today that two anti-Communist underground groups had plotted to assassinate Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev during the visit of the Soviet leaders to Britain.

IN CHARACTER

Red Chiefs' Conference Televised

LONDON (CP)—Television yesterday gave international politics a new dimension.

And Russia's Marshal Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev seized the glittering opportunity. In an unprecedented development, millions of Britons had a close-up, through TV cameras, of the remarkable press conference given by the visiting Soviet statesmen.

It was remarkable in its frankness and informality—but the fact it was televised was perhaps even more significant. It was the first time a major power in the cold war had been able to address itself so directly and intimately to the people of one of its major antagonists.

For any student of politics, the 90-minute program was an absorbing performance. Khrushchev and Bulganin might have been hand-picked for their parts by a Hollywood director with a love of distinctive-looking character actors.

Khrushchev, bald, bullet-jomed, alternately grave and gay, was probably the star. His unscripted wisecracks were good—humored. Asked whether he and Bulganin would visit the United States, he smiled broadly and told about the time the U.S. barred some Russian cooks.

"Maybe it was feared they were going to cook up something besides cutlets," he said.

Bulganin, a handsome, elder statesman type with an unassuming dignity, provided a real contrast. He seemed to accept that he was the straight man. Once, when a reporter's question seemed tailored for Khrushchev's free-wheeling kind of answer, Bulganin smilingly passed it to Nikita, and the 500 reporters laughed appreciatively.

QOR's Win Plaudits From Area General

Men of Second Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, are unbeatable if they stay as sharp as they are now, their area commander told them Friday after annual inspection.

It was Brig. George Kitching's fourth inspection of the Gordon Head Unit since its arrival early last summer from duty in Korea.

"I would like to congratulate you all on keeping up such a high standard."

"You have made a great name for yourselves here in Victoria and in B.C.," the officer said.

He advised them: "Get to know the civilian people... stay as smart as you are, and nothing can beat you."

His words were heard also by more than 200 spectators, the largest public turnout for a formal occasion yet seen by the unit in Victoria.

About 400 men paraded in four companies with their band, the Battalion Bugles, and ceremonial ax-bearing Battalion Flowers, all led by Rn. Deuce Horen, the unit's Great Dane mascot trimmed out in his individual dress jacket in regimental colors red and green.

COLORFUL 'NIT

A day's colorful unit, QORs sparkled in bright mid-afternoon sunlight, their distinctive red, green and black fittings and insignia broken by the flash of silver from badges, bugles and drums.

Shouting commands across the wind-swept parade square was CO Lieut.-Col. W. H. V. Matthews.

A repeat performance is scheduled for May 3, next Thursday, when Western Command general officer commanding Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes makes his annual inspection.

He will also see troops at Work Point.

Chest Denies Aid Refusal to Esquimalt Women

Community Chest president R. B. Wilson today denied that the welfare agency refused aid to three Esquimalt aged women last Christmas.

J. E. Carey, Esquimalt Community Club secretary-treasurer, said earlier he knew three persons who applied for Chest help and were refused.

A total of nine names were turned over to the Chest Christmas Bureau, four of whom received hampers from the bureau.

Two others were living in the Salvation Army home and were assured help by that organization.

Of the other three, two lived with children who were in a position to provide proper care, and the last person, not needing a Christmas hamper, was given a small gift of money.

Labor Body Winds Up With Rush

TORONTO (CP)—The executive council of the new Canadian Labor Congress today took over the job of rounding out the shape of the 1,000,000-member organization whose birth was presided over by 1,600 delegates from across Canada.

The five-day founding convention ended Friday in a flurry of business which left almost 100 resolutions to be dealt with by the executive.

More than 100 resolutions covering subjects from human rights, communism, forced arbitration, housing, education and automation were passed before the delegates wound up the session.

Claude Jodoin, newly-elected president of the CLC, told members of Communist-dominated unions they would do well to change allegiance to a CLC-affiliated union.

URGES NEW LEADERS

"Get rid of your Communist leadership and you are welcome in the ranks of labor," the 42-year-old leader said.

Delegates decided Communist delegates may attend future conventions of the CLC but their unions will be denied affiliation.

The congress, a merger of the 600,000-member Trades and Labor Congress and the 400,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, voted authority to its executive to negotiate with other unions to increase its strength.

Delegates worked out a five-point program representing the immediate aims of the CLC:

1. A national health insurance program.

2. A contributory national industrial pension plan.

3. A national labor code to replace existing federal or provincial labor legislation.

4. Implementation of a program of full employment.

5. Assistance for underdeveloped countries.

Delegates adopted a resolution submitted by Donovan Swales of Winnipeg, chairman of the committee on human rights, which pledged active support to the maintenance and expansion of freedom in Canada.

A succession of speakers warned any threat to the right to strike was a threat to the trade union movement in general.

Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg, a CCF member of Parliament and a member of the International Typographical Union, said Prime Minister St. Laurent had threatened rail unions with compulsory arbitration each time there was talk of a strike to back up their demands.

Frank Hall, chairman of the master negotiating committee of rail unions, said under the Labor Act, railway employees have the right to strike. Any special legislation to deny that right must be opposed.

PAPA BUSY TODAY

12 Say 'I Will' At Mass Wedding

BLENHEIM, Ont. (CP)—Dutch immigrant Leo Dorsers waived four times down the aisle with daughters today, then two of his sons met brides at the altar and 12 newlyweds said "I will."

Flashbulbs and floodlights lit up the mass ceremony in the little 75-year-old Roman Catholic church of St. Mary, which stands in the centre of this southwestern Ontario farm town.

There was standing room only—and not much of that—in the 100-seat balcony, only accommodation for unmarried guests.

Six times the bearded rector, Rev. J. Willibrord, asked the Dorsers to take their mates "for better or for worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health."

RINGS LABELLED

He was flanked by two deacons, four servers and a little girl who held a satin cushion with recesses for the six wedding rings, each with a label bearing the groom's name.

Brown-cowled Franciscan friars of Father Willibrord's little monastery, two blocks from the church, stood at either side of the altar.

After the 40-minute vow-taking, there was an hour-long solemn nuptial high mass.

Several hundred of the 2,800 townspeople waited outside the church to watch the couples leave in a convoy of pink-ribboned limousines. Hundreds more lined the main street to cheer them on to a town hall reception in a procession of local military and community organizations led by a brass band.

It's been a hectic week in Blenheim. Merchants, catching the spirit of the gala event, decked their shops with bunting. Dozens of neighbors have aided the amily in preparations.

The mass wedding raises to 10 the number of children in the Dorsers family who have married. There are five other children still unmarried.

Miss Helena De Lazarko, 929 Island road, had perched comfortably on the rock at the foot of Newport to escape a brisk wind and read a book.

Miss De Lazarko said she realized she was trapped on the rock at about 7:30 p.m. when she noticed the rock surrounded by the rising tide.

She stood on top of the rock, waving to attract attention of a passing motorist or someone in a nearby house.

Mrs. W. R. Hobbs, 677 Beach, spotted her as darkness was closing in and quickly notified police.

Police took a rowboat from Oak Bay boathouse and brought the woman ashore shortly after 8 p.m.

A succession of speakers warned any threat to the right to strike was a threat to the trade union movement in general.

Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg, a CCF member of Parliament and a member of the International Typographical Union, said Prime Minister St. Laurent had threatened rail unions with compulsory arbitration each time there was talk of a strike to back up their demands.

U.S. House Delays Atomic Ship Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives appropriations committee Friday disallowed, for the time being at least, an administration request for funds to build an atomic-powered tanker and two other experimental merchant ships. The committee withheld the $37,300,000 requested for the three ships "pending further advice and consultation" with the House merchant marine committee, which has questioned the maritime administration's authority to build the vessels.

IN PARLIAMENT

Recommendation to Close Second Narrows Studied

(From Times News Services)

The federal government is still studying a report made in 1954 on tides in Vancouver's Burrard Inlet, Works Minister Winters said Friday.

He said the most spectacular suggestion in the report, prepared following study of the matter by a committee of representatives from several organizations including the National Research Council and the University of British Columbia, was that the second narrows in the inlet be closed and a lock installed.

Mr. Winters was replying during Commons study of his department's estimates about the report from Howard Green (PC, Vancouver, Quadra). Mr. Green asked whether a proposed scale model of Vancouver harbor has been built to study the effects of dredging, completed last year, on currents in the harbor.

The minister said a committee was set up in April, 1953, to study Burrard Inlet conditions. A report turned in by an NRC representative was still being studied.

Mr. Green asked whether a federal offer of $400,000 is still available for provincial construction of a bridge linking Sea Island and Lulu Island in the Fraser River delta.

Mr. Winters said the money is available if the province builds a toll-free bridge there.

Causeway to P.E.I. Being Studied

The federal government is taking tentative steps towards a long-dreamed-of Maritime project: A nine-mile causeway to join Prince Edward Island to the New Brunswick mainland.

Mr. Winters said he is having a study made of the cost of surveying the proposal to span Northumberland Strait.

His statement, in response to a question by Angus MacLean (PC, Queens), was the first official federal comment on the plan which has been suggested informally in several quarters here.

Mr. Winters surprised the House by asking for withdrawal of a proposed $2,000,000 appropriation towards a high-level Ontario government bridge over the Burlington Canal at the entrance to Hamilton harbor.

He said the amount was being dropped after conversations he has had with Premier Frost and Ontario Highways Minister Allan, and added he believes Ontario is contemplating making the structure a toll bridge.

C. E. Johnston (SC, Bow River) condemned the government for what he said was an admitted engineering mistake in building a bridge across the Kicking Horse River in Yoho National Park, B.C.

Footings for the $200,000 bridge had been built on rock

Parks Act Criticized as 'Unfair'

Mr. Johnston said these provisions of the act are unfair to both park residents and visitors. Many regulations set out by it were petty and should be removed; others were more serious.

Mr. Johnston charged the federal government with responsibility in building a road across private property without the owner's consent and then delaying its settlement with him.

C. E. Johnston, Bow River, told the Commons this had happened in Banff National Park. Livelihood of the property owner—whom he did not identify—had been cut off as a result of the government's action.

Works Minister Winters said the resources department had taken the expropriation action and the property now belonged to the government. He understood that the resources department had since made "some settlement and some payments."

Resources Minister Lesage said he could not accept the principle of Mr. Johnston's bill. The penalties set out in the act were maximums and no minimums were mentioned.

Therefore, judges could use their discretion and he had faith that the judiciary used this discretion wisely.

Mr. Lesage was still talking at the 6 p.m. adjournment hour and no action was taken on the bill.

Mr. Johnston said the "petty" regulations include:

1. No picking of wildflowers or digging up of wild plants or

Changes Urged In Farm Taxes

(From The Canadian Press)

WHALLEY — A special tax rate on agricultural land to encourage farmers to remain on the soil was urged here Friday by T. J. Irwin, Social Credit MLA for Delta.

Mr. Irwin told a public meeting he was concerned for the future of the Fraser Valley if the progress of subdivision was not halted.

"Farmers are carrying too heavy a burden of taxation," he said, "and as a result they are selling their land to real estate promoters. Valuable lowland is being gobbled up by industry and large-scale housing developments."

He said the government should make some effort to evolve a tax rate on farmland which would make it profitable for farmers to keep their land intact.

SUNDAY SPORTS PLAN
VANCOUVER — Vancouver corporation counsel Russell Baker has advanced a new plan that would conceivably permit commercial Sunday sport here with a minimum of delay.

City council will consider the proposal May 8.

Under the plan, the city would draft a special by-law permitting commercialized Sunday sports. It would then ask the provincial government to have the by-law referred to the B.C. Court of Appeal for a decision under the Constitutional Questions Determination Act.

POLICEWOMAN TOPS CLASS
VANCOUVER—Fifteen police recruits graduated Friday and the only woman among them walked off with top honors.

Mrs. Lynne Phyllis Jamieson was presented with a special award by Chief George Archer after graduating with a 91% average.

LIE COSTS $100
VANCOUVER — William R. Bruton, 37, was fined $100 in police court here Friday on a charge of making out a false accident report to divert suspicion from himself.

BRIBER CONVICTED
VERNON — An Assize Court jury has convicted Allan Joel Seppala of a charge of bribery, in offering a police constable $20 to "forget" about his arrest on a charge of supplying liquor to juveniles.

Mr. Justice Norman Whitaker sentenced Seppala, who is in his early 20s, to one year's suspended sentence Thursday and the posting of a $500 bond.

NAMED BY CCF
SALMON ARM — W. J. Thompson, former Salmon Arm reeve, has been nominated CCF candidate for Salmon Arm in the next provincial election. Mr. Thompson was defeated by Social Credit candidate J. A. Reid in the last provincial election.

LAST AMATEUR FIELD
PENTICTON — "Parenthood is the last stand of the amateur," said Dr. Samuel Laycock, former dean of education at the University of Saskatchewan, in an address here Thursday.

"A troublesome child is a troubled child," he said. His talk was a prelude to mental health week, which starts the first of May.

Airplane Murder Confession Held Trial Evidence
DENVER (UP)—John Gilbert Graham's confession that he executed the bomb plot that killed 44 persons, including his mother, in an airliner crash was admitted as evidence at his murder trial today.

It was admitted after the 24-year-old defendant took the witness stand to repudiate it.

It was a major victory for the prosecution in its effort to send Graham to the gas chamber for the murder of his mother, one of those killed in the airliner disaster near Longmont, Colo., last Nov. 1.

Dutch Ship Leads Way Into Chicago's Port
CHICAGO (AP) — The Dutch freighter Prins Willem II docked here Friday, the first foreign vessel of the 1956 Great Lakes navigation season to reach the south end of Lake Michigan. She sailed from Rotterdam March 28.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By AB KENT and IRVING STRICKLAND

What do you think of Victoria's weather?

Harold Gaunt, TV technician, 2805 Cook: "It's wonderful. It can be like this from now to September as far as I'm concerned. But it's not too good for business; nobody's staying home to watch TV."

Gaunt

Mrs. Peggy Bullock, grocery clerk, 3400 Douglas: "I think it is pretty fine—if I could only get out in it more than I do. I come from Winnipeg. When it's warm here, it's more comfortable than when the sun shines in Winnipeg."

Bullock

Mrs. Jean Burke, cashier, 644 Baker: "I'm from Vancouver, and it rains there all the time. Over here the weather is terrific."

Mrs. Ruth Peterson, stenographer, 3909 Douglas: "I think we have very nice weather. In the winter it rains, as it should, and in the summer the sun shines. I hope it's like this all summer."

Peterson

Mrs. Helen Poirier, housewife, Jordan River: "It's great. If you lived out at Jordan River, you'd say that twice."

Larry Oakland, shipper, 1735 Kings: "I'm enjoying it right now. But goodness knows how much longer it will last. The speed business is sure rolling—better than last year."

Chamber Hits 'Injustices' Under 'Union Shop' Rules

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Chamber of Commerce Friday urged legislation for "the quick appeal of apparent injustices to individuals deprived of work" by the closed and union shop.

The proposal asked protection for individuals insuring their right to work at their chosen vocation where collective agreements are in force that prevent or require the discharge of employees unable to "retain or obtain union membership." It was part of a general policy statement of employer-employee relations considered by the convention.

The policy statement was referred back to committee and was scheduled to re-appear for discussion at today's final session of the group's annual meeting.

The delegates also heard Gen.

eral Sir Overy Roberts who in 20 years the industrial centre heads development of the multi-million dollar Annacis Island Vancouver development—will be industrial estate in New Westminster.

Gen. Roberts predicted that

Mother Disowns Killer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Joe Gordon, 34, convicted Friday of killing Constable Gordon Sinclair Dec. 7, has been disowned by his mother.

Mrs. C. A. Gordon told reporters 12 hours after her son was sentenced to hang that "he wouldn't come home when we wanted him."

"Why should we go to him now? Joe isn't part of this family any more."

There were no tears, only bitterness in her voice.

"He has made his own bed. Now let him lie in it. All my boys are good boys, respectable, all except Joe."

She has three other sons. "Joe would go off with his friends... those bandit friends. That was the life Joe wanted."

Meanwhile, Gordon and James Carey, 26, also sentenced to hang for Sinclair's murder, said Friday they will appeal both judgments. They were sentenced to be hanged July 10 after an all-male jury returned its guilty verdict at 12:05 a.m. Friday.

Back to Politics

BY VETOING THE CONGRESSIONAL farm bill President Eisenhower did not merely forestall rigid agricultural support prices. His veto acted like a catalyst to transform the whole chemistry of American politics and his own position as a leader. The results, incalculable as yet, will certainly be felt in the November election.

Until the farm crisis arose in the legislature the President had governed almost as a constitutional monarch, above the heat and dust of politics.

He was so popular that the Democrats hardly dared to attack him personally. All their criticism was directed at his colleagues—in the case of farm problems at his secretary of agriculture, Mr. Benson. For three years the opposition manoeuvred vainly to draw Mr. Eisenhower into partisan debate and put him in an unpopular position, and they always failed. Now they have succeeded.

That is the larger meaning of his veto. He has collided directly with the farm vote in the middle western states that alone defeated Mr. Dewey and elected Mr. Truman in 1948.

It is true that many farmers support the President in his opposition to rigid farm prices but the great majority, as judged by recent primary elections, are in favor of this policy. For this reason the Republican managers who, until now, expected the President to win the election in a walk, have been compelled to revise all their calculations.

The big farm states, as Mr. Dewey found, are the fulcrum of national politics. A candidate can hardly carry the nation without carrying some of these states. Mr. Truman won, by his farm support, even though he lost New York State and faced a party revolt in the Solid South.

It will be impossible, the Washington correspondents predict, for the President to pursue the easy television campaign which he had planned to reduce the strain of the election. Even the Democrats are not ready to claim for themselves more than a fighting chance for the Presidency, but they think Mr. Eisenhower will have to fight for his second term. At any rate, he has joined his lieutenants in the arena of partisan politics and is no longer immune to attack.

His immunity thus far has been unnatural and unprecedented in modern times—the result of his own personality, a national boom and the weakness of his opponents. Like all his predecessors, he has been compelled at last to learn that a President is not only the executive of government but a party leader, as partisanship is an essential feature of the democratic process. American politics from now until November will take on a new acrimony but they are only getting back to normal.

Bury the Hatchet, Use the Axe

MAYOR PERCY SCURRAH AND Mayor Earle Westwood have buried the symbolic hatchet of alleged Victoria-Nanaimo animosity in Mayor Jack Dobson's neutral ground at Duncan.

As Mayor Westwood remarked during the ceremony, "We are burying something that never existed." At the same time this pleasant social occasion is not without its benefits. The different chief magistrates have gathered in amicable congress to pledge themselves to united efforts for Island development. That certainly is worthwhile.

The ceremony does not suggest, however, any inclination on the part of the communities concerned to adopt an Alphonse-Gaston attitude toward business opportunities as they arise. None is going to stand aside specifically to give another first chance at any commercial enterprises that present themselves. A healthy competition will continue—as it should.

Having buried the hatchet, Victoria may profitably take up the axe. This city and its environs should have no use for a tomahawk. But it has every use for the instrument of a pioneering approach. We need an axe to hew our way to new business trails. The alder and willow of apathy have been allowed to make too much headway here, choking the flow of business flooding into the Island through other Island points.

It is high time a few work parties cleared the trails so more goods can pass through Victoria to the regions of the Island which need them, and might well take them through this port.

Small Tax, But a Nuisance

THE CITY COUNCIL HAS DISMISSED Alderman Millard Mooney's proposal to eliminate the annual bicycle tax and has offered for its action a very thin excuse.

The recommendation of the chief of police that annual renewals be retained was based on some argument that if an owner sold or transferred his bicycle without registration, ownership would be difficult to prove if the machine were stolen.

Why would it be difficult? And if a sale or more than one sale were made between licensing periods, would not any difficulties foreseen without registration apply with equal force during the year?

The council, it appears, is permitting the continuation of a nuisance tax. Its financial returns can be of little importance to the municipality which collects it. Parents, who usually pay, are subject to another nagging impost in the process known as being "dined to death."

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

And the Beaches Were Free of People

TO THE 10-year-old boy of 50 years ago nature's attractive signals always seemed to be most persistent during school hours on just such April days as have blessed us this year. Their urgency was terrific and distraught teachers only knew that it was

This time it would be an expedition to Bowker's Beach, taking a lunch which would include potatoes to bake in the ashes of the fire until they were black. We would chuck them into the sea and if they floated like corks, why the insides would be cooked to meaty perfection.

Hitch a Ride

If we were lucky we might hitch a ride on a delivery wagon or even on a big two-horse dray going out Cadboro Bay way. We would jump off where Bowker's lane ran down through open fields to the beach. It was a beautiful lane and the air would be filled with the heady scents of spring—of buds straining to burst into bloom, of tender green brier, of the sharp tang of mock orange—and the hedgerow was alive with twittering birds.

But from Cadboro Bay road to the beaches there were only a few scattered old homesteads and farms.

One was the Paulin farm, a really old one, dating from a direct sale to Mr. Paulin by the Hudson's Bay Company. The house, which still stands like a patriarch among a flock of brash and loud children, was a solid white-washed structure and inside it was floored in solid teakwood planks.

A grandson is George Paulin, president of Black Ball Ferries Ltd. He was one of the lucky boys who had access to the Bowker estate and helped devour the scrumptious things Mrs. Bowker would buy from Clay's Bakery on Fort Street for voracious young appetites.

But members of our little safari from Spring Ridge were not persona grata inside the gates and we kept low when passing the Bowker estate because we had heard the family owned the beach too and didn't much like little boys playing around the rocks below the house.

It was simply one of the countless untrue legends that boys invent.

Curving Stretch

Once on the beach we would find the long curving stretch of shingle empty of any other humans. A few seagulls stalked near the water's edge and at times sea swallows would skim like miniature jet planes a foot above the waves.

The far end—that is, to the north—was terra incognita at that time and we were warned not to go beyond Spoon Bay because obstreperous rams guarded the flocks at the B.C. Lands slaughterhouse. The south end curved sharply into Oak Bay, dominated by John Virtue's wonderful Oak Bay Hotel which had numbered royalty among its guests.

First business, of course, was to roll a couple of logs to the water and construct a sort of Huckleberry Finn raft for further exploration. In this flimsy craft we would paddle to the little rocky islets off Bowker's and scurry around playing pirate in the marvelous little coves in which the sea was never still but washed in and out with a soft gurgling sound.

Once when our raft almost disintegrated because we had forgotten to bring

For the Living

One dozen roses to Kathleen M. Worthington-Lake for her letter in the Times of the 19th inst., re George Gregory.

It's just too bad there are so few members of his calibre occupying seats in the House.

Victoria sure has got a member to be proud of, and he deserves full credit for a good job well done. He also has the courage of his convictions and is not afraid to stand up and be counted even though he's the only one.

How nice it would be if more of us would give credit where and when credit is due instead of waiting till they die before doing so.

Noisy Motorcycles

The letter written "with heat" by R. C. Atkins, 647 Cornwall Street, was the most unbridled response to a reasonable request by one signing "Long Suffering" asking that the motorcycle noise and nuisance created by ten or twelve young "exhibitionists" in Beacon Hill Park be corrected.

"Long Suffering" is quite justified in his complaint regarding this Sunday nuisance as many of us are quite in agreement with his feelings in the matter and we look to our authorities to assist us in keeping our lovely Park free from people of this type who have absolutely no consideration for other people nor for our lovely park.

We have been compelled to tolerate this nuisance for three hours every Sunday morning. Why?

At various times I have been down in the City and motorcyclists are the chief offenders even down there. Even visitors from out of town have noticed this and wondered why it is permitted.

Crime and Comics

I should like to ask you to omit comic strips dealing with crime from your comic page and funny papers.

Please allow me to express my opinion about comics.

I don't want to play a word improver, but it is surprising how adults ever can look at such stuff (they say for fun and relaxation of the mind). But do you think that it indicates any progress on the mental side of so-called civilization.

I know of a man who got up a quarter of an hour sooner in the mornings just to have time to read the funny paper. This seemed to be sufficient to fill his mental vacuum for one day.

Expressing my hope that there will be something done in this matter.

Change and Perfection

Comment on the recent address by Dr. Brock Chisholm is very timely and desirable but that by your correspondent Mr. Frank H. Keveren in your issue of April 24 is not in accord with the main subject of the address, which was thinking.

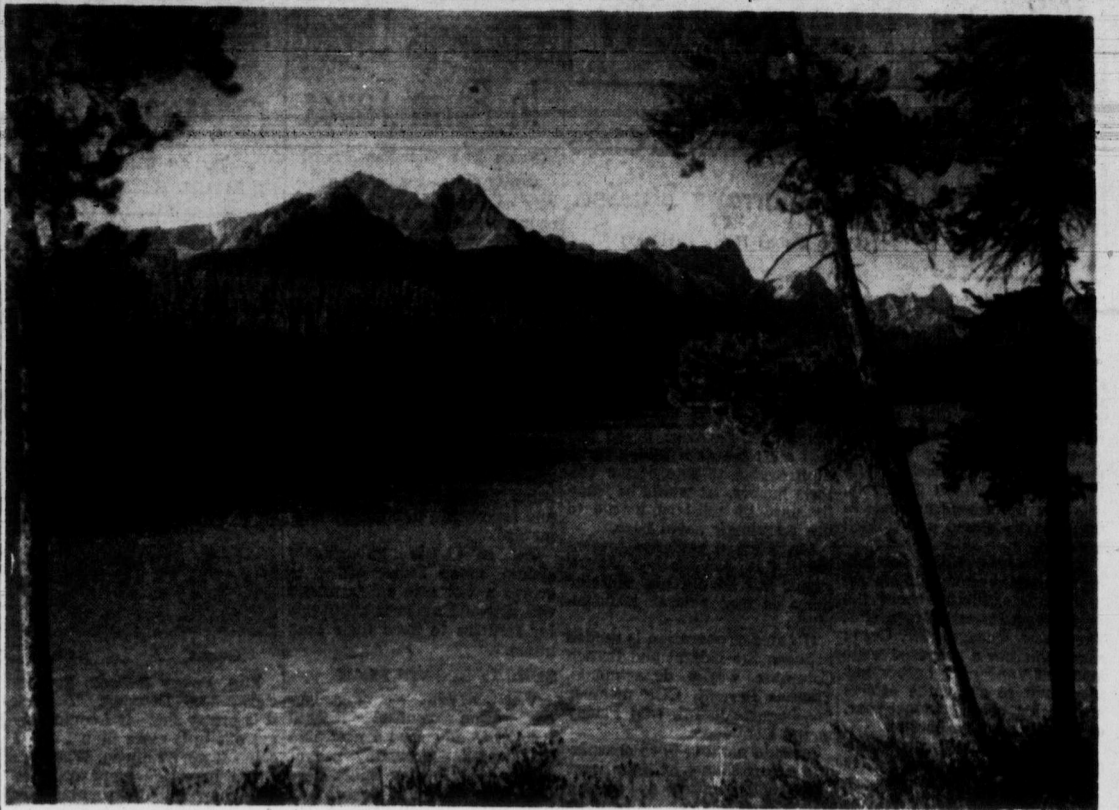

Mr. Keveren says the statement by Dr. Chisholm that "Man is not destined to inhabit the earth for ever"—should be qualified by—"except that that is the creator's purpose." But it is now known that man, that life, had no "creator" and that the law of constant change, continuing evolution, has not only produced all that is known but constant change, that unchangeable law of nature in the universe forbids and forever makes impossible perfection of any form of matter. Constant change forever puts off perfection.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Beside a Row of Onions

THE spring flowers are all very well in their way but they have no practical use. They do nothing but beautify the world, gladden the eye and soften for a moment the natural horror of human life.

In a practical and enlightened age, too wise for such nonsense, the flower must be regarded as uneconomic, unproductive, and wasteful of our resources. Quite rightly it is never included in the Gross National Product, the Government's budgetary calculations or the inspiring debates of politics.

The vegetable is in another category altogether. It is practical. It is, indeed, political, since the methods of its production, transportation and sale are constantly debated by the politicians. Above all, it is edible. It supports the life of man and nothing in the whole cosmos can have a better justification than that.

AFTER the prodigal gush of spring blossom the practical man and sound citizen turns with honorable satisfaction to the vegetable patch. He knows that he has wasted his time and labor in making a flower garden, and if he is a patriot, his conscience is sore.

When he starts to plant vegetables he feels that he is doing something valuable to society and paying his way, at least partially, in the great forward journey of civilization. As a flower grower he is a social parasite. As a grower of vegetables he becomes that highest expression of our species, an economic man. Or so he thinks.

A gardener well versed in economics and filled with a proper sense of civic responsibility may have some inward misgivings when he deliberately adds to the world's food supply at a time of surplus.

He may pause, perhaps, half way down a row of onions, and wonder if he should complete it at the risk of damaging the agricultural industry and the national economy.

BUT most gardeners are innocent of economic knowledge and, in any case, it is a statistical fact that most vegetable gardens will not increase the nation's food supply by a single pound.

Generally they will wither and die before autumn and thus (according to the new economics) will increase the nation's true wealth. Only a few incorrigible gardeners like me will commit the offence of growing actual vegetables and thus impoverishing the nation.

A man steeped in this old vice is not easily cured. He has been incurable since the time of Adam, the first vegetable grower and apparently not a successful one.

At this season you may observe him, crouched and kneeling, worshipping his strange gods and performing rites as old as Eden. Within his hands is clutched the ultimate mystery of the universe, now purchasable for about ten cents a packet and, being cheap, is usually disregarded by the public.

FOR a dime a man may purchase hundreds of separate globules of life—in the case of fine seed like lettuce, many thousands. This is the greatest bargain ever offered by commerce but, oddly enough, most people prefer to put their money into an automobile, a refrigerator or television set which contains no life at all.

I make no complaint on that score, for if the public ever discovered the virtue and the cheapness of vegetable seeds, the sudden demand for them would instantly raise the price by the process of inflation. As it is, the gardener's private process of inflation, the sudden swelling of seeds into radish, carrot and opulent squash, costs practically nothing, except the gardener's labor and health.

THE wise man—the purchaser of automobile, refrigerator or television set—may wonder why fools grow vegetables since obviously it would be much cheaper to buy them in the stores. It is commonly supposed that the gardener is trying to save money but, foolish as he may be, he is not that foolish. The non-gardener who attributes these economic motives to the gardener rates him too low, reduces him, indeed, to the non-gardener's standard. I regard that as insulting.

No, price, profit and economy have nothing to do with vegetable production. It defies all the laws of economics, all the theories of politics and all that progress in human thought which has already perfected society, redeemed the world and ushered in this glorious age.

THE vegetable grower, if the truth must be known, is not quite worthy of these splendid times, is an anarchist at heart, a heretic and a rebel who, in stubborn ignorance, prefers the obsolete laws of nature.

Fortunately he is not numerous enough to be any danger to a well-ordered society. Why, not one in ten of us will produce any real vegetables and damage the nation's commerce.

This state can therefore afford to wink at our un-Canadian activities. It is not necessary for the government to make a census of our crops, compel us to take examinations and secure a license. We do not even ask for parity prices, we have no lobby in Ottawa and, being hardly a political force, can safely be ignored.

That is all we ask—to be ignored and left on our knees beside a row of indifferent onions while the world drives by in a new car with pity or contempt.

AFTER THE BALL IS OVER

By B. A. TOBIN

They Came, They Saw, but Didn't Conquer

IN RETROSPECT the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit to Britain appears as a mixture of pleasantness and threats, of toasts and truculence. Unfortunately for international relations, it is likely that the threats and truculence will outlast, in the minds of the British public, the more attractive qualities of the Moscow pair.

For whatever cordiality in relations may have been achieved in the "little summit" talks with Prime Minister Eden and his ministers—and this, indeed, appears to have been of a most limited nature—it was such remarks as Mr. Khrushchev's "Never shake your fist at a Russian," and his boasts of the Soviet atomic missile that can reach any point on earth, that will remain longest in memory.

Strive as they could, the two Kremlin spokesmen could not match the popularity that in the queer British way was accorded their forerunner, Mr. Malenkov. Continually Khrushchev was made irascible by shaken fists, shouts from a crowd, or urgings by his various hosts to do something about some problem such as imprisoned socialists.

On such occasions he became testy if not downright angry. The smiles faded and the bullet-headed little man's bulldozer manner reasserted itself. Not always were his answers couched in the "when-shrimps-whistle" form of picturesque speech he affects.

On the Stove

Dressed hard in a trade discussion he complained: "I may be a pot but don't put me on the stove." That was the type of response the British could appreciate, but it became more rare as the visit dragged to a close.

It is important to assess this popularity aspect of the Soviet travelers, for greater cordiality in Anglo-Russian relations was purported to be the main reason for the visit. On this basis, the mission must be recorded as a failure. More misgivings than goodwill were generated.

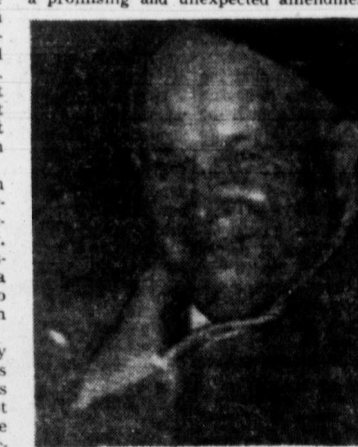

At best, the English crowds treated their guests, as one writer put it, with the "genial derision" accorded the men who scrape the ice between hockey periods. Somehow, the hands across the sea never quite clasped.

On more specific issues the results appear to have been no better. Despite the optimistic tone of the announcement from Downing Street, the major problems of German unification and European security are no nearer solution.

The critical question of the Middle East was answered only with a generalized statement in favor of a ban on further arms shipments to that area if the United Nations would sponsor it.

World disarmament made oblique progress with the Soviet proposal at the current U.N. sub-committee conference in London that nuclear weapons be included in disarmament plans. This was a promising and unexpected amendment to the Soviet's 1956 stand, which has exclusively stressed reduction of conventional armaments. It quite logically might be ascribed to second thoughts by Mr. Khrushchev following talks with the Prime Minister.

One of the most controversial topics was Anglo-Soviet trade. The men from Moscow held out the tempting plum of a promise of trade worth $2.5 billion over the next five years, even including payments in gold. But the catch was in the nature of the goods involved. The Russians seek removal of the Western ban on trade in strategic goods—a ban which Britain doubtless would wish to ease but which the United States adamantly upholds.

In vain did Mr. Khrushchev argue that deprivation of Western techniques and materials had not prevented Russia from making astonishing progress in atomic work, electronics, aeronautics and armaments. How could broadening trade, he argued, harm the West or aid the East at the West's expense? But Sir Anthony, closely in touch with Washington, resisted the temptation and hoped for an eventual compromise on trade in less strategic goods.

The Prime Minister spoke of "encouragement" of "real improvement," and paraphrased a wartime Churchillian comment to describe the meetings as "the beginning of a beginning."

This, at least, the visit could safely be called. Never before had the heads of state of Communist Russia visited Britain. Never before had so determined an effort been made to foster better relations between the two countries. That the attempt had largely been a failure was due to the same basic causes that prevent any general East-West rapport.

Sir Anthony will make a return visit to Moscow at some date not yet set. But President Eisenhower in Washington could see no occasion to invite the Kremlin spokesman to the United States. Nothing would be gained by such a visit, he said this week. The comment might also be his private evaluation of the London festivities.

Personal Repercussions

It is interesting to speculate on the possible personal repercussions. Prime Minister Eden appears to have come out of the encounter unscathed, even though without any marked increase in popularity. He is reported to have been firm and blunt in his dealings with the Russians. He lost nothing in the bargaining and may have gained a little.

For Messrs. Khrushchev and Bulganin the situation is a little different. Admittedly the Communist Party Secretary holds top power in Russia at the moment and it would take a major upheaval to topple him. (Premier Bulganin, who appeared to be a mere shadow of his travelling companion, presumably is more expendable.)

But the fall of Mr. Malenkov is in recent memory. When his agricultural leadership was adjudged inadequate he was ousted without delay. Failure of certain kinds and by certain people in the Soviet Union results in swift retribution.

Now, if Mr. Khrushchev's selling mission to Britain is considered as a failure because of the poor personal impression he made, might he not be in line for criticism at home and a black mark on his record? Only time and the obscure power balance in the Kremlin will reveal that aspect.

The whole episode may be described generally with the baseball summary: no hits, no runs, one error—Mr. Khrushchev sometimes forgot to smile.

The Mortar of Public Life

The ease and insouciance with which public figures vault into the slippery saddle of the law of defamation these days is a rare sight to behold. Like Stephen Leacock's horseman, they gallop off madly in all directions, and no wonder: so obscure and difficult a part of our law is this, so full of traps and pitfalls, that most people will only resort to it in the direst emergency. A libel or slander suit (particularly a "slander suit"), in the hands of skilful counsel, can end up like the famous case decided by Pantagruel: for four hundred years people have been wondering what the point of it was: "their controversy was so involved and jurisprudentially abstruse that the highest Court in the land found it about as clear as Old High German. For more than forty-six weeks they struggled with the problem, but could find no way out of its tortuous obscurities. Brought to a complete standstill, . . . they eventually put the case before Pantagruel to be settled: "they began by giving him all the briefs and records of the suit, which in bulk and weight would have taxed four strong asses. But Pantagruel objected.

"Are the two principals of the case still living?"

"Certainly, my lord!"

"Then what's the use of all this scribble-able foolscap?" he roared. "Wouldn't it be better to hear their variance face to face, from their own lips? Instead of all this flap-doodle monkey-writing? Why, these mountains of documents are a compendium of chicanery, ruses and frauds, based on Copola's handbook on how to evade the law. Pure subversion of equity, that's what this is! No doubt it was once perfectly clear and fit to try. But you have obfuscated it by all manner of nonsensical complications, based upon such inept opinions as you found in the works of a thousand old mastiffs who never grasped the simplest law, of blockheads and tithe calves, of dolts lacking the rudiments that make it possible to begin to understand the law.

PHILOSOPHY NEEDED

"The law grew up out of the field of moral and natural philosophy. How could these idiots construe it when they studied less philosophy than the average mule? The humanities, a knowledge of antiquity, history? In these subjects your old dotards and their precedents were about as well equipped as a toad is with feathers. Yet without these, law is unintelligible.

"If you want me to handle this suit, first burn all this trash; then summon the parties before me. When I have heard them, I shall give you my opinion."

All this is a reasonably accurate picture of the reaction of a layman to a slander suit properly handled. It was ever thus, even in the sixteenth century, as the good doctor Rabelais recounts. Many jurists, he goes on, disapproved of Pantagruel's plan, for in all congregations there are more fools than intelligent men; and, as Livy, speaking of the Carthaginians, points out, the majority prevails. However, in the end the papers were burned. Pantagruel heard the litigants tell their magnificently meaningless tales, and himself delivered a long and splendidly incomprehensible judgment; which concluded "So let them be friends as heretofore without costs." The contending parties withdrew, both satisfied with the judgment. An incredible thing, truly, for since the deluge, no two parties at law have ever been discovered who were content with the final decision.

No doubt about it. It must have been a slander suit. (And if anyone can tell me where a copy of Copola's handbook can be obtained, I would be greatly obliged.)

UN CORRESPONDENT

Forced Labor Issue

UNITED NATIONS—Although forced labor is on the agenda, the present session of the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) promises to be a dull affair, with the main emphasis on such constructive but uninspiring items as "economic development of underdeveloped countries" and "international development with respect to water resources." Canada is a member of this body, having been elected at the last General Assembly.

While the Canadians dutifully attend the meetings here—the permanent representative at the United Nations, Dr. R. A. Mackay, is acting as chief delegate, and, among the alternates is the economic expert of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Dr. O. J. Firestone of Ottawa—their brief cases are not bulging with statements and proposals. Quite frankly, we are not very excited about this session.

It is the next session in which we have more interest—this is the spring session of ECOSOC, and, at the summer session in Geneva, SUNFED, or the Special United Nations Fund for Economic Development, will come up. Ottawa has done an about-face on SUNFED; after being against it, the government now feels that the Western Powers should support this fund which the underdeveloped countries want so badly, especially now that the Russians are making "competitive co-existence" so tough.

EVERYONE SHY

At the present session, the Canadians have evinced the most interest on the "economic development of the underdeveloped countries" and have spoken on this subject. But when they are asked about forced labor, they shake their heads like other Western delegates and say: "Oh no, we don't expect that there'll be any row about that." They say so almost pleadingly as though no one wants to make trouble—at least, not on our side.

Yet, ECOSOC has a new United Nations report on forced labor before it which is really a juicy one as it deals with the vast use of this modern form of slavery in Communist China. In the old days, such a report would have set off a debate which would have shaken the conference halls here. We have not become so polite now as not to use some Cold War punches when they suit our purpose—so what has happened?

First of all, the report is less than impartial; it is based almost entirely on the testimony of the two main enemies of the Peking regime, the Chinese Kai-shek government on Formosa, and the United States administration. The American government estimates that there are at least 2,000 forced labor camps in Communist China, while the Chinese Nationalists go one better and are able to give a figure on the total number of "slave laborers"; they claim there are 25,000,000.

MUCH DISBELIEF

"Of course, nobody believes this report," an official of the International League for the Rights of Man said to me, "and that's why nothing is going to be done." This is a tragic situation as far as the league is concerned as it charges that there is widespread forced labor in Communist China.

It demeans the United Nations to put out a report such as this, but what else can the Secretary-General do? He has to ask the Chinese government on Formosa for information as this is the only Chinese government as far as the United Nations is concerned. That is the really ludicrous situation.

$1,000 FOR EVERY BUG FOUND IN GIRLS' SCHOOL

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's Health Minister Eric Martin is offering $1,000 for every picture of a bug that can be obtained during a press inspection of Vancouver's Girls' Industrial School Monday.

The offer and the arrangements for the press inspection were made following an article in a Vancouver newspaper which claimed the school was "filthy."

TOO MUCH IN COMMON

Canada, U.S. Told To Retain Goodwill

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP)—Citizens of Canada and the United States were told Friday night that the two countries have too much in common to permit any small differences to grow into insurmountable obstacles to continued friendship.

W. J. Sheridan of Montreal, assistant general manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said there exists between Canada and the U.S. the greatest international community of interest in the world today. It provides at the same time the greatest opportunity for the demonstration of international goodwill.

Mr. Sheridan addressed representatives of Kiwanis clubs and chambers of commerce on both sides of the border at a dinner gathering in connection with U.S.-Canada goodwill week.

"For that relationship to remain static would be unfortunate; for it to deteriorate would be fatal to both countries and a blow to other free nations," said Mr. Sheridan.

WORK FOR GOODWILL

"This does mean that we Canadians should not press our side of the case in any dispute which might arise. It does mean, however, that our relationship should be based on the same mutual understanding and respect that we see in people emotionally and intellectually mature. On such a foundation we can work steadily and constructively at the development of international goodwill."

It was well for Canadians to consider the enormous burden of world responsibility which has been thrust upon the United States and the manner in which that burden has been accepted.

"But having established the need for and the value of this partnership I would not like to leave the impression that all the advantage of such a partnership is on one side."

"I believe it desirable to say something of the contribution which Canada can make and is making to this partnership for freedom."

"Blessed with an abundance of water power and an almost inexhaustible wealth of raw materials, Canada now is on a position to satisfy the vast appetite of the tremendous industrial machinery of our southern neighbor . . . More and more it will be necessary for American industry to look north for these essentials."

Woman Teacher Beaten As Prays in Church

CINCINNATI (AP)—A school teacher was beaten and robbed as she knelt praying in a church Friday. Janet Kemme, 30, told police she stopped at the Church of the Assumption on her way from school and was struck from behind as she knelt in a rear pew. She was so alarmed she could not see her assailant.

Radio-TV Probe Starts Monday; City Off List

OTTAWA (CP)—A royal commission Monday will begin listening to what Canadians think about radio and television in general and about public and private broadcasting in particular.

The two biggest problems facing the Fowler commission on broadcasting are the financial requirements of the publicly-owned CBC and the private broadcasters' repeated demands for a separate regulating body.

The three-man commission will hold a two-month series of public hearings that will take it across Canada after an initial week in the capital. It will travel to Winnipeg, Regina, Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Toronto, St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Charlottetown, Fredericton and Quebec City, in that order.

After a recess for private study during July and August it will resume hearings in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa in September and, if necessary, in early October. Then it will write its report for possible presentation to the government early in 1957.

THE SCHEDULE

The schedule for the opening hearings here gives three days for presentation of a voluminous brief by the CBC. This will be followed by one day for a shorter brief by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

The next day, Friday, briefs will be heard from the Northwest Territories Council and the Yukon Territorial Council and the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

An official of the commission said that to date at least 170 briefs have been filed. The total may grow to 250, he said.

Japanese Fishboats Sail for Aleutians

HAKODATE, Japan (AP)—A fleet of more than 300 Japanese fishing boats sailed today for Aleutian waters on the biggest salmon-fishing expedition in Japan's history. The fleet will operate near waters in which Russia has drastically curtailed commercial salmon operations.

WINSTON CHURCHILL... fine historian.

Publishing House Chooses Churchill

By JAMES SCOTT

To celebrate the fiftieth year of its history, the publishing house of McClelland and Stewart have recently sent out a special anniversary volume which, to my mind, represents as graceful a gesture as I have yet encountered in the publishing trade.

This is by no means the first time that I have been the recipient of fancy volumes from publishers who wanted to mark some anniversary or other. Usually, these are well-bound books on paper which is some- what better than average which deal either with the specially-written history of the firm in question or reprint speeches made by the chairman of the board, the president and other such lofty folk.

James Scott

But McClelland and Stewart have broken away from this routine. Instead they have simply taken one book from their spring list, issued a special anniversary edition of same and sent it out with a nice note and John McClelland Senior's autograph.

And what a book they picked! It is the first volume of a four-volume series called "A History of the English-Speaking Peoples," by a writer named Winston S. Churchill. The title of this number one volume is "The Birth of Britain."

As I say, I can think of no better way for a publisher to call attention to the quality of his wares than to send around a special edition of one of his prize exhibits.

And that is exactly what "The Birth of Britain" is. I was one who read and admired and found great interest in the Churchill war memoirs, but I never was able to convince myself that they made truly great reading. I doubt that such memoirs, with the requirement of detailed explanation, ever could become truly fascinating except for a small group of exact scholars, military strategists, politicians and so forth.

LIFETIME ASSIMILATION
But in his great history, Sir Winston has a magnificent broad canvas. In an entire lifetime he has assimilated the story he now wants to tell. He has considered it, estimated its significance, tested some of his ideas in the world of practical politics and as a result he has a well-defined point of view from which to unfold this astounding tale.

And on top of that, Winston Churchill, when freed from the fetters of defending a personal political conviction, is the kind of writer who wields his pen with a grand flourish.

The result here is that "The Birth of Britain" is one of the most readable histories I have ever held in my hand. It swings along at a fine clip, encompassing generations and dynasties in a chapter, ever pushing on toward the goal which is to recreate the dynamic which Sir Winston believes lies behind the democratic ideal of the English-speaking peoples.

This first volume is centered entirely on the island and the Continent. The New World has not yet been discovered. Indeed, at the beginning, Britain itself is just discovered and enters the ken of the great Roman world. These early chapters, particularly, I found to be fresh and appealing.

I have read a good deal of Longfellow got the information for his poem, "The Song of Hiawatha," published in 1855, from an Indian historian who lived at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Education does not mean teaching people to know what they do not know; it means teaching them to behave as they do not behave.—John Ruskin.

Britain's Canadian Investments Key to Financial United Front

(Reviewed By H. Wyndham Thomas)

SEARCHLIGHT ON BRITAIN, by Thorburn Muirhead. Britons Publishing Co., Beamish House, 74 Princedale Road, London, W. 11.

To a very great extent Thorburn Muirhead in his latest book, "Searchlight on Britain," extols the Commonwealth countries, particularly Canada, as Britain's only hope of economic salvation.

Muirhead states that Canada is now moving fast into the lead as the wealthiest country in the world and is one of the most highly industrialized countries.

It is surprising to realize, he says, that 30 per cent of all employed Canadians are engaged in manufacturing as in the United States and that since 1946 British industry has opened over 80 new manufacturing organizations in Canada. British industrialists in recent years have invested £700,000,000 in Canada and are continuing to do so at the rate of about £40,000,000 yearly.

Muirhead's qualifications to operate an economic searchlight are listed as economist, lecturer on commonwealth economic integration, author, journalist, parliamentary candidate, investment broker and companies director.

As a Liberal ex-parliamentary candidate it follows that the author sees salvation for Britain in commonwealth economic integration but only if administered by a Liberal government at Westminster.

The present Conservative government he dismisses with an airy wave of his hand as a bumbling group of incompetents ruining the country by inertia and gradually giving away what remains of the empire a little bit at a time.

Winston Churchill he obviously regards with bewilderment, admiring exasperation as the man who succeeded in mesmerizing Britain's Liberal millions into believing that the Tory party represented Liberalism and that the Liberal party was dead.

Churchill, he said, persuaded Britain's Liberal millions into voting against their own Liberal freedom and beliefs.

Muirhead's most powerful jabs are reserved for Labor and particularly for Labor Government. Britain, he asserts, is ruled by shop stewards.

Men and women are denied the right to work, he says, unless they support one political party although the trade union machine can no longer control its extremist members. It is considered wicked heresy to breathe a word against trade unions.

The author's theme of financial amalgamating the commonwealth and thus presenting a self-supporting combination to the rest of the world is not exactly new, but, as he presents it, it is attractive. He steadfastly maintains that the chief aim of Wall Street is to prevent any such integration.

The book is somewhat repetitive and might have benefited by condensation. However, it is authoritative, informative and interesting in the possibilities it presents.

FIRST NOVEL IS RYERSON PRIZE WINNER

Dr. C. H. Dickinson, general manager of the Ryerson Press, announces that the Ryerson Fiction Award for 1956 has been won by Gladys Taylor of Thetford Mines, Quebec, for her novel, "Pine Roots," a first novel by a new author.

The judges for 1956 were Mrs. E. J. Pratt, Franklin Davey, McDowell and Dr. Lorne Pierce, editor, the Ryerson Press.

This is the fiftieth year in which the Ryerson Fiction Award has been offered and it ranks as Canada's leading literary award. It has grown in importance with the growing interest in Canadian authors and their writing. Its list of winners has included some of the most significant writers of fiction in Canada.

The prize is $1,000 in cash upon the announcement of the award. Of this amount $500 is an advance on royalties.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Ample Preparation Necessary To Achieve Velvety New Lawn

May and September are the two months usually chosen for sowing new lawns.

May is preferred by professional gardeners, and they endeavor to complete the work before mid-month. September is the choice of many home gardeners with steady jobs because the decreasing temperature lessens the amount of attention and watering required before the grass plants become established.

Where ground is already prepared the seed may be sown whenever wind and weather are suitable within the next two weeks.

Rushing seed into an area which has only been roughly dug will never give a good lawn, one which increases in value and beauty with the years. Since a lawn is expected to last for a long time, it warrants a few months waiting and a little extra labor to prepare the site thoroughly.

Weeds in a new lawn are the cause of many a headache. Rather than seed weedy ground give it a dressing of complete fertilizer to hasten the growth of weeds already in the soil.

After these have been destroyed, raking or tilling the surface will put more weed seeds in a position to germinate. When these have been dealt with a second tilling will often produce more, and thus, the weed population can be severely reduced before the grass seed is sown.

The thorough incorporation of peat moss, when used to condition the soil, is quite important. A few samples of the soil taken with a trowel should show the peat moss finely broken and evenly distributed. Lumps here and there are not satisfactory. Using a small rototiller or rotary cultivator will improve conditions.

Time spent raking lengthways and crossways will be well rewarded. Depressions and humps make trouble when mowing starts. The high spots are trimmed close and tend to brown, while the low spots hold moisture and give patches of long, luscious green growth.

As important as a smooth surface is the condition of the soil for 12 inches or so beneath.

Rocks eight to 12 inches below the surface have ruined parts of many a good lawn. Only their removal will make things right, and this is most easily done before seeding.

Old stumps and buried tree limbs carry the fungus which causes fairy rings in lawns. The rings may not appear until the old wood is well decayed, but when they do the mower spreads the spores over the lawn very quickly. Here again, prevention is better, and much cheaper, than the cure.

The kind of lawn we all dream about is one which will show off our home and plantings to perfection, be a pleasure to walk over and the envy of all who pass. Such a lawn is not easy to acquire, but careful and thorough preparation before sowing the seed can bring our dream nearer reality.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Celery Seed Time Past; Some Greenhouse Uses

By JACK BEASTALL
Q.—Is it better to grow celery from seed, or to buy plants?

A.—It is too late to sow seed at this time for celery plants this year, so you should buy the plants you need. You can grow them quite well yourself another year by sowing the seed during February indoors and having the young plants ready to set out in late April.

Q.—I have tried without success to buy seed of the honesty plant. Is there another name for it?

A.—Honesty is one of the "everlasting" flowers; you should be able to find it listed under Lunaria biennis. It is, as its second name denotes, a biennial, flowering the second year from sowing, but if sown in February will flower the same year.

Q.—What use do you suggest for a small greenhouse during the summer? It will of course not be artificially heated.

A.—You might grow and ripen a wonderful crop of tomatoes—Early Chatham, for instance—by planting either in very large pots or in the ground bed, whichever is convenient. If you have benches, you might like to grow a collection of flowering annuals in large pots. With proper feeding, watering and ventilation, your greenhouse could be a show place with little expense beyond your time.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL
Plant outdoors, summer flowering bulbs, corns and tubers, including Anemone coronaria (poppy anemone, single and double), gladiolus, dahlia, Galtonia candicans (summer hyacinth), tigridia (tiger or shell flower) and acanthus (Abyssinian star flower).

Sow indoors, seed of the quick-growing half-hardy annuals, zinnia, African marigold, China aster and dimorphaea.

Harden-off flats of hardy annuals sown and grown indoors; use cold frames or place flats outdoors during the day, gradually leaving out at night.

Sow outdoors or in, seed of winter varieties of cabbage family—savoy, broccoli and kale.

Sow succession crops of peas, beets, carrots, spinach, radish, lettuce.

Hoe and weed rows of early vegetables.

Prepare a trench for celery plants.

Start new beds of perennial herbs if required; chives, mint, sage, thyme and tarragon.

Water thoroughly all newly-planted trees, shrubs, hedge material, and keep seed rows dampened.

Commence planting of summer flowering bulbs, corns and tubers, including Anemone coronaria, gladiolus, dahlia, Galtonia candicans (summer flowering hyacinth), tigridia (tiger flower) and acanthus (Abyssinian star flower).

Sow indoors the half hardy annuals, zinnia, China aster, African marigold, dimorphaea (South African daisy) and cosmos.

Commence hardening-off the hardy annuals sown indoors earlier, using coldframes or placing the flats outdoors during the day. Later, leave out at night, watching for early morning frosts.

Sow seed outdoors or indoors of all the winter varieties of the cabbage family, savoy, broccoli, kale.

Polythene Grocery Bags Aid Rooting

Amateur gardeners can take this tip from horticulturists at the central experimental farm in Ottawa. Polythene grocery bags come in handy when you are starting roots on plant or shrub cuttings.

The method is quite simple. When propagating shrubs, make a long sloping cut in a vigorous stem and hold it open by inserting a small chip. Dust a little root stimulating powder on the wound and pack a handful of slightly moist sphagnum moss around it. Secure with raffia or string.

Now, cut an eight or nine-inch square from a polythene grocery bag. Wrap the square tightly around the moss with the ends tied above and below the wound. The polythene film conserves moisture, at the same time allowing gases to pass through to prevent heating and growth of mold.

The transparent plastic also lets you see what's going on inside. After the cut branch has sent roots into the moss (this takes about six weeks) cut it off below the wound and plant as a new shrub.

Terrace Promenade For Edinburgh's Princess Street?

EDINBURGH (CP)—A terrace promenade has been suggested for Princess Street—Edinburgh's proud, wide avenue that ranks as one of Britain's most distinguished thoroughfares.

Two architects appointed by the town council, J. L. Gleave and W. H. Kinmonth, propose the introduction of one-way traffic and reduction of the road's width to half.

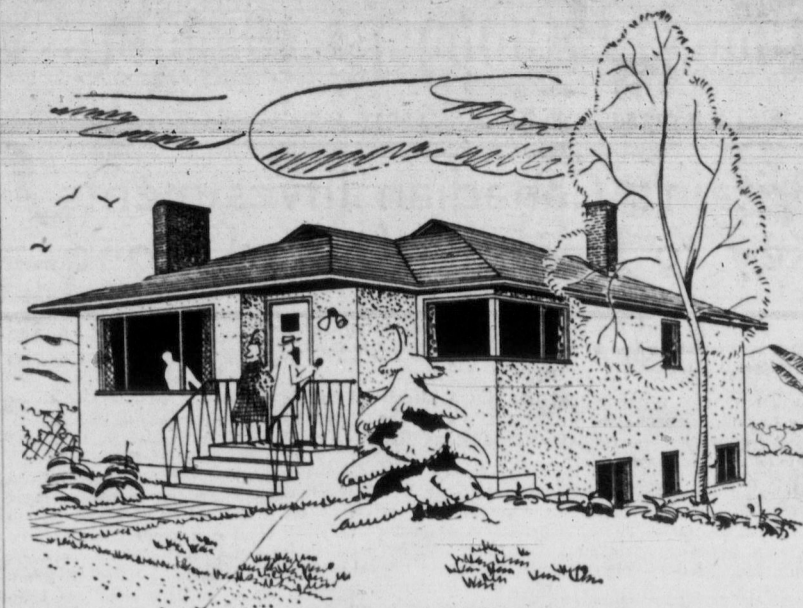

"The character and atmosphere of the street should be that of a busy terrace promenade linked with the gardens," they say. Their aim is to create a street "worthy of its setting and of the prestige of Edinburgh as a capital and festival city." They say Princess Street now is "crowded and overloaded."

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—How should cork tile be protected from getting dirty?—M. G.

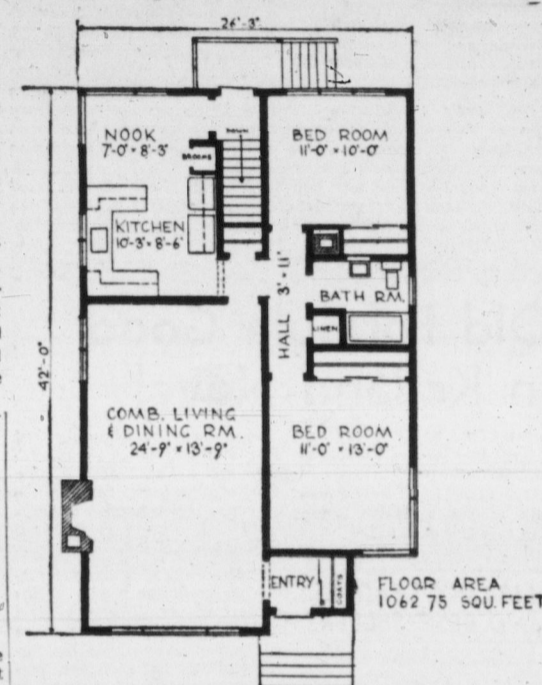

A.—Cork tile floors and walls may be washed four or five days after installation, and then waxed. Apply two or three coats of paste wax or liquid wax (not to be confused with water-emulsion wax). After each coating, buff with a polishing machine. Maintain cork tile with an occasional waxing.

Wood-Eating Termite Will Sabotage Home

By HENRY FREE
Written for NEA Service

While the average homeowner becomes disturbed upon the discovery of moths in woolen clothing or weevils in the cereal, she really gets excited upon observing a few large black ants scurrying along the baseboard or apparently appearing from somewhere in the basement.

While these insects probably are black ants, they could be termites. If termites are in your home they reveal a tragic fact, for somewhere in the timbers or flooring a colony of them is feeding on the cellulose in the wood.

Termites closely resemble ants, but they are not true ants. The best way to tell termites from ants is to look at the "waist." Ants are deeply constricted while termites have a broad joining between thorax and abdomen.

The only known food of termites is cellulose, which they get mostly from dead but sometimes living vegetation. The young termites eat the cellulose in the wood as they grow. They make channels through timbers quite a ways above ground, but they always keep an unbroken connection with the earth.

Nests are always in wood underground. This may be a dirt-covered block of wood left from building construction. It also may be some part of the building timbers which is in contact with the soil.

It is here, in the soil next to the building foundation, that the property owner wages his war against termites.

The weapon is a 45 per cent chlordane spray. This chemical has proved very effective in soil treatments. Literally it is trench warfare.

Mix one to two quarts of the chlordane solution with 25 gallons of water. Apply this mixture at the rate of one gallon per linear square foot in a trench dug next to the building foundation one to two feet deep and 8 to 12 inches wide.

In addition, apply the mixture to wood in which there is evidence of infestation.

Advantages cited for chlordane are: effective, quick initial control; long residual effectiveness in the soil (several years); efficient and economical; causes no injury to plant growth in its water emulsion form; controls many other soil and turf insects and it kills the insects instead of repelling and dispersing them.

BUT THEY'RE FUN!

Designing House Presents Problems

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

It is still less than a year since our long dreamed of house left the drafting board, passed through the secret and mysterious channels of NHA approval and gradually grew up on our Arbutus Road property into a thing of wood, bricks and cement.

Perhaps it is because the whole project is only a few months old or perhaps it is because so many of our own thoughts and preferences have actually become real that I am still experiencing that nine-days-wonder feeling.

My husband and I designed our own plans — all three versions of them — and edition No. 1 contained huge rooms, numerous levels and dual bathrooms separated by about 2,000 square feet of floor space.

Our building advisor at that time took one look at the plan and we took one look at him — when last heard from he was still laughing.

For our next effort we got ourselves mixed up with a mountain of Swedish fireplace surrounded by a circular causeway of room and a kitchen that shot off into space with no particular relation to any other part of the house.

Up to that time we had thought of doing our own building weekend by weekend under VLA. But now, as we plodded around gathering estimates we began to wonder if what we were going to build wouldn't turn out to be an old folks' home.

And we began to turn dizzy at the thought of spending our sunset days walking round and round that Swedish fireplace. So we went back to the drawing board and started from scratch. The project remained a sort of impossible dream to me though until that day last summer when a call from Northwest Homes told me work had started on the foundations.

My husband was away at the time but I'll never forget that moment when I stood and gazed at the raw upheaval on our lovely treed lot and the yellow wood of the cribbing outlining the house — truly the shape of things to come.

In the next four months while the house was under construction I learned so much about how a good contractor can help the greenhorn prospective home owner. Particularly as our plans were somewhat off the beaten track.

He was patience itself though he did ask rather plaintively once or twice, when my husband was coming back.

But then he would pull himself together and wrestle with every problem, my ignorance and fancy brought about, always with the object of giving practical expression to my ideas.

Almost every week, some new proposition struck one or the other of us but it was always easy to discuss things with "Al" and easy to see that his advice was aimed at helping us to avoid costly mistakes and disappointments while giving us the home we wanted.

Sub contractors too, deserve our gratitude for such completely realized visions as the wrought iron and glass cabinet that decorates the head of the stair well (my husband's contribution) and the lovely bright kitchen with its copper hardware and multiple conveniences.

Aside from making our dreams practical, our contractor gave them splendidly stout underpinnings and proof of his success is reflected every day in the satisfaction and pleasure we are experiencing in a home that is, to a more than usual degree, our own.

COLLEGE MAN?

Can you figure out the answers to the following questions? These two posers are taken from a college aptitude test.

1. A cubic foot of lead is flattened into a sheet  $\frac{1}{4}$  of an inch thick. What is the area (in square feet) of the top of the sheet?
(A) 8, (B) 18, (C) 64, (D) 96, (E) 216
2. An automobile, travelling 40 miles per hour in the same direction as buses R and T, passes T 30 minutes after passing R. If both buses are travelling 35 miles per hour, how many miles apart are they?
(A)  $2\frac{1}{2}$ , (B)  $7\frac{1}{2}$ , (D) 20, (E)  $37\frac{1}{2}$

Answers: 1. D, 2. E

MATCH A STAR?

How quickly can you take five wooden matches such as those shown above and form a five-pointed star with them? It's easy, but there's a gimmick involved which it may take some time to discover.

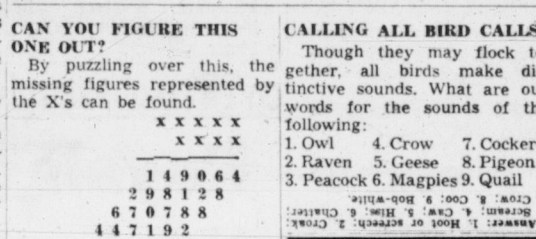

The answer is given below, but no fair peeking. It's a good trick to keep in mind for an impromptu performance at a party some time.

DOTOGRAPH POSER FOR JUNIORS

A familiar sight at a lake front is outlined by dots and numbers in the drawing above. How quickly can you discover what it is? To find out, of course, you must draw a continuous line from dot 1 to dot 24, consecutively. Where two numbers are beside one dot as in the case of 1 and 21, use the dot for both.

Answers: 1. D, 2. E

CALLING ALL BIRD CALLS

Though they may flock together, all birds make distinctive sounds. What are our words for the sounds of the following:

1. Owl
2. Raven
3. Peacock
4. Crow
5. Goose
6. Magpies
7. Cockerel
8. Pigeon
9. Quail

Answers: 1. Hoot, 2. Caw, 3. Cluck, 4. Coo, 5. Honk, 6. Chirp, 7. Cluck, 8. Coo, 9. Quack

WHAT ARE THEY?

SEE THROUGH THIS? Though I dance at a ball, I am nothing at all. What am I?
Answer: Could be a shadow.

TIME CLOCKED?

Take half, a third and a fourth of the hour just struck and the total will be one larger than the hour. What hour is it?
Answer: It's twelve o'clock.

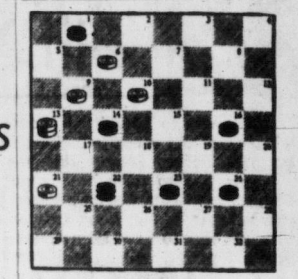

Answers: 1. D, 2. E

IT TAKES STEADY HANDS

Are your hands steadier than your friends' hands? Put them to a test.

Collect a batch of matches. Any kind; even those torn from the paper books will do. There should be at least 50. Hold the batch compactly in one hand about a foot above a table and let them drop.

Those joining in the test take turns removing matches from the pile one at a time. Any matches may be chosen and any means may be used for removing them from the pile. However, causing the movement of any match except the one being removed from the pile brings disqualification of the offending player. Others proceed until all except one player has been eliminated. He's the champ.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

By Millard Hopper
In this checker pose White applies the coup de grace with a flourish. The test is this: White, moving up the board, moves first and wins in four moves. Can you guide him to victory in the manner prescribed?

Answers: 1. D, 2. E

3.50 MILE POSSIBLE, PROPHESIES LANDY

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—World record holder John Landy today predicted that the time for the mile run will soon be cut to three minutes, 55 seconds.

Landy, who holds the mile record at three minutes, 58 seconds, told reporters before leaving by plane for the United States:

"The time will probably soon be cut to three minutes, 55 seconds."

"But, I think they will get down to the three minute, 50 seconds eventually."

In the U.S., Landy will compete in two one-mile events in California before returning to Australia for the Olympic Games.

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

This was to have been about Andy Heberton, the rookie winger who did much to make a rookie coach look good in the National Hockey League this winter.

This was to have been about "handy-Andy," the former Cougar, who, as a Cougar, scored 46 goals on his wrong wing and, because he did, Muzz Patrick did the right thing by him.

This was to have been about a hockey player, who in his first full season under the big tent, accomplished these feats:

1. Scored 24 goals. Only seven players in the league got more.

2. Was third in the rookie balloting behind Glen Hall and Henri Richard, and over the last half of the season topped all rookies, even Hall, who eventually was named to the second all-star team.

3. Was fourth in the race for the Lady Byng Trophy, an award which combines sportsmanship with clean and outstanding play.

4. Was named the outstanding player on the New York Ranger team during the playoff series with Montreal Canadiens.

Yes, this was to have been about Andy: an old favorite here, and one of the most honest athletes ever to lace on a boot.

For Andy is home from the wars now, and anxiously waiting the start of next year. "It's the only place to play," says Andy.

Joy of Living Too Limited

But another item intervened yesterday—Rocky Marciano, son of a Massachusetts shoemaker, and the world's biggest blockbuster outside the realm of physics, announced his retirement as undefeated heavyweight champion of the world.

Said Rocky:

"I want to start living for my family."

And one wonders just what a man of Marciano's talents, and means, means by a remark like that. For here is a fellow that can command half a million dollars for a night's work.

You can't beat the hours, some might say, but think again. Rocky quit because the grind was too tough and the joy of living too limited because of his fierce devotion to his position as heavyweight champion.

He virtually lived like a hermit during his training for title bouts. For two months before a championship fight, he was isolated from the outside. For the final two weeks, the champ had a dictum that prohibited him from writing or receiving letters, getting phone calls, shaking hands, riding in a car, plus complete disassociation from his family.

He lived "clean" and he trained "clean" did Rocky, and is a credit to the game of boxing, which needs a credit or two.

'Cruel', Clean and a Credit to Boxing

He was "cruel" in the ring, and admits it. "I had to be," he is quoted as saying, "because it would hurt me if I thought there was someone who could beat me, and I did beat me."

The boxing business has had a lot of greats, but Marciano must rank with the greatest—all ways.

And oddly enough, his approach parallels that of Heberton, whom we also respect.

For as Andy said when greeted on the street by an old employer last week:

"I'm down to a 175 pounds now, and I've got to get a job quickly to keep in shape for next year."

Both have a devout approach to their tasks, and the moral is one that all young athletes should admire.

"If you've been blessed with an athletic body, don't abuse the privilege."

That's one reason, and probably the main one, why Rocky ranks as high in our books; and Heberton too.

EDGED IN NINTH

Mounties Drop Home PCL Opener

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Mounties' home-town debut in the Pacific Coast League Friday night was a losing one. San Francisco Seals waited all the way through to the ninth inning before exploding for two runs to win 2-1.

Don Leppert scored the Mounties' only run in the first inning when first baseman Moose Edwards brought him home with a single. Leppert had singled and was followed by centre fielder Jim Pisoni with another.

Attendance in 9,000-seat Caplano Stadium for the first PCL game in Canada was 8,146.

Vancouver scored its only run in the first inning, after which the game continued scoreless until the ninth in a tight duel between pitchers Bob Harrison of the Mounties and San Francisco's Jack Osborn.

Harrison struck out 10 and, until the ninth, it looked as though he had the game on ice. The spoiler was right fielder Gordon Windhorn, who walked a long one deep into left field to score shortstop Joe Tanner and pinch-hitter Larry Di Pippo.

Joey Gets Licence

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Giardello, one-time high-ranking Philadelphia middleweight, was granted a licence by the New York athletic commission Friday and immediately signed for a television bout with Charles King Cotton of Toledo, Ohio, at St. Nicholas Arena, May 7.

The 25-year-old Giardello was granted a licence by the Pennsylvania athletic commission last January after serving part of a jail term for assault and battery.

Vernon Goes 'Ga-Ga'

Fans Dance in Street Following Cup Win

By GRAHAM McMULLIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—Sirens screamed a song of victory here Friday night and flickering kerosene torches waved through city streets as about 6,000 persons jammed Barnard Avenue, dancing in the street, to celebrate their first Allan Cup.

Vernon Canadians subdued the stubborn but out-gunned Chatham Maroons 5-3 to take the best-of-seven series for Canada's senior hockey title 4-1.

Chatham won the first game 7-1. Vernon won the others, 6-2, 7-1 and 6-4.

The Canadians wrapped it up with four goals in the first period Friday night and then scored one more in the third to break the back of a spirited Maroon attack.

BEST-NOT-GOOD ENOUGH

The Maroons turned in their finest performance of the series but it wasn't enough. They cut the margin to 4-2 in the second period and were within one goal of Canadians in the third when Merv Bidoski scored at 17:45.

Johnny Harms scored twice for Vernon, including the winner. Jackie Macdonald and Willie Schmidt tallied the others.

Lloyd Ferguson, Bill Chalmers and Ted Power connected for Chatham.

BURN THEIR UNDERWEAR

The Canadians drank champagne from the Allan Cup and ceremoniously burned their underwear.

More than 3,600 fans squeezed into the 2,700-seat arena. A deafening chorus of "Dig Vernon, dig" to a rhythm pounded out on drums and cymbals made normal conversation impossible throughout the game.

The victory brought British Columbia its fourth Allan Cup since the trophy was put up for competition in 1908. Kimberley Dynamiters won in 1936, Trail Smoke Eaters in 1938 and Penicton in 1954.

OVERTIME VICTORY

Royals Square Hockey Final

Montreal 5, Winnipeg 4

EDMONTON (CP)—Alfie Pike looks on the second game of the Edinburgh Trophy hockey series as a confidence game—or was it an over-confidence game?

"After we got a three-goal lead, they stopped skating," the dejected Winnipeg coach said Friday night after his Warriors dropped a 5-4 overtime decision to Montreal Royals.

The Montreal victory, on a sudden-death overtime goal by Kelly Burnett after Royals came from behind a 4-1 deficit, tied the best-of-nine series 1-1.

Third game of the series is at Calgary tonight with the next games at Winnipeg Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

"The boys were overconfident," said Pike. "Now maybe they'll realize they're in a series."

LACH PLEASED CLUB

In the Montreal dressing room, it was a different story. Royals coach Elmer Lach said he liked the way his club got stronger as the game went along.

"It was a reversal of the way they went Wednesday night when they lost 6-3 after leading 3-1 in the first period," said Lach. "They perked up as they went along this time."

The Royals scored the first goal but trailed 3-1 after the first and dropped behind 4-2 during the second before scoring the only two goals of the third to force overtime play.

Forward Walt Bradley was the major cog in the machine, scoring three goals—the first three of the game for Royals. Little Guy Rousseau fired the tying marker and Burnett scored the winner at the 10-minute mark of the extra period.

TWO FOR NYKOLUK

Mike Nykoluk scored twice for Warriors and Mickey Keating and Ed Mazur once each.

Lach said Calum MacKay, who suffered an eye cut during the first game, likely won't dress tonight but he'll be ready for the game Monday night in Winnipeg.

When Pike was asked if his club had any injuries, he snapped:

"Nobody gets hurt when nobody works."

They refused to wilt under the stiff bumping Marlboros gave them in the early minutes and showed they are capable of handing out some solid checks themselves.

Times Match Play Golf Tourney Reaches Climax

Vince Clarkson, who has never won anything but a couple of bucks in friendly matches, and Laurie Kerr, who has been second best more times than a sparring partner, go for the head man's share of the pie Sunday.

The two quiet-spoken Colwood Golf Club members, who have surprised everyone but themselves with their tremendous golf and shatter-proof nerves in recent weeks, climax a long uphill pull when they tee off at Gorge Vale Golf Club in a 36-hole final for the 1956 Times Vancouver Island Match Play Open Golf Championship.

Clarkson, an all-round athlete from one of the city's most prominent athletic families, has made his name known in golf only in the last two years.

During the middle part of the present tournament, the husky redhead was the fellow who was described as "playing as well as anyone in the tournament."

But then Clarkson started knocking off the big names in the tournament, fellows like Dr. George Bigelow and Ted Colgate and now he finds himself facing the precise strokes of Kerr.

Kerr's case has been different than Clarkson's. The poker-faced Kerr has always been a big name in local tournament play but until he won the city championship last year, he never quite made the elite bracket.

He squired many a groom to golf's altar but always had to be content to assume the role of best man.

A new champion will also be crowned in the handicap division when young Mel Carlow takes on George Buckingham of the Royal Canadian Navy Golf Association in another 36-hole playoff.

Following the matches, Times publisher Stuart Keate will present prizes to the champions and near champions.

Starting times for the handicap final for the Hugh Francis Trophy are 9:30 and 2.

Clarkson and Kerr match strokes starting at 9:40 and 2:10 in their 36 hole final for the Times Trophy.

Boxing's Best—After Rocky

NEW YORK (AP)—The most recent Ring Magazine ratings listed in order the following as the most logical contenders for the heavyweight boxing title which Rocky Marciano gave up Friday:

1. Archie Moore, light-heavyweight champion and knocked out by Marciano in the ninth round last September. His home is Toledo, Ohio; 2. Tommy Harrison, New York; 3. Bob Baker, Pittsburgh; 4. Johnny Holman, Chicago; 5. Johnny Sumner, Detroit; 6. Willie Pastrano, New Orleans; 7. Harold Grier, Newark, N.J.; 8. Ron Bakerfield, Chicago; 9. Eddie Machin, San Francisco; 10. Nino Valdes, Cuba.

Littler Boosts Lead In Las Vegas Tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—California's Gene Littler stretched his lead to four strokes over the field Friday in the $37,500 Tournament of Champions, shooting his second sub-par round of golf, a 71, for a 36-hole total of 141.

Warming up on the back nine despite a springtime shower that pelted the Desert Inn Country Club course, the 25-year-old professional from San Diego was in even better shape than he was at this same point a year ago when he walked off with the $10,000 first-place money. A year ago he was three shots in front of his nearest rivals.

Tied at 145 were veteran Lloyd Mangrum and young Gardner Dickinson Jr., both of whom rallied with two-under-75s after shooting first-round 78s. Mayfield, after nine holes, actually had taken a one-stroke lead over Littler, but he fell back and lost his margin.

Tied at 146 were Al Balding of Toronto, with a 71 Friday; Dick Mayer, with a 69; Mike Fetchik and Frank Stranahan, 72s, and Doug Ford, 74.

Par for the Desert Inn course is 36-36-72 and Littler toured it 37-34 for his 71.

Rocks Drill Sunday

Victoria Shamrocks, who open defence of their Canadian lacrosse championship here Wednesday night in the first game of the Intercity Lacrosse League season, will hold a full-scale workout Sunday morning.

The Rocks will work out at Stevenson Park at 10 but will first meet at Memorial Arena to dress for the practice.

FRALEY ASKS:

How Good Was Rocky?

By OSCAR FRALEY, United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—They're still asking the same old question today as Rocky Marciano waves goodbye.

"Just how good was he?" They asked it about all of them. Even Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis had their doubters in the days they were on top and only time draped the mantle of youthful invincibility around them.

It figures to do the same for the Rock.
Because, while you might well ask "who did he beat?" the answer remains that he beat every man he ever faced. Maybe you didn't like his rushing, relentless, bull-like style, but 49 guys went up against him and 49 of them went down to defeat.

Five of them—among the best of his era—he demolished and, to all intents and purposes, ended their careers at the top with his crushing fists. An aged and erring Louis was one. The others were highly-regarded and Harry Matthews, the ancient but muscled agile Jersey Joe Walcott, hopeful young Roland La Starza and canny Ezzard Charles.

Brought Along Slowly

There can be no doubt but what the Rock was handled very carefully early in his career. His opponents were hand-picked and well-spaced. Yet, actually, this is the way it should be.

The innocent-eyed Rock started in 1947 and had 16 straight knockouts by 1949. They didn't throw him to the tigers. Because it wasn't until 1950, after he had won 25 straight, that he went up against the equally young and promising La Starza. Rocky won it close and, some said, was piloted around rollicking Rolfe for three years.

Instead of a rematch, they sent him out to wreck such non-entities as Eldridge Eatman,

He Knocked 'Em All Off

Then he got Walcott—and the title.

The Walcott return was a farce, but it's through any fault of Rocky's. Some still criticized him as a bull in a china shop when he clobbered La Starza to silence a three-year-old beef. Twice then he put away Charles. Next came blubbery Don Cockell, rated as the best abroad, and finally it was the brash Archie Moore who was battered into darkness along with his blatant claims.

So if anybody asks you "just how good was he?" or "who did he ever beat?" remind them he ever faced. He never flinched, he never quit and he showed quite often that he could get up off the floor.

"How good was he?" The history books of the ring will show that Rocky Marciano had to be one of the greatest heavyweight champions of all time.

'Closed-Shop' Policy British Booters Goal

LONDON (CP)—British soccer players will back a "closed shop" on the country's football pitches next season.

The Football Players Union has announced its members will refuse to play next season with or against non-union members. The union represents about 2,500 of the country's 3,000 professional players.

The closed-shop move is the brainchild of 47-year-old Jimmy Guthrie, hard-hitting chairman of the union, who has been working for eight years to improve things for the professional footballer.

Guthrie, a former player with Portsmouth, Dundee and Crystal Palace, announced the decision in a surprise statement following a union meeting in Glasgow. He said the union actually had decided on the action five months earlier, at a closed meeting in mid-November. Guthrie's statement, which caught other union officials by surprise, is believed to have been timed to strengthen the union's hand for forthcoming wage discussions between union representatives and soccer clubs. The wage talks will be opened at the annual meeting of the Football League in June.

Union secretary Cliff Lloyd said Guthrie made the decision public without consulting other union officials.

"I am amazed that Guthrie has revealed this decision."

"But it is a fact that last November it was agreed not to allow any member to play with or against players who are not members of the union after June 30, 1956."

The closed-shop move reflects a trend towards more militant action by the players' union.

Ontario League To Turn Professional?

SUDBURY, Ont. (UP)—National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell of Montreal will be here Monday to advise on a plan to turn the Northern Ontario Hockey Association's problem with player representation into an outright professional league.

Campbell said, however, he would not take sides either way on the plan. He would answer all questions relating to pro and amateur hockey problems.

City Fans Show Interest In Everton's B.C. Visit

Soccer fans from every corner of British Columbia are expected to pour into Vancouver June 9 to help the Everton Football Club celebrate its 78th birthday.

The Everton club, formed in 1878, will meet Aberdeen of Scotland at Empire Stadium in what is expected to be the greatest display of Old Country soccer ever presented to Canadian fans.

The Everton club arose from the most humble beginnings, being formed in the summer of 1878 by a group of soccer enthusiasts who belonged to a small chapel called St. Domingo. The team first adopted the chapel's name but soon after changed it to Everton.

The early games of the club were played on a field owned by a rich brewer who caused a split in the club's ranks when he increased the rental for the field.

The rift produced two first-class English teams, Everton surviving under the guidance of one half the split party and Liverpool being formed by the other half.

A keen rivalry has grown up between the two clubs and they consistently draw over 70,000 fans for an Everton-Liverpool match.

A number of great players have worn the Royal blue shirts and white shorts of the Everton club.

Among them was William Ralph Dean, a centre forward who started his career with Tranmere Rovers before moving to the Everton club.

A master strategist with the ability to score goals on headers, "Dixie" Dean created several scoring records that still stand and was an idol of fans until his retirement in 1938.

Another name which is synonymous with Everton is that of Ted Sagar, the tall, slender goalkeeper who put in 21 seasons with the club and became one of the greatest goalies who ever donned a jersey.

BOWLING ACES

Logart Uses Strong Finish

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)—Cuban welterweight title contender Isaac Logart took a bad mauling during the early rounds but came back strong at the finish to win a unanimous decision Friday night over left-handed power puncher Joe Miceli of New York.

Pin Tourneys Close Season

By RON COULTER

Four bowling tournaments, two here and two at Seattle, hold the spotlight as the winter bowling season officially closes.

Two fivepin meets are scheduled here.

The big one is the Vancouver Island Open Fivepin championships scheduled to go at Esquimalt Bowladrome for two weekends starting May 5.

Entries and inquiries have been pouring in to alley manager Larry Marshall, indicating a big entry and a bang-up tournament.

Teams, doubles and singles events will be rolled May 5, 6, 12 and 13, with the big bauble being the Daily Times team championship trophy. Entries are still open.

Also in the near future, a 25-game bowling is set for Capital City alleys May 13 and 19, and entries are now being accepted by alley-boss Bill Stevenson.

CITY TEAMS TRAVEL

On an international scale, at least five teams from Victoria will be shooting for prizes in the Northwestern International Bowling Congress annual tenpin tournament at Seattle.

Strictly a men's event, locals will be rolling team, doubles, singles and all-events next Saturday and Sunday.

For women tenpin leggers, the Northwestern Women's Bowling Tournament will draw at least two city team entries for the May 4 and 5 weekend. This pin-meet is also at Seattle.

Locally this week, Esquimalt's major fivepin league concluded with Esquimalt Meat Market walking off with top roll-off spot by scoring a five-game scratch total of 3,900.

Runner-up was Esquimalt Service with 5,675, while Esquimalt Electric came in a close third at 5,672.

STOCKERS WIN

At Capital City, Stockers shot a three-day handicap total of 2,946 to take top spot in a Friday mixed league roll-off, while Pils were second with 2,901.

Stinkers copped the "Friendly" section with 2,866. Handicaps being runners-up with 2,690. Dave Scherr scored leading triple of the finale with a 717.

Orioles with 2,759 picked up Eaton's league title with a 2,759 triple, second-place Bombers being far back at 2,567. Dazzlers were consolation winners with 2,537.

Individually, Charlie Watson set the pace with a 702 series. High scores in other leagues were shot by May Wallis, 805; Phil Smith, 799; Jerry Lawrence, 793; John Birkenhead, 761 (313); Doug Spruston, 760; Bill Stevenson, 730 (305); Rod Davidson, 717; Ken Jones, 715; Red Pugh, 713; Ron Cuth, 711; John Torjek, 707; Marge Deslaurier, 703 (308); Harry Cool, 703; Charlie Watson, 702, and Dick Bowles, 701.

Dot Williams led at Gibson's with a 789 (328) effort, while Bill Taylor ripped off a 380 singleton in hitting for 774.

Rocky Crying 'Wolf' Claims Archie Moore

VANCOUVER (UP)—Heavyweight boxer Archie Moore had only a derisive laugh Friday when told of the plans of champion Rocky Marciano to leave the ring.

Moore described Marciano as the boy who cried "wolf," and said he (Marciano) was only seeking publicity by announcing his retirement.

Marciano, he added, would not leave the ring because he loved the jingle of the American dollar too much.

Moore said he would keep his offer of a $400,000 stake open to Marciano, but he reserved the right to add or deduct from the sum. He said he would give Marciano two weeks to decide.

"Marciano will soon tie himself to the north woods with an axe on his shoulder to get into condition to meet Archie Moore," predicted Moore.

"But if Marciano does retire

TONY CLAIMS TITLE FOR FLOYD

NEW YORK (UP)—Custer D'Amato, manager of Floyd Patterson, Friday claimed the heavyweight title vacated to-day by Rocky Marciano for Patterson.

"I'm claiming the title for Patterson and he's ready to fight anyone who stands in his way. I guess Tommy Jackson looks like the boy Floyd would have to fight for the crown," D'Amato said.

D'Amato was informed that the National Boxing Association had announced it would hold a series of elimination bouts to determine two top contenders to meet for the vacant title.

Norris Sets Several Track Marks

WALTON, Eng. (Reuters)—Fred Norris, 34-year-old miner, today ran 12 miles 69 yards and one foot in an hour, and collected a hatful of records in the process.

He failed by less than 750 yards to reach Czech runner Emil Zatopek's world record for the hour set up in 1951, but became the first British runner to cover more than 12 miles in an hour and is only the third man ever to have done so.

His distance today was an Empire all-comers, national and English native record.

His time for 12 miles—59 minutes 51.6 seconds—is also the best ever achieved by a British runner. His time for 10 miles—49:53.2—also was an Empire, national all-comers and English native record.

Rocky's Ghost Casts Spell Over Cockell

LONDON (AP)—Once you've fought "The Rock," chances are you're as good as finished as a prize fighter.

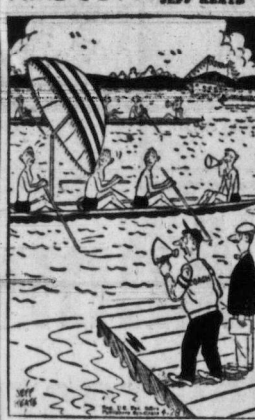

Don Cockell, Britain's tubby heavyweight who was knocked out by heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in the ninth round last May, is the latest to join the club of men who were finished by the champ.

Cockell, of the bulging midriff, didn't fight for four months after the Marciano mauling. When he did venture into a ring he was stopped by Cuban Nino Valdes in three rounds.

Tuesday night Cockell tried again. But once again the 27-year-old Briton crashed to defeat. It took less than two rounds for a little-known heavy called Kitione Lave from the "friendly island" of Tonga to polish off Don.

"His savage beating by Rocky Marciano had obviously left its mark," wrote Tom Phillips of The Daily Herald.

BOSTON STILL IN SLUMP

Chicago, New York and Cleveland, running 1-2-3 in the American League, continued their winning ways but Boston was still in the dumps, dropping its fifth straight. The surprising Washington Senators evened their season record at 5-5 with an 8-5 win over Baltimore.

White Sox won their fifth in six starts, taking a 9-7 slugfest from Kansas City to maintain their first-place percentage lead over New York. Yankees whipped Red Sox 5-2 for their fourth straight over Boston. Bobby Avila's 10th-inning home run with a man on base gave Indians a 4-3 decision over Detroit.

Billy Pierce got a poorly pitched game out of his system and was fortunate to win his third game in as many starts for White Sox. The little left-hander was tagged for four home runs and 12 hits but managed to outlast four Kansas City pitchers.

Harry Simpson whacked him for two home runs and two singles. Hector Lopez and pinch hitter Bill Renna also hit for four-baggers.

Pierce got the benefit of 13 Chicago hits including a home run by Walter Dropo. Yankees got a well-pitched game from Don Larsen, who turned Red Sox back with six hits. Tom Brewer, the loser, was the victim of three errors which helped the Yankees to a 4-3 win.

By The Associated Press

The Brooklyn Dodger pitching staff is having a laugh on the pessimists—a category that includes manager Walt Alton.

Only a couple of weeks ago he was moaning about his "hurting" hill crew, crippled by the loss of sore armed Billy Loes, Karl Spooner and Sandy Koufax, not to mention Don Bessent, bedded down in hospital. There's been quite a change since then.

In defeating Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 Friday night behind the four-hit pitching of Roger Craig, Dodgers got their fourth consecutive complete game from their pitching staff. They lead both leagues with five route-going performances in eight starts.

The victory widened Dodgers' first-place National League lead over idle Milwaukee to a full game. New York Giants climbed into fourth place by defeating Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Allan Roy. Cincinnati won its second game in seven starts, beating Chicago Cubs 7-4. Rain washed out St. Louis Cardinals and Braves in Milwaukee.

BETWEEN TIMES

By
MONTE ROBERTS

Between Times is back to normal again today. Namely, ag'in progress.

The progress I am ag'in today is the progress which has eliminated the cradle.

I mean the honest-to-goodness, trough-like, cradle on rockers, which, a few generations ago, provided baby with the restful motion most conducive to a quiet snooze.

The disappearance of the cradle is a phenomenon to be viewed with the utmost alarm.

In case you think this great revelation came to me in a flash of inspiration, it didn't. It came after reading an article in the current Satevepost, which decries the passing of the cradle from the land.

But the Post article views with alarm from a different viewpoint than I do.

The Post article is upset because the cradle was such a useful instrument for putting the baby in the land of nod, when the baby was all for whooping and hollering and raising general pandemonium.

The Post article says the cradle not only lulled baby into the arms of Morpheus, it eliminated wear and tear on Daddy's poor tired feet. With a cradle, there was no need for floor walking.

I'll admit this happy faculty of pleasing both Baby and Daddy is all to the cradle's credit. But it isn't the important point.

Which I will discuss in a moment. But first, the facts. You can't buy a cradle in the city of Victoria.

I doubt if you can buy a cradle anywhere. The manufacturers just don't manufacture them anymore, having quit the cradle game at about the same time they went out of the buggy whip business.

Yesterday I called department stores and furniture stores, making enquiries about cradles, and I received a uniform answer:

"Ha, ha."

So you can see I am not fooling about the disappearance of the cradle.

Now for the important issue involved.

Under the circumstances as outlined above, there is no person to rule the world.

Everyone knows the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

Therefore, with no cradle to rock, there is no hand to rock the cradle, and no hand to rule the world.

What this world needs more than anything else is a hand to rule it.

And we won't have a hand to rule the world until the cradle returns.

Let us make all haste to go backward and return the cradle to its proper place in the home, thus making the world a better place in which to live.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Speeding charges brought fines for seven motorists when they appeared in Colwood RCMP court Friday.

Fined $25 was George W. Friend, Metchoin; Harold E. Pratt, 3424 Ssanch, and James Pilgrim, RR 1, Victoria; Earl B. Allen, 301 Niagara, and Gillies J. Briere, 2844 Keith Road, each paid $15 fines, while David N. Copeman, 556 Ker, and a juvenile girl were fined $10 each.

Paul James Oslie, 31, Victoria, was remanded to Tuesday without plea when he appeared in city police court today charged with unlawfully pointing a revolver at Doris Corrine Rutherford last Wednesday.

Bail was set at $500. Defence counsel is James Proudfoot.

Keith Doak, 409 Dunedin, was fined $25 or five days in jail when he pleaded guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday to a charge of driving without a driver's licence April 21.

A meeting of the Indian Arts and Welfare Society will be held in the music room of the Victoria Public Library at 8 tonight.

Three pure white Pekin ducks henceforth will grace the grounds at Government House.

They were purchased from Sidney Duck Farm by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross to help beautify the grounds by their presence.

The Sidney establishment sends Pekin ducks to the lieutenant-governor's Douglas Lake Cattle Co. in the interior each year.

Pollution tests will be carried out in the Gorge within two weeks and are expected to result in lifting of the swimming ban imposed by health authorities almost 20 years ago.

Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgelow, chairman of the Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, has predicted the tests will show up cleaner than many other areas in the province where swimming is permitted.

Son of a Victoria couple, Flt. Sgt. Eric Tippet, now stationed in Edmonton, has been promoted to flying officer following high standing in recent RCAF examinations.

Parents of the air force accountant are Mr. and Mrs. George D. Tippet, 972 Heywood. Tippet is expected to do an overseas tour of duty following leave here.

NOTES CAME OUT

High School Bandsmen Blow Blue At Post-Breakfast Jam Session

Pass the brass, dad, the kids got loose in the music store today.

Music suppliers with nerves of steel and a fortune in brass took opportunity to display their wares for hundreds of junior oompah artists gathered for a provincial band clinic at S. J. Willis Junior High.

The hurry-and-wait routine so common to mass organization fests idling about the shiny new horns in the interval before classes began.

One lad couldn't resist fondling the sousaphone. He slipped in his mouthpiece and pumped out a foghornish baritone beat.

Rhythm-conscious feet began to shuffle. Another daring youngster spied a new clarinet and rigged his reed.

"... be down to get you in a taxi, honey," said a smiling sax which also seemed to leap from the counter.

"... meet me on the corner 'bout half-past eight," quoth a trembling trombone.

A clarinet chimed in and busy fingers sneaked across the skin of a snare drum.

Hands clapped, shoulders began to weave and the second chorus gained in volume.

"Gonna wear out both my shoes. When they play those jelly-roll blues..."

For a moment it appeared even the organizers were going to get reorganized, and the jazz age was about to be reborn.

This just after breakfast, before the flutes had even been separated from the piccolos and the clinic classes started.

What will happen tonight at Memorial Arena if anyone should absent-mindedly hum a foot-stamper in presence of the eager 900 is anybody's guess. Like feathers in a flood, they get carried away.

Employment Service to Aid Students Seek Summer Jobs

Last exams were written by close to 350 students at Victoria College Friday and the annual search for summer jobs is reported underway.

College authorities say many of the young people have jobs lined up but many others will hit the pavement next week in hopes of earning next year's tuition. Others will spend the summer months in service with army, navy and air force reserve units.

Unemployment Insurance Commission authorities indicated today the students would find plenty of work.

Survey parties and forestry

fire parties will be taking students into the woods. Many girls will be referred to various summer resorts who make a point of providing this type of employment for students.

"We will do everything to help them," the official stated.

CHESS MATCH SET FOR B.C. HIGH SCHOOLS

High schools here have been invited to enter a B.C. high school chess tournament to be held at Qualicum Beach Oct. 26 and 27.

The tournament was announced by Paul Smith teacher at Qualicum Junior-Senior High School, who scored a win over chessmaster Sammy Reshevsky in the recent Times-sponsored exhibition here. He is confident the B.C. Chess Federation will recognize the contest as a B.C. high school championship.

Except for transportation and an entrance fee of $1, there will be little expense for contestants, since billets will be provided by students of the host school.

The guild has disassociated itself from the efforts of directors of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau to establish a six-day shopping week, which have the approval of 52 downtown retailers.

His group represents 75 per cent of the trade in Victoria, including most of the larger shops, Mr. Davies said.

Copyright Conditions Reviewed in City Talk

Efforts being made to improve conditions for future copyrights were reviewed here Thursday night by Dr. Frank Stilling, national president of the Canadian Authors' Association and principal of University College, University of Western Ontario in London.

He spoke at a meeting of the Victoria branch of the association, held at the home of Mrs. J. Beatty, 1009 Tejrave Avenue.

Funeral Tuesday For T. W. Spouse

Funeral service for Thomas William Spouse, 899 Craig flower, will be held from McCall's funeral chapel Tuesday at 3 p.m., with Rev. Douglas Kendell officiating.

He died Friday, aged 89.

Mr. Spouse, a resident of Victoria 47 years, was a member of L.O.O.M. for 35 years, Legion of the Moose and fellowship of the Maple Leaf Legion and was a Past North Moose.

Born in Durham, England, he is survived by two daughters, Gertrude of North Richmond, Cal., and Winnifred of Vancouver; two sons, Dr. Percival Spouse of San Francisco and Raymond of Victoria.

Cremation follows the funeral service.

Submarine Power Cable Ready to Ship

July Start for Island Hook-Up

Construction of the 95-mile submarine power line that is to bring unlimited electric power from Vancouver to Vancouver Island has been completed.

The final link was finished this week at the Manchester, England, works of British Insulated Callenders Cables Ltd. Work on the heavily-armored cable has been proceeding night and day for the past 15 months.

It will be shipped to Vancouver next month aboard the Ocean Laver, Britain's largest cable ship, and the actual laying of the power line between here and Vancouver is scheduled to begin July 1.

The power line will carry 132,000 volts—highest voltage yet planned for any underwater cable—and will have a carrying capacity exceeding 120,000 kilowatts.

COST $6 MILLION

It has been built at a cost to the B.C. Electric of $6,000,000.

The line comprises five single conductor cables. Three will be in constant use; the other two will be held in reserve.

Originally, B.C. Electric ordered a 77-mile power line at a cost of $5,000,000. This was increased to 95 miles last fall on the advice of the company's engineers in Vancouver.

TWO IN RESERVE

"They believed it would be better to have two cables in reserve," a B.C. Electric spokesman said today. "Otherwise if one cable failed we would be entirely dependent on the three cables, which are the absolute minimum required."

The cable ship Ocean Laver, expected around June 25, was built in Germany and acquired by the British government as payment for German war debts. She is equipped to locate and repair cables at sea.

Shoe Repairers Launching Drive To Close Mondays

A program to establish an all-day Monday closing for shoe repair shops will be launched at a special meeting of the Shoemakers' Guild of Victoria, to be held within the next week.

H. W. Davies, secretary, said legal advice will be sought on the effect of the half-day Wednesday.

Guild members would prefer to work all day Wednesday, he said, but if forced to close Wednesday afternoon would still work for the Monday closing also.

The guild has disassociated itself from the efforts of directors of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau to establish a six-day shopping week, which have the approval of 52 downtown retailers.

His group represents 75 per cent of the trade in Victoria, including most of the larger shops, Mr. Davies said.

Copyright Conditions Reviewed in City Talk

Efforts being made to improve conditions for future copyrights were reviewed here Thursday night by Dr. Frank Stilling, national president of the Canadian Authors' Association and principal of University College, University of Western Ontario in London.

He spoke at a meeting of the Victoria branch of the association, held at the home of Mrs. J. Beatty, 1009 Tejrave Avenue.

Funeral Tuesday For T. W. Spouse

Funeral service for Thomas William Spouse, 899 Craig flower, will be held from McCall's funeral chapel Tuesday at 3 p.m., with Rev. Douglas Kendell officiating.

He died Friday, aged 89.

Mr. Spouse, a resident of Victoria 47 years, was a member of L.O.O.M. for 35 years, Legion of the Moose and fellowship of the Maple Leaf Legion and was a Past North Moose.

Born in Durham, England, he is survived by two daughters, Gertrude of North Richmond, Cal., and Winnifred of Vancouver; two sons, Dr. Percival Spouse of San Francisco and Raymond of Victoria.

Cremation follows the funeral service.

Galiano Mishap Traps Engineer Below Deck

A Crofton marine engineer escaped death Thursday at 5.15 p.m. when a barge overturned at Galiano Island with a truck and 20 tons of structural steel on board.

The accident occurred when attempts were being made to unload the barge at the government dock at Galiano.

Truck driver George Baker, about 36, started up the ramp of the barge, but felt the truck slip backward and knew the steel had shifted.

Anticipating disaster, he leaped to safety on the wharf just seconds before the barge capsized.

Skipper of the barge, Harry Nixon, about 45, of Crofton, jumped to the wharf, but Ray Blashfield, engineer, was below decks at the time and managed to escape through a hatchway before the barge turned turtle.

A poor swimmer, he was rescued when Nixon swam to the barge lifeboat, which had floated free, then paddled to Blashfield. The barge remained afloat.

POWER LINE

The 20 tons of galvanized structural steel, destined for the construction by Hume & Rumble Ltd. of two towers for the B.C. Electric power line from the mainland to Vancouver Island, was given a tentative valuation of $3,600.

Attempts had been made the day before to unload the truck at the beach, but the ground was too soft. As a result, when the second try was made at the wharf, only 10 tons of steel was on the barge, and the remainder was lying loose on the deck.

SALVAGE STARTS

Both truck and barge belong to George Whittaker, Duncan logging operator. The truck was a heavy FWD used in Mr. Whittaker's logging operations.

Salvage operations began Friday under direction of David Reed of Hume & Rumble, with a derrick and diver of Nanaimo Towing Co. doing the actual raising.

It is understood an effort would be made today to raise the truck, and that the steel will be raised by Monday night.

WITHOUT DELAY

Reeve Ash advocated the use of the funds immediately so that there would be no delay in the construction of the addition.

"The reorganization of our administration branch and the efficiency of a streamlined administration depends on adequate space," he said. "The critical conditions now prevailing at our hall must be remedied at once."

Meeting Tuesday to Frame Plans for Totem Placement

Detailed plans for the erection and dedication of the world's tallest totem pole will be made at a meeting next Tuesday.

Officials of the Times, sponsors of the project, will meet with city authorities and local experts who have volunteered their services in putting up the pole.

City council agreed Thursday to accept the pole on behalf of the city and approved the site in Beacon Hill Park, adjacent to Lovers' Lane.

City engineer James Garnett; Charles Craig, architect in charge of site committee; George Wheaton, contractor, who will erect forms for the concrete base, and Donald Smith of Evans, Coleman and Johnson who will pour the concrete, will be present with other totem officials.

It is probable the date for dedication of the pole will be fixed, likely near the end of May.

Shares in the pole are still available by mail, or at the downtown Broad Street office, or at 2631 Douglas, at 50 cents each.

Ambulance Corps Issues Record Awards Here

A record 1,275 St. John Ambulance awards were gained by candidates in Victoria in 1955, the annual report of the association disclosed today.

In addition there were 92 industrial first aid certificates issued.

The report said St. John members in Victoria were working toward erection of a permanent building to house activities. A local committee is studying the matter.

Cadets in Victoria gave a total of 899 hours in public duty and 341 hours in other voluntary duty in 1955. A total of 45 proficiency certificates were issued cadets, covering such subjects as firefighting.

Strait Swimmer Pat Russell Hurt

Former strait swimmer Pat Russell of Vancouver and a 10-year-old boy were injured in separate accidents Friday.

Miss Russell, 19-year-old swimmer, was examined at hospital after receiving a lump to her head in a two-car rear-end collision at Douglas and Fisgard at about 10.50 p.m.

Police said a car driven south on Douglas by Lloyd A. Sleeman, 166 Joseph, collided with the rear of an auto owned by William Marchak, Nanaimo, who had stopped in a line of traffic for a red control signal light.

Albert Vanderveilte, 10, 2581 Vancouver, suffered a cut on his chin which required five stitches to suture, and also received shock when he fell from his bicycle at Hillside and Quadra at about 7.30 p.m.

Police said the lad apparently lost his balance and fell when he attempted to miss striking a dog.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Are there any natural hot springs on southern Vancouver Island? If so, are they accessible by car?—Mrs. T.R.M.

A.—Yes, there is a hot spring at Hot Springs Cove, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, South of Clo-oose, some 12 miles south of Hesquiat. There is no highway leading to the spot. It is reached only by boat.

Q.—The last 5-cent piece put out by the federal government is stamped 1751-1951. What is 1751 for?—G.W.W.

A.—That minting commemorated the isolation of nickel as an element, an event in the world of science which came at the comparatively late date of 1751. The coin is of nickel and as Canada supplies approximately 90 per cent of the world's nickel, it was fitting this country should mark the 200th anniversary.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Weird Cancer Theories Date Back to Early Egypt

By PETE LOUDON

Recent claims of cancer "cures" by food faddists and do-it-yourself experts find echo in yellowing pages of newspaper files and historical data shelved in Victoria libraries.

They have cropped up at regular intervals ever since the earliest literature of India and Persia.

The disease has been blamed on walnuts, beer, salt, excessive blood, mucus, bile and for many years was classed as divine retribution for abuse of the clergy.

Throughout the flurries of newly-found cures and causes, dedicated medical men have continued their search for an absolute cure unruffled by the Eureka's of the misinformed, some of which resound periodically in legislative chambers and the House of Commons.

And for all the loud theories, the only advances which have been proven are those prescribed by authentic research laboratories—surgery and radio therapy, including radium and the cobalt bomb.

Nonetheless, in 1920 the Times said salt was found to be the cause. Leave it alone and you can't get cancer. In 1924 it was diet. In 1929 a letter writer said Canadian brewers were spreading the word that drinking plenty of beer would lick the disease.

The first Eskimo cancer case was recorded in 1937 and the theory that freezing climates would save you was destroyed.

A prairie doctor claimed a cure in 1943. A misguided elderly physician of Winnipeg gave injections of blood serum from cancer-infected mice, claimed to have saved 20 lives. Two MPs made pleas at Ottawa for grants to aid his research. Later his "cure" also proved ineffective.

CCF MLA E. E. Winch asked similar consideration in the B.C. House in 1944 for a Burnaby layman who found a "cure." This, too, bogged down. Early reports of an Australian "cure" added to the hopes of thousands in 1946 but benefited only the travel bureaus.

The parallels stretch back and back. In 1847 an American doctor, Jesse W. Fell, MD, won temporary renown and was awarded the honor of being the first foreign doctor to practice in a London hospital... until his cured patients died.

The Egyptians "cured" cancer with arsenical salves, but mummies with cancerous body erosion are still being dug up. Galen laid all the trouble to diet, especially black walnuts and prescribed a diet of vegetables, 300 years after the birth of Christ. The same diet are being hailed as new cures in at least two American sanitariums today.

Queen Elizabeth I became a royal sponsor of faith cures.

A European baron wrote in 1672 his cancer of the tongue "... was divine punishment because I so often abused the clergy." The belief became widespread.

Today, medical science is curing 15 times as many cancers as were cured at the turn of the century.

This has been due to continued research. The number of lives saved can be increased by further medical research according to modern doctors.

Canadian Cancer Society needs money to continue the fight. The current Conquer Cancer Campaign has offices at 816 Wharf Street and is seeking $200,000 this month throughout B.C.

"Glen Craig," the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. David Cooper, 1988 Ferndale Road, Gordon Head, has a beautiful seaside garden that combines a view of mountains and green islands with the beauty of a natural landscape. Trees and rock formations are the frame for more formal plantings of bulbs and shrubs. "Glen Craig" will be open for the garden tour next Wednesday afternoon. (Photo by Bill Halkett.)

In the garden of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown, 1101 West Burnside Road, there is a delightful combination of natural rock, native ferns, plants and trees, complementing cultivated shrubs and flowers. An added attraction is a well-kept young orchard containing many varieties of fruit trees. This garden will be open for next Wednesday morning's garden tour. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

Victoria's Spring Garden Festival

Sponsored By Victoria Horticultural Society

Wednesday to Saturday, May 2 to 5

Sunshine and blue skies in the past two weeks have brought Victoria gardens into flower and those enthusiasts who plan to take the annual four-day garden tour sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society next week will find much to see and admire. Twenty-six attractive private gardens in different districts of Greater Victoria will be opened. Government House gardens, the gardens at Canadian Services College at Royal Roads, and Beacon Hill

Park will also be included. Visiting hours will be from 9.30 to 12 noon and from 1.30 to 5 p.m. (daylight saving time). Buses will leave 906 Government Street each morning at 9.30 o'clock, returning at 12 noon, and each afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, returning at 5.30 p.m. Visitors using private cars may find it convenient to follow the busses, which will take the most scenic routes. The Victoria Horticultural Society is a voluntary non-profit organization which has been assisting with beautification of the city since 1921. Proceeds from the garden festival tours will be used to further the work of the society.

FLORAL AND TABLE DISPLAY IN GARDEN FESTIVAL WEEK

As an interesting "extra event" during Garden Festival Week the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital has arranged a floral and table display in the Empress Hotel ballroom next Wednesday from 2 until 9 p.m. Conveners are Mrs. W. A. Trenholme, Mrs. T. W. Walker and Mrs. J. H. Todd. Classes include formal dinner, informal dinner, buffet, special occasion, pedestal, large floral and small floral and unusual novelty displays. A special class has been opened for high school students. Entries are still being accepted by the conveners. Mrs. Ian Ross will present prizes to winners in the various classes when the display closes in the evening.

Mrs. Ian Ross, attractive wife of the owner of the Butchart Gardens, will present prizes at the floral and table display in the Empress Hotel, next Wednesday. Mrs. Ross is pictured with her Boxer, "Gilda," in the garden at the home of her mother-in-law, Princess Chikhmatoff, on St. Charles Street. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

Java Temple Birds Invade City Budgie Bird Cages

By PENNY SAVER

I'm on the verge of buying a bird. Not for myself, though. But surely someone I know would like to receive a really different, truly interesting bird that's new in Victoria. It's called a Java temple bird, and has a pleasing little chirp song all its own. It can be trained to have the run of the house just the way a budgie has, and will happily hop onto your hand once trained. In fact, it can even be put in with a budgie. (But don't put one in with a canary.) It's a soft grey color, with a pink beak. A splash of white is seen on either side of its black head.

These little birds are no bigger than an average size budgie. Can you imagine how confused your little budgie would be at first when greeted with such a delightful interloper? At a special introductory price, they may be bought at $1.49 each, or for $5.95 with a cage.

Of course you'll need the various products to give the new addition all the comforts of home. They will eat anything a budgie will eat, so there's one problem solved. A special food costs 39c a package, and a box of seed is 35 cents. Gravel for the bottom of the cage is 25 cents a package, and a cellophane bag of millet treat is 20 cents. A little bone to keep his beak strong is 20 cents.

After tearing myself away from the Java temple birds, I wandered into the glove department of a local store, to find a wonderful sale of suede nylon gloves in progress. The very short gloves that we love to wear during the summer are there in all colors—pink, turquoise, tan, gold, red, navy, black, dusky rose, blue, orange, and, of course, white. Some have raised flowers of self

In Step With Style

By NONA DAMASKE

"Because the Sun Is Shining"—How exciting it is to be able to show you pretty cotton and linen dresses and to know that we are having weather that is warm enough for you to wear them.

The last two Mondays I have noticed several girls in stores and offices with sunburned noses . . . very becoming after a long, cold winter.

When we were trying on dresses for this week's picture we discovered some wonderful casual clothes for present-day wear.

In glowing shades of avocado, brick red, pearl and slate grey, Bernhard Altmann has designed slub silk skirts and fine matching cashmere sweaters. The skirts are pencil slim with an interesting belt treatment, two deep side pockets and an easy step into fly front. The sweater style is new and different . . . a very deep V-neckline is outlined with a two-inch turn-back collar and the three-quarter sleeves have a matching turn-back collar.

During the past several seasons there has been a very noticeable trend towards gay Italian separates and this summer will be no exception. A loosely cut Capri jacket bearing the label Maglieria DiLusso is shown in black and yellow or black and pink stripes with shiny brass buttons marching down the front. This easy-fitting jacket will be a perfect complement to a sheath dress, a slim skirt, tapered trousers or Bermuda shorts.

Again color caught our eye . . . shades of the Italian Riviera . . . glossy cotton and pure silk shirts designed by Pucci, Mediterranean coral, Capri blue, sunset yellow and ripe ginger . . . shirts to button high or wear casually open. Each collar with its own stiffening which remains firm through many washings. To wear with these shirts there are soot black bengaline tapered trousers beautifully cut from Italian patterns.

A Capri ensemble of long-sleeved shirt and short shorts is shown in the mosaic pattern often seen in the tiles of the Italian courtyards. The colors are reminiscent of a sunlit stain glass window.

Softer, more delicate colors are to be found in the exquisite Austrian sweaters and stoles. White, pale pink, pearl grey and aquamarine with designs in raffia and beads on felt . . . all done by hand.

I was allowed to pull out a heavy deep drawer and handle jewellery from all parts of the world. Big, chunky, antique silver bracelets from Italy and lacy scroll filigreed necklaces from France.

Interesting and lovely things from all over the world for milady to wear in our own beautiful city of Victoria!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Does "going to the beach" make you shudder? Did you miss swimming last year because you did not want to wear a swim suit? Did those pounds cause you to skip that wonderfully cooling, healthful, delightful sport?

Today whether or not a woman goes swimming depends much more on how her figure is like than on how old she is. Swimming is one sport you can safely enjoy at any age. It is one sport which middle-aged women can learn with profit. If you haven't learned to swim, do so this summer so that you can enjoy the fun with the rest of your family and with your friends.

Do not allow your figure to be a stumbling block! You have plenty of time between now and June to take care of that situation. In fact, you can lose from five to 10 pounds in just nine days' time. Then if you still need to lose more you will be encouraged to continue counting calories until you achieve your perfect weight.

Today I am giving you the menu for both Sunday and Monday so that you can have the prescribed food in the house on time.

SIXTH DAY MENU
Breakfast—Two slices crisp bacon, one thin slice of whole wheat toast, one-half grapefruit, black coffee.

Dinner—Chilled orange juice, serving of baked or broiled chicken, celery, olives (only two or three), one-half cup lima beans, one roll, fresh fruit cup.

Supper—Scrambled eggs, lettuce and cucumber salad, one glass skimmed milk.

SEVENTH DAY
Menu for Monday:
Breakfast—One-half grapefruit, one boiled egg, one thin slice of whole wheat toast, black coffee.

Luncheon—Chicken sandwich (no butter—thin slices of whole wheat bread), sliced tomatoes or canned tomatoes, one glass skimmed milk.

Dinner—Minute steak or chops, salad of shredded cabbage and carrots, one-half cup spinach, greens or broccoli, one-half grapefruit, one glass skimmed milk.

If you would like to have my Nine-Day Reducing Diet in a convenient booklet form for present or future reference send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PRUNE BUTTERSCOTCH PIE
One cup cooked prunes, 1 cup commercial sour cream, ¼ cup brown sugar (packed), 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 eggs, ½ cup chopped blanched almonds, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 baked (8-inch) pastry shell, ¼ cup sugar.

Cut prunes from pits into small pieces. Combine cream and brown sugar, and heat to boiling. Moisten cornstarch in cold water, combine with slightly beaten egg yolks, and stir into hot cream. Cook and stir over hot water until thick. Remove from heat, mix in prunes, almonds and vanilla. Pour into pastry shell. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in sugar. Spread over filling. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool thoroughly before cutting.

Makes 1 (8-inch) pie.

"Tea in the Garden"—Audrey Haynes, left, and her sister Daphne Frisch, wear new summer arrivals from England. Liberty of London designed the softly feminine fine cotton all-over green leaf design dress which Audrey wears so well. Daphne chose to wear a dress of Moynagh linen in her favorite shade . . . turquoise. The dress designed by Laeta Ramage is a simple sleeveless sheath with a high round neck and fly front. Daphne has thrown over her shoulders an Austrian stole in white botany wool with turquoise raffia fringe.

Newlyweds To Live In Germany

Following their up-island honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hillier will leave for Germany, where Mr. Hillier will be stationed for the next two years with No. 4 Fighter Wing of the RCAF, at Baden Soellingen. Mr. Hillier leaves today, and Mrs. Hillier, the former Patricia Roberta Mesher, will join him shortly.

The couple was married at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. Maxwell, by Rev. G. Richmond. Baskets of spring flowers formed the setting for the service.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. A. Mesher and the late A. E. Mesher, was given in marriage by her brother, Bud Mesher. She chose a ballerina-length gown of pale mauve net over white taffeta. A white floral hat held a small veil and she wore all white accessories. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

Mrs. Grace Wilson, matron of honor, chose a beige ballerina gown of taffeta with navy accessories and a bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Miss Wendy Wright was flower girl for her aunt, and wore a dress of blue nylon with pink flowers in her hair. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations.

The groom, son of Mrs. A. Derbyshire and W. Hillier, had Austin Derbyshire as his best man.

Parents of the newlyweds received guests at the reception, and toast to the bride was proposed by her brother-in-law, William Wright. The wedding cake was decorated by a family friend, Mrs. J. Chapman.

For Camille Cheesman

Honoring Miss Camille Cheesman, a May bride-elect, a miscellaneous shower was given by Miss Val Cadilac at the home of her mother, Mrs. Elsie Cadilac, Newport Avenue. A pink umbrella held her gifts. Gardena corsages were presented by Miss Judy Cadilac to the honor guest and her mother, Mrs. Ted Cheesman. Pink blossoms and white daffodils accented a pink candlelit arrangement on the mantel, reflected in a large mirror and topped with a pink bridal bell. Refreshment table was centred with a pink shower cake and spring flowers were throughout the room. Other guests were Mrs. Ted Cheesman, Sr., Mrs. B. Dysart, Mrs. Jean Akam, Mrs. W. Hill, Mrs. Al Simmons, and Misses Bonnie Green, Eddie-Mae Dysart, Anne Hamilton and Sylvia Eggersman.

Mrs. A. W. Warde-Elsen and Miss Betty Warde-Elsen entertained at their Newport Avenue home recently in honor of Miss Cheesman. A decorated clothes hamper held many gifts from the assembled guests. Spring flowers were placed in the drawing room, and refreshments were served in the dining room where lighted candles and a decorated bridal shower cake centred the table. Mrs. E. W. Cheesman, paternal grandmother of the guest of honor, presided at the tea table. Guests were Mrs. Charles Rushton, Mrs. E. Tucker, Mrs. F. Lindgren, Mrs. I. Patrick, Mrs. E. Cadilac, Mrs. A. Simmons, Mrs. I. Stubbs, Mrs. T. Akam, Mrs. J. M. Green, Mrs. F. Hill, Mrs. E. Cheesman Jr., Mrs. E. Cheesman Sr., Misses Bonnie Green, Valerie Cadilac and Edith Taylor.

Mrs. F. Lindgren also entertained recently with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Cheesman. Games were played, and Mrs. George Clark entertained at the piano. A decorated tea wagon held a host of gifts. Guests were Mrs. R. A. Willoughby, Mrs. Howard Hemming, Mrs. A. Warde-Elsen, Mrs. E. Harris, Mrs. T. Ward, Mrs. C. E. Whyte, Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. Charles Rushton, Mrs. E. Silva-White, Misses Kathleen Carley, Ann McFadden, Dorothy White, Maxine McClure, Barbara Laughon, Betty Warde-Elsen, Wanda Lindgren and Judy Rushton.

A "His and Hers" shower was recently held when Mr. and Mrs. M. Gregor entertained at their Raleigh Street home for Miss Camille Cheesman, and her fiancé, Mr. Philip G. Thomas. The gifts were presented to the affianced couple from the assembled guests, who were Mrs. E. Cheesman, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Collett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiper, Mr. and Mrs. L. Strauss, Mr. and Mrs. W. Daoust, Mrs. C. Wood, Mr. David Gregor, Mr. Wayne Strauss, Mr. and Mrs. H. Columbe, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cherry and Mrs. A. Barker.

Position With BBC Foreign News Incites 21-Year-Old to Travel

By KITTY DIXON

After three years with the BBC radio and television foreign news department, 21-year-old Audrey Rogers decided to leave London and see the world for herself.

And so she came to Canada after travelling through the Suez Canal to Australia and New Zealand, then sailing from Auckland on the RMS Orion.

Now in Victoria, Audrey will stay for three months with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy White, 1010 Fairfield Road. When she leaves, she will cross the country by train, take a short jaunt to New York, then return to Montreal to sail home on the Empress of France in August.

Having completed a round-the-world tour, Audrey hopes to return to the BBC and her work with the foreign news.

It was a job that took her from home at 8 a.m. each day, returning at 7.30 p.m. But it was not a matter of long working hours. It takes a full hour and a half to travel from the BBC news building to her home in Northwood, Middlesex.

Miss Rogers compared her work as secretary to the assistant director of the foreign news service to that of city editor on a newspaper. Her office would assign newsmen to stories in various parts of the world and tell them just how much coverage was required.

When her boss was transferred from radio to television work, Audrey went with him. The work was similar, but in addition to other duties she was required to send BBC TV news films to television studios all over the world. Most requests came from Sweden, the United States and Canada.

Audrey's office made all arrangements for news coverage on the royal tour to Australia and New Zealand.

"Everything was done right

Miss Audrey Rogers... from foreign news to foreign climes.

from our London office, unfortunately," she lamented. "But it was still very interesting." Long-term planning began about 18 months before the tour.

"We had radio-telephone circuits from Australia directly to our office, and our newsmen would 'phone' their stories to us."

Away from her job, Audrey is an outdoors girl. Besides swimming and playing tennis, she enjoys long hikes with the Youth Hostels Association. Hostels in England are placed between 10 and 20 miles apart. "Just far enough for a good day's walk," she said.

Audrey has no thoughts of returning to Canada or any other country, when she completes her tour... unless, of course, just on visit.

"London is the place to live," she affirms. "It has advanced with every other large city in the world, but it has kept its tradition, and that's what makes it so appealing."

YOUNG VICTORIANS TO MARRY IN MAY

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Strath, 2760 Burdick Avenue, are this weekend announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elenore Jean, to Mr. Nelson Albert Crisp, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Crisp, 2465 Cadboro Bay Road. The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 26, in First United Church at 8 p.m., with Rev. A. I. Higgins conducting the ceremony assisted by Dr. W. C. Wilson, Maid of honor will be Miss Margaret Rainey; junior bridesmaid, Miss Jean Crisp, sister of the groom-elect; best man, Mr. Darrell Burley and ushers, Mr. Tom Rimmer, Mr. Brian Ruddock and Mr. Robert Strath. (Photos by Joncas.)

White Cap the Accolade For Three Months' Work

In an interesting and impressive ceremony Friday evening in the pink and silver lounge of the Nurses' Home, members of the January class of 1959 in the Royal Jubilee Hospital School of Nursing received their caps.

These shining, stiffly starched caps are symbols of three months' preliminary work in the school and mark the wearers as having passed their probationary period. They are now full-fledged members of the nursing school.

In the ceremony, Miss Agnes Ault, educational director, greeted the guests and introduced Miss Lucie Woodrow, director of nurses, to the students, who spoke informally to them and presented the caps.

The student nurses then lighted miniature Florence Nightingale lamps from a larger replica representing the nursing school, as a symbol of their earnest desire to fulfill the nursing school pledges. Canon

Spoke to the class and presented each girl with a New Testament. Later, Mrs. Mary Wood conducted the student nurses choir in a group of songs. Miss Donna F. McLeod, Duncan, was presented with an award for leading student in the class.

The class includes Mary A. Avison, Silvertown, B.C.; Lorna Chisholm, Christine K. Hunter, Isabelle M. Leggett, Helen M. R. D. Ney, Barbara I. Singleton, Victoria; M. E. Anne Evelynson, E. Rebecca Morgan, Prince Rupert; Wanda A. Gray, Esquimalt; Marion L. Hansen, Salmo, B.C.; Barbara A. Hunt, Nanaimo; Donna F. McLeod, Duncan; Evangeline Moffitt, Radway, Alta.; Lois M. Nordan, Vancouver; Dorothy M. A. Peacock, Salmon Arm; Christine J. Seime, Quesnel; Helen Soroka, Calgary; Mary K. Sterling, Vernon; Sharon A. Stilwell, Shawinigan Lake, B.C.; P. Donalene Tilbe, Courtenay, and E. Carolyn Tunnacliffe, Invermere, B.C.

An Evening Wedding

Miss Mary-Agnes Cool, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Cool, Yukon Street, exchanged marriage vows Friday evening with Robert James Carver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Carver, Foul Bay Road. The ceremony was held in First United Church with Rev. A. I. Higgins officiating. Malcolm Hamilton, organist, played traditional wedding marches and "O Perfect Love." The altar was marked with baskets of spring flowers, and carnations with ribbon streamers were placed on guest pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of champagne-toned satin and lace with full train, long sleeves tapering into lily points at the wrists and a small Peter Pan collar.

Completing her ensemble, she wore a fingertip veil misting from a tiara of iridescent sequins, seed pearls and lace. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade centred with yellow roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. George Young, who wore a dusty rose ballerina-length dress and carried a large colonial bouquet of white and pink carnations. Her headress was of fresh blossoms. Junior bridesmaid, Miss Valerie Cool, sister of the bride, wore a pink dress and carried a colonial bouquet, and Little Penelope Cool, flower girl, wore a sky blue dress and carried a complementary colonial bouquet.

George Young was best man, and ushers, Roy Henderson and Ron Orton.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where spring flowers decorated the rooms and flanked the wedding cake which centred the bride's table. Joseph W. Carver proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, the bride wore a pink-flecked fitted suit with a navy blue duster coat, ten accessories, a large brimmed hat in pink dotted with tiny rosebuds, and a corsage of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Carver will make their home in Aldergrove, B.C.

Five Weavers' Exhibits Differ Although Same Materials Used

Five members of Victoria Handweavers' Guild who had been given small amounts of the same thread to weave as they desired, exhibited the results at a recent meeting.

Miss V. Ashdown had woven a Swedish lace mat, checked in blue; Mrs. J. S. Knight, a vanity set, in white with dainty colored borders; Mrs. G. Anstey, a bag of summer and winter thread; Mrs. L. E. Redden, a doll's skirt with border and vertical bands; Mrs. W. Taylor, a sampler showing a fishpond, a killer whale, a leaping hunter and a Peruvian llama and fish.

Miss Iola Worthington's white wool stole with fringe and deep silver borders won first place in the stole competition and Miss M. Turner's cream rayon scarf won the scarf competition. Judges were Miss F. Daniels, Mrs. W. Ellis and Mrs. I. H. Ball.

Mrs. A. G. Kinnis presided at the meeting and A. W. Mooney reported $138.13 on hand. Miss F. Daniels, convener of the standards committee, reported on the new schedule of prices suggested by her committee. A study group, in summer and winter weave, will be held in her studio, 1507 Wilmut Place, next Thursday afternoon and Friday evening.

Miss J. F. Wilkinson, a new member, and Mrs. J. Robinson, a visitor from New Westminster, were introduced. An article from the London Times was read by Miss Marjorie Hill.

ADVENTURES IN EATING VICTORIA STYLE

Comfort, Quiet, Fine Foods Hallmark James Bay Hotel

Comfortable cuisine.
This spells food at the 42-year-old James Bay Hotel, solid, dignified landmark of the venerable Victoria district hard by the site of provincial government.

The aura of quiet, untroubled residential life falls like a benison on the square, white hotel and its colonial dining room.

It's far enough from the downtown area to appeal to diners of a politely discriminating nature who, while opposed to hustle and bustle, don't want to take the sometimes lengthy drive to more remote eating establishments.

The Colonial Room, as it is known, seats 68 persons, and was recently renovated at a cost of $14,000. Large murals of early Victoria waterfront scenes, beautifully reproduced, adorn the walls. Oldest dates back to 1890.

Ceiling is heavily beamed; tables and chairs of excellent workmanship, reminiscent of early New England.

QUAKER WAITRESSES

Hotel owner the past two years, 35-year-old Lloyd Bolli who operated a motel in the Jasper, Alberta, area before taking over the James Bay, says plans call for an even more pronounced colonial theme. Being considered are frocks for waitresses based on modest Quaker clothes of a century and a half ago.

The establishment specializes in steaks, chicken and sea food, and on Sundays a traditional family dinner of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding.

While the dining room has a lounge licence—liquor, beer and wine may be served—it is not necessary to visit there for a tasty snack.

In the colorful Copper Room adjacent, where the bar is located, such items as "Beachcomber's Delight" may be purchased, with drinks. There of an evening, a roaring fire—reflecting on highly burnished copper—prawns, scallops, fish fingers and other delicacies are available.

The "Beachcomber's Delight," incidentally, consists of the above, together with cole slaw, tartar sauce and French fries.

Scroll Claims Misleading Says Scholar

WASHINGTON (AP)—A scholar of the international team working on the Dead Sea scrolls in Palestine said Thursday that superficial and misleading claims are being made about them.

Monksign Patrick W. Skehan, one of two Americans working on the project, said there have been attempts to connect Christianity with some of the texts that contain no basis for it.

"If this were done by theologians," he said, "it would be denounced as obscurantism of the worst kind. It is obscurantism, and nothing will put an end to it but publication of the texts."

Magr. Skehan, professor of semitic languages and literature on leave from the Catholic University of America, wrote from Jerusalem in a statement, released by the university.

"It is regrettably true that some of those making pronouncements on the significance of the Dead Sea manuscripts are much more interested in finding in them plausible counterparts to Christian teaching than in evaluating what the documents themselves say."

No one was named in Magr. Skehan's criticisms, but there have been numerous articles and publications suggesting that the scrolls produced the Dead Sea scrolls originated ideas later incorporated into Christianity.

Fifty years ago, or more, Victoria had a reputation up and down the coast for its eating places. This slipped to almost nothing in the 1930's and 40's. But in the last 10 years a number of individuals have made a decided effort to give the lower island area something distinctive, something special and something different in the way of eating, both in food and in atmosphere.

Advent of the new liquor law has helped in some degree. With the growth of the new places, "eating out," particularly at weekends, has become a new type of adventure for Victorians, as it also must be for visitors to the city. To assess how far the city restaurateurs have gone in providing better dishes, and pleasant surroundings, the Times assigned reporter Tony Dickson to visit the better type eating places, try their food and write what he found. In today's article he describes the James Bay Hotel dining room.

dark wine with the meat and the light wines with lighter foods. We tried a fine Australian white wine with the main course and found it more than palatable, somewhat speechless.

NOISY UNWELCOME

While family groups frequent the pleasant dining room, there is no trade with the noisy adolescent segment of the population. Clientele is aged 35 and up—business and professional men, wives and friends.

From noon until 2:30 luncheons are served. The establishment is popular at this time of day with those from downtown who want that little unfurled break in midday... to eat without the clamor of dishes and shouted short orders.

Dinner is from 5:30 to 8:30, and starting in May will be until midnight the seven days a week the dining room is open.

Reservations are not necessary, but come prepared to have food individually cooked. This takes from 15 to 20 minutes for dinners. At lunch, investment can be less in time and money. Soup, curried shrimp and coffee may be obtained for less than $1.

The James Bay cuisine is indicative that eating in Victoria today is again becoming a rewarding experience.

HEAVENLY SAUCE

Chief John Markoulas is an uncommunicative fellow, even with the management. So it was impossible to pry from him a heavenly recipe of mushroom sauce used with fried chicken.

We had it with poulet au pilaf. This is one-half a chicken. The pillard portion is monumental green pepper stuffed with fragrant spiced rice. Over all is poured the rare and delicious sauce.

Our dinner companion also enjoyed the sauce with his poulet au champagne—chicken fried in wine. With this were served mixed vegetables, bacon and baked, peeled tomatoes.

After soup, nice but undistinguished, a chef's salad of more than particular goodness, the chicken and accompaniments served like in a country home left us what speechless.

Two persons can eat as adequately on a $5 bill. It is money wisely spent for an hour's gastronomic entertainment.

Mr. Bolli endorsed our conclusions long established regarding wine. It is not mandatory to have

YOU SAID TO ME

By ETHEL TULL

You said to me: "I don't think anybody with brains in this day and age believes that stuff about the guidance of God."

You evidently think I am a very foolish person, and you are right. There are many things about which I know absolutely nothing, but in this one particular instance of seeking for and trying to live by the guidance of God, I have you at a disadvantage, for I have tried it and you have not.

What has your way of life done for you? You say you are "fed up with everything" because you have not received what you desire, but you do know that there is a deadly lack in yourself which prevents your good from coming to you. I know all about it, for I have been through the same experience myself. I tried to grab what I thought I needed for happiness, regardless of the rights of others, and it took God to show me how wrong I was, and how absolutely mistaken in my sense of values.

You go to church, as I do, but do you really believe in a God who knows you personally and has a plan for your life? Do you really believe that your sinful, selfish, self-centred heart needs to be changed, and that the Lord Jesus Christ can change your whole nature so that wonderful things are possible for you, and a life of fulfillment such as you have never dreamed of? Do you believe that our Lord spoke the truth when He said the Holy Spirit would come to us to guide us and "teach us all things?"

This is what the church teaches. Does nobody really believe it and live by it? Of course they do, and the guidance of God is very real to all who listen and obey. Why don't you try it?

Elegance Fashions This Season's Summer Bride

Daily Colonist Victoria, B.C., Sun., April 29, 1956 21

For the very young bride or for second weddings, the ballerina-length bridal gown is still a favorite. We show the informal bride in imported lace ballerina gown with easy fullness drawn to the back. Waist is banded in pleated satin.

Picture book bride wears a short-sleeved formal gown of imported white chantilly and nylon tulle. A fitted bodice dips into a long V at the torso. Lace is worked into front, side and back panels. Both skirt and slight train are lined in taffeta.

Be a Fragrant Bride

A beautiful bride has a beautiful fragrance. The beholders may be quite sure that anything that looks so pretty would naturally have a pretty aroma but the bride has taken care to produce this impression.

First she picked a fragrance for her wedding day. She did it by "trying on" various scents and picking one she liked. She checked on her future husband's taste by wearing it a few times before the wedding. The one she picked was light and feminine rather than heavy and sultry, even though she generally may have preferred the knock-out scents.

When her gown arrived, she hung a sachet pillow or scented shoulder cover on the hanger with it so the dress would be sure to swirl up the scent as she walked. She put the same scent in with her trousseau to add an extra dimension of femininity to all that loveliness.

Her bath on her wedding day included fragrance, either in bath salts, bath oil or soap. After her bath she splashed on cologne or toilet water. Her dusting powder matched.

After she dressed, she put the pure extract—perfume—on her pulse spots, including the wrists, crook of the arms, throat, temples and behind the ears.

And, just before she began her trip to become a wife, she used an atomizer to spray perfume all about her.

'Wedding Daze' Out If Etiquette-Perfect

Traditionally, it's the bride, groom who's nervous at the wedding. But the bride can be flustered, too, on her wedding day.

Best way to prevent stage fright all around is a wedding so smoothly planned that there's no chance for nervousness.

A church wedding is always rehearsed, of course, when there are more than two attendants. It should be rehearsed several times so that each member of the wedding party knows his role thoroughly.

It's the minister who decides, at rehearsal, which arm the bride will take as she goes up the aisle with her father.

The bride and her father are preceded by flower girl or page boy, maid or matron of honor, bridesmaids and ushers (except in some Anglican churches where the attendants always follow the bride). Waiting are the best man, the groom and clergyman. Bridesmaids and ushers go up the aisle in pairs only when there are equal numbers.

The father goes to sit with the mother in the first pew just as soon as he has given the bride away. Bride and groom always go down the aisle first, followed by the bride's attendants and the ushers.

If the church where you're to be married has two aisles, one may be used for the processional and one for the recessional. But if just one aisle is used for both, the second aisle goes undecorated and is reserved for the wedding guests.

In any case, the friends and family of the bride are seated on the left side of the church and those of the groom on the right.

In a double-ring ceremony, the maid or matron of honor has charge of the groom's ring until the right moment. She wears it or ties it with a bit of ribbon to her bouquet. The groom may wear his ring on either left or right hand, whichever he prefers. The ring is always a gift from the bride and it need not match her wedding ring.

At a formal wedding reception, the bride's mother is first in line. Next comes the father of the groom, the groom's mother and then the bride's father. Then comes the bride's party proper—the bride at the groom's right, the groom, matron or maid of honor and the bridesmaids.

This line is not broken until all of the guests have been greeted. Then the bride's mother, as hostess, leads the way to the tables.

If there is no bride's table, then food may be served buffet style if the menu is kept to just two courses. In this case, guests eat standing and the only necessary service is for removal of plates.

Choose Pretty Accessories

A sweater in a pastel shade is comfortable and becoming wear for a bride on her honeymoon.

A bright, light scarf in a small size can dress up the neckline. So can some colored pearls of the larger size.

New for a neckline is a collar of crocheted silk, decorated all over with a crunchy assortment of flowers, shells and leaves in pastel colors. They come in pink, blue, aqua or white, all good colors for the bridal season.

Fresh gloves, new stockings and a clean skirt complete an outfit for informal hours or in the country. Bright clear colors and soft fibres are important for accessories in this season. They make the wardrobe seem delicately fresh.

Early Plans Eliminate Jitters In Last Minute Bridal Rush

TORONTO (CP)—Any jitters a bride-to-be feels before she takes the matrimonial step will be heightened if arrangements for the wedding haven't been properly made.

A bride's counselling service at a department store here says the basis of a smoothly-run wedding is laid three months before the ceremony.

The first decision the future bride should make is the type of wedding—formal or informal—she will have. All other plans will be governed by this decision.

The date and time should be set three months in advance and the clergyman consulted to make sure that he and the church will be free for rehearsal as well as the ceremony. Accommodation for the reception should also be booked.

CHOOSE ATTENDANTS

At this point music and decorations should be discussed and the principals should decide upon their attendants and invite them to participate in ensuing activities.

Two months before the ceremony invitations and announcements should be ordered so they can be addressed in leisure time. The thoughtful girl also buys thank-you notes for future use, the counselling service says.

The wedding gown, be it simple or magnificent, is the focal point of the bridal picture. It should be chosen early so that attendants have plenty of time to acquire the style of gowns that the bride-to-be requests.

Accommodation for out-of-town guests should be arranged a month before the ceremony when invitations are sent out. The engagement is properly announced in the newspaper at this time also.

MORE PLANNING

Gifts for attendants, although customarily presented on the eve of the wedding should be bought well in advance to avoid last-minute, snap decisions. The cake should be ordered.

As much as it is in her power the bride-to-be should arrange to have pre-wedding social activities take place two to four weeks before the ceremony. During the latter two weeks it is best she be free as much as possible.

The personal trousseau must be checked for last-minute additions. Showers will have provided many necessities but the bride-to-be should make sure that she will have a well-stocked kitchen cupboard to return to from the honeymoon.

22 Daily Colonist Victoria, B.C., Sun., April 29, 1956

Wipe Out All Your Floral Problems Before They Reach Blossom Time

The first thing that you as a bride-to-be should learn is that procreation and wedding preparations go together like lemon pie and catsup. Second thing to straighten out is who gets the bill for what. Third thing is to delegate as many tasks as possible to other people: aunts, cousins, friends, tiny tots.

wedding that confuses most people is this: who foots the bill for the floral decorations? This is not a clean-cut issue, since your side pays for some of the flowers and his side pays for the rest.

Your father traditionally gets the bill for: Your flowers and those of your attendants, flowers for the reception and your mother's corsage. Your groom pays for his mother's corsage, boutonnières for himself and his ushers.

But it's becoming customary for the groom to send his bride her wedding bouquet. And sometimes, in some towns, the groom pays for all of the wedding flowers.

Your florist will, of course, design bouquets and floral decorations for your wedding to suit both your personal taste and your budget.

The matter of price varies throughout the country so the first thing you should do is tell your florist just how much you can afford to spend.

Flowers which are in season are the least expensive, so if you're on a low budget and yearning for those little, pale green orchids, sternly smother your yearning and get down to brass tacks.

Cutting the cake is one of the big moments of the wedding. But beforehand the wise bridal couple talk over who is to get the bill for the flowers—including the bride's bouquet and the posies which surround the cake.

Best year-around bargains in wedding flowers are carnations and roses. Both come in a number of colors. Lily of the valley costs more, but it is a traditional favorite. The use of color in flowers for the bridal bouquet is on the increase. This means you've a wider variety from which to

The summer bride can plan on cornflowers or delphiniums, geraniums or other pastel blooms, often combined with white. If you choose seasonal flowers, bouquets for a wedding with four attendants need not cost too much. Church and reception decorations are extra.

Some churches prohibit extensive floral decoration. In such instances, the florist is limited to one or two floral arrangements for the altar or chancel. If aisle markers or pew-end bouquets are used, they will cost extra unless you have friends with flowers in bloom.

Ingenuity Sets Table To Honor Bride-To-Be

Planning a shower for a summer bride-to-be? Perhaps, then, like some of the rest of us you're open to suggestions for settings that are as fancy, frivolous and feminine as such parties call for. Settings which won't require elaborate expenditures by the hostess or the guests are welcome.

Here's an idea used recently that fits all requirements. A feminine color scheme of rose petal pink-and-white for the refreshment table is lovely to look at and easy to put together.

Theme of the shower is eminently practical: guests are asked to bring one or two of the small, inexpensive gadgets that they find indispensable to housekeeping.

These are wrapped in pretty papers and presented with a flourish on tiered holders. Items may include almost anything from a stapler, sharp paring knife or potato peeler to measuring spoons, glass measuring cup, tongs or what-have-you.

Makings for the centerpiece are as close as your own cupboard and the local variety stores. Tiered holders for the gifts can be improvised from three opaque white glass plates, separated by a pair of short-stemmed, clear, glass candle holders.

Heart-shaped rose petal confetti pasted to a cardboard cone makes the fluttery parasol for the top of the holder. More of the petals, pasted or taped to pink crepe paper runners, trim the table centre.

Low glass candle holders are dressed up for the date in pink petal-trimmed crepe paper ruffles.

Perched on each napkin is a paper butterfly made with a pink pipe cleaner for the body and pink wings lightly speckled with painted dots.

To make the tiered holder you'll need three plates of graduated sizes—dinner, salad and bread-and-butter, for example.

Place one clear glass candle-holder upside-down, and the largest of the three plates and secure with transparent glue. Then glue the middle-size plate to the inverted base of this candle holder. Follow the same procedure with the second candle holder and the smallest plate.

Select the glue or paste according to whether you're going to leave the holder set up or take it apart after the party.

If you try it with inexpensive plates bought from the variety store, you can use a paste that dissolves later in dishwasher.

For the Bride

Use less makeup on your wedding day than you do normally. Most beauty experts say that the excitement of the big day in a woman's life heightens her color naturally. Better wear the paler shades of lipstick and rouge.

The Hope Chest

An expert in laundering says that "real" linen cloths should be washed separately from cottons as they are apt to pick up lint. Lace and openwork cloths are best hand-washed, although some, if they're not too fragile, could be machine washed if encased in a mesh bag to protect against snags and "roping."

The best place to dry fine linens is in the sun. They should be folded over the line. Pinning to the line may cause them to dry out of shape.

To the Bride!

Good Luck
and Happiness!

The Bride's Book at Bridgman's is a wonderful guide for the bride and family of the bride, in selecting the wedding gifts she most desires.

In this special book, prospective brides may list patterns they are saving in china, crystal and flatware and accessories. When this list is available to those who are selecting gifts, there is no uncertainty about the choice... the bride receives a much-wanted item instead of something chosen at random.

So many brides and their families and friends have found The Bride's Book a great help. If your wedding is in the offing, we suggest you enter your name soon.

Favorite dress of the 1956 bridesmaid is one with cover-up, designed to go partying on many occasions when the wedding ceremony is over. Full-skirted dress with long torso line (left) is in an apricot color, has yoke and small sleeves of tulle. Tulle treatment is used again at neckline of dress (centre) with flat bow at neckline. This is in ice blue. The empire line appears in lemon yellow dress with net top and skirt width achieved through soft, unpressed pleats. All three designs are by Murray Hamburger in chromspun taffeta. Best length for a bridesmaid's dress is ballerina.

Choose Ballerina Length Dresses To Serve You Later on in the Year

Those clouds of color, provided at every wedding by the bridesmaids' dresses, tend toward the deepened pastels this year.

The 1956 bridesmaid will look picture-pretty in her ballerina-length dress. But she's practical too. Her dress is chosen with price well in mind and with the condition that it can serve in her wardrobe later on.

Unlike this year's bride, who is formal and elegant, the bridesmaid wants to know that she's buying a double-duty dress, not just a useless dress to fold away in tissue paper when the wedding is over.

Therefore, she wants neckline cover-up and a shorter length than that chosen by the bride. She wants soft color, too, and favors the minty greens, pinks, blues, yellows and aquas. She likes bell-shaped dresses, embroidered organdies, taffetas and nylon chiffon.

Stoles and detachable fichus have been replaced by little sleeves, yokes of tulle, lace and net and the deep V neckline with complete shoulder cover-age.

The next photographers are the friends and family who will want to record the entire proceedings of the big day, from the nervous breakfast, to the rice and old shoes.

If the bride is lucky, her family and friends will have easy-to-operate cameras and enough film. And she should be ready for them.

The make-up should be subtle and soft. Too little is better than too much. Throat and exposed areas of the shoulders should match the face foundation and powder. Lipstick and rouge should be right. That pair of hands that will pop up in many pictures, complete with cherished diamond, cutting the cake, throwing the bouquet, shaking and holding other hands, should be unwrinkled and with nails polished, if at all, in soft pink.

When you know sister-in-law's camera is on you, try to look pleasant, but don't force a smile. Moisten your lips just before the shutter clicks. Try to avoid facing the camera head on. Turn slightly.

When the time comes to throw the bouquet, try to use the arm away from the camera, to avoid a headless picture. If your photographic fans don't think of it themselves, ask them to try to get pictures of children in the wedding party, along with you, and any grandparents who are there.

Puzzle No. 162

Some organizations spring about "July" — attractive to the eye if nice and a Boy Scout may often long for a will be trouble if no one pays attention. He gives orders he gives a great deal of the sort of man to work hard for on good will to remove from certain fabrics imposed a famous "Boler" a present of a model train, a boy who — if going in — a crime might well his his conscience perhaps

Time Essential For Mexico Visit

Mexico City and the other different and charming cities of Mexico are becoming more and more popular with Canadian motorists as a holiday spot.

The Republic of Mexico gives the tourist the feeling of being in a foreign country, a feeling that is missed in the United States because Canadians are pretty much at home anywhere in the U.S.

The spirit of adventure comes to the fore when one can thumb through the guide book, find the phrase "Deme treinta litros de gasolina," then drive into a gas station with a flourish and ask for 30 litres of gasoline just like a native.

(If left to open the conversation, the attendant possibly would say "Shall I fill it up?" but it is more fun in Spanish.)

The shops are grand, the people friendly, the main highways good, and the prices reasonable.

FIVE WEEKS NEEDED

Before a Mexican holiday can be considered, though, sufficient time must be found. Unless one wants to drive 600 to 700 miles per day, at least five weeks should be allowed. From Seattle to Los Angeles requires up to three days, from Los Angeles to Laredo is up to five days of steady driving through pretty hot country, and from Laredo to Mexico City via the Pan American Highway should be leisurely to give the touring party a proper view of the country.

Canadians should have passports, and a check on their car insurance policies to make sure they are valid in Mexico.

On arrival at Laredo it would be wise to check with the AAA to make sure all is in order both for going into Mexico and even more important, for being a Canadian and coming back to the United States from a foreign country.

Once into Mexico, it is well to remember that the pace is slow and that nearly everything can be done "manana." Mexico also is like every other nation in that a smile and courteous request will do more than arrogance and demands.

There is a bit of special advice for women. They may travel alone, as in any civilized country, but are advised to either know Spanish or have a will start from point to point in B.C. May 7 raising pennants at forest industry plants to signal start of Safety Week in the province.

A plane load of safety experts

B.C. Forest Products plants in Victoria plan a large program to kick off the five days of special attention to good safety practices.

All employees will wear lapel pins lettered with the single word "THINK" in brilliant red ink.

Everywhere, loggers and mill workers will be urged to wear hard hats, many provided by the Joint Committee on Forest Products Safety, labelled "Gull Guard."

A master score board made of clear planks will keep track of safety at mills throughout B.C. It will be set up at Workmen's Compensation Board headquarters in Vancouver and on planks representing defaulting mills ugly knot-holes will appear.

The committee hopes that all other industrial enterprises may be brought into the scope of safety week next year.

On the aircraft, provided by Pacific Western Air Lines will be Joe Morris, president of District 1 International Woodworkers of America; J. Edwin Eades, chairman of Workmen's Compensation Board; J. T. Atkinson, IWA safety director; reporters, photographers and others.

World-Wide Adventure for YMCA Workers

Distant Lands Called 'Home'

Men with industrial, agricultural or educational experience seeking a new field and a tinge of adventure in a far-off land could go to work for the YMCA World Service.

"We are always looking for people with experience willing to go overseas and do their work," secretary Arnold Ward said Friday.

"It's a sacrifice, oftentimes. Workers have to take their families, live in new climates, sometimes very warm and uncomfortable ones."

But the work is rewarding, he said.

Even the United Nations Organization asks YMCA World Service for advice in many matters concerning welfare and rehabilitation of peoples and lands overseas.

"After all, we've been at it 70 years," Mr. Ward pointed out.

The Toronto man is here as part of a tour of the western YMCA's to stimulate interest of local associations in raising money for world service work.

Countries which have attained political independence recently have sought YMCA aid to develop their resources and educational methods. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is one leader to ask for help.

Incentive money to start projects is provided in countries being helped from World Service funds. The bulk of money and materials comes from countries themselves, however.

Some say they cannot stand the bullfight because they are sorry for the bull, which usually fights a losing battle for his life, and that the "bull has not a chance."

In defence of the sport, the "aficionados" say the fighting bull leads a better life than that raised for the abattoir, and in the heat of fighting suffers little during the 15 minutes in the ring.

Certainly some tourists go expecting to be horrified and instead become fascinated. Others go bravely and come away with a feeling of revulsion. It is up to the individual to find out for himself.

AT THE WHEEL

Hans Gruber

It is time someone launched a strong protest against this ever-widening, deplorable trend of "warning-lights" in lieu of proper dash-board instruments.

Not long ago, the cheapest and simplest car had, as a matter of course, at least five gauge-type instruments supplied as standard equipment: an oil pressure gauge, an ammeter, a speedometer combined with odometer and, on costlier cars, with a trip-mileage recorder; an engine heat indicator, and a fuel gauge. There is a point to the order in which these instruments are enumerated just above; they are named in order of importance, in this writer's opinion.

Today, with cars costlier than ever and mechanically more complicated and advanced than ever, the majority lack what is undoubtedly the most important protective instrument, namely, the oil pressure gauge. It supplies the most vital information as to the well being of an engine, and might be compared to the instrument used by physicians to determine a person's blood pressure.

The careless driving charge arose from a two-car accident at Foul Bay and Lansdowne on April 4 when Clough pulled out from a stop sign on Foul Bay and was in collision with a car travelling east on Lansdowne.

Total damages were estimated at $750.

Clough, a plumber, said he never filed a report of the accident, hoping that insurance could be obtained and he could have his licence returned.

He said he needed to drive to carry heavy tools.

Clough's previous record consisted of six convictions for driving without a licence, three speeding offences, three of driving while suspended, one of driving while impaired, one of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and one of driving contrary to a licence restriction.

The things preserved must be of real significance, the article says. "While other nations are proud of a history that goes back to the night of time, we belong to the sunrise. But our past is just as vital as theirs."

"The importance of our memorials is that they are new. Every fort built, every portage broken around a waterfall, every palisade erected by an adventurous community, was an advance, a broadening of horizons, something daringly new."

18th Driving Conviction Brings 30 Days

A young man with a driving record of 18 convictions compiled in five courts was sentenced to 30-day concurrent jail terms when he appeared in Oak Bay police court Friday on three of the charges.

Robert H. Clough, about 23, 4935 Cordova Bay Road, was convicted on a charge of careless driving. He pleaded guilty to charges of failing to report an accident and driving while his licence was suspended.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall imposed 30-day terms on each charge, and ruled they would be concurrent.

The careless driving charge arose from a two-car accident at Foul Bay and Lansdowne on April 4 when Clough pulled out from a stop sign on Foul Bay and was in collision with a car travelling east on Lansdowne.

Total damages were estimated at $750.

Oyster Farmers Planting 2,000 Cases of New Seed

Will Harvest
25-30 Gallons
For Each Case

Planting of a record 2,000 cases of oyster seed from Japan is nearing completion on the commercial oyster beds of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Oysters do not propagate naturally in the tidal waters of B.C., which seldom reach the 70-degree temperatures required for oysters to release their spawn. Thus, the oyster farmers must import seed for re-stocking. Japan is the sole supplier.

The growing appetite of British Columbians for the queen of sea foods—the oyster—has shot the experiments of a few years ago into a $316,000-a-year industry.

More and more, the calls in B.C. restaurants for "half a dozen fried" or "half a dozen raw" have stimulated oyster farmers to overcome an inherent barrier to supply the demands.

Of the 84,814 gallons of oysters harvested from the lower mainland and Vancouver Island beds last year, most were marketed locally in a fresh or fresh-frozen state. Some are canned for stew and a small percentage smoked and packed flat for the hors d'oeuvre market.

BIGGEST PLANT

John Christopherson, manager of the biggest oyster packing plant in the province, estimates a return of 25 to 30 gallons from each of the 775 cases he is seeding this year. It takes 2½ to 3½ years for the seed, planted in the mud at the water's edge at low tide, to become a mature oyster.

The bulk of the industry is concentrated in the Boundary Bay area on the mainland, 24 miles south of Vancouver, and on the east coast of Vancouver Island from the southern tip 80 miles north to Comox.

The industry increases in volume across the United States border as the water gets warmer.

NEW EXPERIMENT

Meanwhile, another experiment in oyster growing is being watched with keen interest. Up to two years ago, scientists regarded the south coast waters of B.C. as having the minimum temperature for successful cultivation of oysters; that development could not occur satisfactorily in water under 50 degrees.

This theory is being challenged by a group in Prince Rupert, 480 miles north of here, where the water rarely rises to 45 degrees. Several thousand seeds have been planted there during the last two years and some growth has been noted. Maturity is expected in about five years.

LANGFORD—An executive meeting of Belmont High School Association will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the high school.

Careful Timing For Big Blast

Ripple Rock Detonation Date Will Take Fish Into Account

OTTAWA (CP)—The blast intended to destroy Ripple Rock, west coast navigational hazard 10 miles north of Campbell River, should go off at a time when the least possible damage can be done to fish in the area, Works Minister Winters said Friday.

GRADUATE—Ruth Elouise Trousil of Sidney graduated recently as a Trans-Canada Air Lines stewardess, following an intensive four-week course in Montreal. Miss Trousil received her education at Mount View High School. She graduated as a nurse in Nov., 1955, from the Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster, B.C. After working at St. Joseph's Hospital, Miss Trousil joined TCA March 26.

FOOD FIRM CHALLENGES CLOSING RULE

ALBERNI—Webber and Co. Merchants Ltd., operator of Alberni Super Valu, faces a second charge of contravening the city's shop closing by-law. The company was convicted April 19 for staying open until 9 p.m. on a Friday, and store officials announced they would appeal the conviction and continue to defy the by-law.

The second charge was laid on instruction of Mayor Ben Wright, and is scheduled to be heard in police court Tuesday.

Vancouver Island Viewpoint

From Up-Island Newspaper Editorial Columns

Welcome Streets Budget

THE COWICHAN LEADER—Most city ratepayers will welcome the decision of their council to embark upon a large program of street improvement this year, even at the cost of an additional mill on taxes.

On new work and equipment, on maintenance and repairs, a total amount of $77,850 has been appropriated, almost the yield of the general tax rate.

A shopping and service centre such as the City of Duncan cannot afford to ignore its streets; they form its welcome mat to residents for miles around.

Unfortunately, visitors are not impressed by the argument that streets must be tampered with if new underground services are to be laid. During the past winter there has been more than the usual amount of this work carried out. The 1956 program, when carried out, should go a long way toward restoring the city's reputation for neatness and convenience.

An Act of Faith

THE LADYSMITH CHRONICLE—The directors of the Ladysmith General Hospital and the Ladysmith and District Hospital Foundation last week performed an act of faith in order that this district may have a new hospital building this year instead of next year or the year after. They authorized a call for tenders to be issued at a time when the new building fund is still $10,000 short of the required $100,000. There are pledges covering $7,000 of this $10,000 gap and the directors acted in the sure knowledge that the people who have built the fund so close to the objective will see that the objective is reached.

In a sense what the two organizations have done is bet on the desire and determination of this community to have a new hospital this year, and people who know the temper of the community well are convinced that it is the safest bet anyone could make. Ladysmith has a commendable habit of coming through in the pinches and it is unthinkable that construction of an institution as important as this one should be delayed for the lack of such a comparatively small sum.

Not Quite Far Enough

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY—In a few years Canada's airports will have caught up with her airlines, notes The Financial Post. Developing this theme the newspaper states: "Toronto's miserable and shabby Malton terminal will be replaced by an ultra-modern building; work may start in 1957. Montreal's new Dorval terminal will be ready in 1958. Ottawa, too, is on the new terminals list. Winnipeg is another that should be."

We agree with everything The Post says about airports. We'd be even more happier still if the financial newspaper had gone one step further and taken a quick glimpse at Patricia Bay Airport's terminal facilities. Thousands and thousands of air travellers every year arrive and depart through a shabby structure rebuilt from a temporary, wartime hut.

Patricia Bay Airport urgently requires a new administrative building which would include facilities for air travellers. We appreciate the problems of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Winnipeg. We hope Ottawa will appreciate our problems too.

His department, which has assigned two Vancouver firms to the job, is working in co-operation with the federal fisheries department, he said.

He spoke during Commons consideration of his departmental spending estimates. Among them is an item for $1,000,000 towards removal of Ripple Rock.

The government last October signed a contract to pay $2,639,878 to two Vancouver firms to pulverize the rock with an explosion in an underground tunnel. They were given two and a half years to do the job.

Thomas Barnett (CCF, Comox-Alberni) said residents in the area, especially the Indians, have expressed concern over the possible effects on fish stocks.

Chemainus Registers 70 Baseballers

CHEMAINUS—More than 70 youngsters have registered to play Little League baseball here, and are working out under the guidance of several old-time baseballers.

Lineups of the four teams will be decided upon next week, and play will get underway May 15 and continue until Aug. 3. The youngsters will play their games Tuesdays and Fridays in the park adjoining the senior diamond.

At a recent meeting of the Little League committee it was decided to buy sweat shirts and caps this year. One full set of uniforms already is on hand and will be used to outfit an all-star team from the league for inter-community games.

Jim Reid, secretary-manager of Canadian Legion Branch 191, has been named delegate to the Legion Dominion convention to be held in Vancouver June 10 to 15.

The local branch will send a large representation to the travelling gavel ceremonies to be held at Ganges May 5. The branch will hold a church parade, with full color party, to the Anglican Church May 6.

The Legion is sponsoring a team in the local Little League and expects to donate $150 to the Little League committee.

Cy Shillito was elected president of the 10-pin bowling league at the group's annual meeting. Reg Hankey, Jr., was named secretary-treasurer, and H. Haddon is recorder.

Trophy for winning league play went to the Sam Yee team, with Europe Hotel runner-up. Europe Hotel won playoff prize money, while Longshoremen finished in second place.

Harold Hagg finished the year with the high average of 169; Hugo Hagg had the high three of 643, and Joe Carmichael had the high single game with a score of 246.

Catholic Youth Present 5 Plays At Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Five Vancouver Island Catholic youth organizations will stage plays Sunday afternoon and evening in Nanaimo Senior High School auditorium in their annual festival.

Miss Anne Mosman, Yellow Point, will be adjudicator. One Victoria group will stage "The Ghost Train," and the second, made up of St. Joseph's Hospital nurses and sailors from HMCS Naden, will present "Coming Around the Mountain."

Port Alberni entries will be "Georgie Porgie" and "Evening Dress Indispensable." Nanaimo CYO will stage "The Hasty Heart."

Indian Counsellor Dies at Tofino

TOFINO (CP)—George Dan Simonds, councillor to the chief of the Opitash Indian band, died here after a brief illness.

The elderly Indian was highly regarded by his people. He continually stressed the importance of higher education and encouraged Indians to strive to produce their own professional men.

Miners to Sponsor Cumberland May Fete

CLOCK PULLS FAST ONE ON SUNDIAL

Clocks and sundials today agreed to disagree until Sept. 29. They will officially come to parting of ways at 2 a.m. Sunday, when clocks move ahead one hour for Daylight Saving Time. Marge Goodwin chose noon to set her clock for last time by sundial. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

ON STANDARD 4 YEARS, MISSED ONLY ONE DATE

WINNIPEG (CP)—Greater Winnipeg goes on Daylight Time this weekend but there's one watch that won't change. Resources Minister Charles Greenlay will keep his wrist watch on Standard Time as he has done for the last four years. It's both a matter of principle with Mr. Greenlay, who opposes Daylight Time as "an awful nuisance," and a question of convenience. Much of Mr. Greenlay's ministerial time is taken up with problems in rural areas where time does not change. Mr. Greenlay says he has missed only one appointment in four years. He got to church once just as the rest of the congregation was getting ready to go home.

Arab Refugees Plan March Into Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—More than 250,000 Arab refugees living in the Gaza strip were reported today preparing a "peaceful" mass march back to their homes in Israel. United Nations Relief Agency officials disclosed the plan as UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld flew to Cairo to start a second round of conferences to strengthen shaky peace agreements between Arabs and Jews. The relief workers said reports circulating in the Gaza strip's overcrowded refugee camps indicated the patience of the poverty-stricken Arabs with the United Nations' eight-year efforts to solve their problem was wearing thin. They said a mass march along the strip's 27-mile border would be almost impossible to stop. They said reports circulating since February have set June as the target date. "If they decide to march, who could stop them?" one UN official said. "You can't shoot a quarter of a million people." About 214,000 refugees are crowded into eight camps along the Gaza strip and others live in abject poverty in towns and villages on nine cents worth of food a day. He calls it a "snooper-scope."

B.C. Tories Rescind Drew Censure

B.C. Progressive Conservative Association today rescinded its two-year-old motion of non-confidence in national Tory leader George Drew. The action, taken at the quarterly executive meeting held in the Empress Hotel, paves the way for complete unification of federal and provincial Tories in B.C. The rescinding motion was presented by Robert Patch, Victoria, second vice-president, the mover of original non-confidence motion which climaxed the 1954 "Vernon rebellion."

UNANIMOUS

Some 42 delegates to the quarterly meeting approved the rescinding motion unanimously. A statement from the conference said:

"Following a report by Deane Finlayson (provincial party leader) and S. Harrison Smith to the quarterly executive meeting of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association, on deliberations with the federal council, the following motion was unanimously passed:

"Whereas unfavorable conditions existing in the Conservative party of B.C. in 1954 resulted in a non-confidence motion in the national leader:

"And whereas the national leader has recognized these conditions and has taken steps to rectify them, therefore be it resolved the said motion be rescinded."

Officials would not elaborate on what steps are being taken toward settling the differences which existed in 1954 and previous years.

"It will be a gradual thing," a spokesman said. "All indications are that everything is now moving in the direction of one unified organization of Conservatives in B.C."

26 BANDS TO JOIN IN 'MAPLE LEAF'

Greatest congregation of bands ever to play in Victoria, the B.C. Schools Band and Orchestra Conference will end tonight at Memorial Arena in a blaze of color and sound. Twenty-six bands and orchestras will perform one selection each and en masse, will play "Maple Leaf Forever," conducted by University of Washington consultant Walter Welke, and "Abide With Me" conducted by orchestral consultant, Clifford Evans. (See Page 15.)

Rain Due? 'No' Says Forecaster

This area is hanging on in its effort to equal the all-time spring dry-spell record of 29 days in a row without measurable precipitation, set in 1951.

Today will be the 22nd consecutive day of the current dry spell without rain—if the cloud cover behaves as the meteorological office expects it to.

"Cloudy, becoming sunny," is the forecast, both for today and Sunday.

Temperatures are expected to be a little cooler, ranging from 45 to 60 degrees.

SUN GONE?

Although the clouds are unlikely to bring rain, they have ended any possibility of this April matching 1951's record of 303 hours of sunshine during the month.

There were 7.7 hours recorded Friday, to bring the month's total to date to 252.5 hours, compared with 1951's 271.4 hours for the first 27 days.

Clouds here are the result of a mass of moist air from the Pacific, suitable for clouds and the "odd sprinkle," according to the weather office.

Investments by U.S. In Canada to Grow

VANCOUVER (CP)—Washington State Senator William C. Goodloe, 36, here for a radio forum, said Friday night United States investment in British Columbia will "increase tremendously" in the next few years.

The Republican senator said electric power, forestry products and natural gas are some of the fields in which the increased investment will be felt. "Washington needs your province's resources," he told reporters, "and we consider B.C. a good sound investment." Senator Goodloe said: "We Americans are continually looking for new investment frontiers."

The senator, defeated in his bid to become mayor of Seattle last month, said "There's room for improvement in American-Canada relations."

"Don't get alarmed," he added, "there will always be room for improvement."

Two o'clock Sunday morning is when a lot of people often misplace an hour or so with no thought of saving daylight.

Ain't heard so many comments about a rainless Spring since last year, when we had the opposite.

Yukon Sneers At B.C. Plan

Northern Coolness Given Bennett's Annexation Scheme

Northern residents strongly indicated today they want no part of a proposal by Premier Bennett to unite B.C., the Yukon, and part of the Northwest Territories into a single province.

The premier hadn't completed his speech on the subject before a Prince Rupert audience before the first cool wave of reaction swept down from the Yukon.

And in Ottawa federal authorities announced they will oppose any attempt by B.C. to annex the northern territories.

The premier made the first mention of his proposal in an interview at Kitimat, Alcan's smelter city. By the time he reached Prince Rupert, Yukon residents provided their answer.

Even the bait of a 600-mile extension of B.C.'s Pacific Great Eastern Railway into Whitehorse failed to deter John Phelps, territorial council member, native Yukoner, and operator of Whitehorse's electrical system, from remarking:

"It stinks!"

90% AGAINST

A poll conducted by the Yukon Star showed 90 per cent opposition to the invitation to unite with B.C.

"B.C. is big enough anyway," said W. D. McBride, a leader of the Whitehorse Historic Society. "Taxes are all we can stand in this city now. If B.C. took over, they'd go up some more."

Publisher Harry Boyle of The Star said "many of us came up here to get away from too much organization."

"We have our own color and character. And I say let's keep it," said Mr. Boyle.

Premier Bennett told his audience he was so confident his proposal would be accepted that the PGE has already ordered survey parties out in the field, making preliminary studies of the railway extension.

"We don't want to gobble up the Yukon and the Northwest Territories," he said, "but we feel that it would be to the advantage of us all to be together in the great expansion of the north."

Ottawa reaction was: "There would be no advantage for the territories in such a union. The north is at the beginning of its economic development, and needs vast sums of money which only the federal government can supply."

Authorities in the federal capital said it is possible the Yukon and the territories will some day become provinces in their own right, when they become more populated and able to stand on their own economic feet, but "at the moment it would be better for them to remain under federal jurisdiction."

The 207,000 square mile Yukon and 1,300,000 square mile Northwest Territories are administered by the federal government, with the assistance of the territorial council.

The provincially-owned PGE is now snaking its way toward Fort St. John in the Peace River, and Premier Bennett said it could be continued parallel to the Alaska Highway to Whitehorse "if Yukoners agreed to the move."

He said that while Yukon residents may be skeptical of joining B.C. because of its 5 per cent sales tax, that same tax would give them free hospital and other social services.

Langley Man, 51, Charged in Savage Killing of Child

LANGLEY (CP)—Gerald E. Eaton, 51-year-old ferry worker, was charged with murder today a few hours after the broken body of Carolyn Moore, eight, was found about four miles from her home.

Inspector G. A. Gerrie, in charge of the New Westminster, B.C., RCMP subdivision, said the girl was beaten to death. "She was savagely beaten."

He said he did not believe she was sexually attacked, but "that will have to wait for the medical evidence."

The girl vanished after school Thursday, while on her way to meet her mother at a nearby church. Langley is 30 miles east of Vancouver, a bush-covered district cut by side roads.

Eaton worked aboard the tiny provincial government ferry plying between Barnston Island and the south side of the Fraser River. He is married and father of one child.

The officer said Eaton was arrested early this morning on "information received." He was questioned for some time, "then we found the body."

The schoolgirl's body was found off a rutted side road, uncovered and lying in bush. The spot is about eight miles from Langley.

"She must have been taken there by car," the inspector said.

At the height of the hunt, more than 150 persons were tramping through the bush turned wet with the first rain in more than 20 days.

Toward the end of the search, sound trucks were cruising the district urging farmers and other property owners to check their barns and ditches.

Langley's small RCMP detachment was reinforced by radio cars and officers from Cloverdale, Chilliwack, Burnaby, New Westminster and Maillardville.

The search spread and an RCMP dog was brought in. Later a light airplane joined the hunt.

Langley's small RCMP detachment was reinforced by radio cars and officers from Cloverdale, Chilliwack, Burnaby, New Westminster and Maillardville.

The win assured Leeds of second place in Division II. Sheffield Wednesday, which previously clinched first place, also will be promoted for next season.

This was the last Saturday on which there will be a full schedule of league games.

Relegated from the First to Second Division were Huddersfield, which today defeated Bolton Wanderers, 3-1, and Sheffield United, which lost 3-1 to Tottenham Hotspur.

Grimsby Town, which defeated Bradford City 2-0 today, was previously assured of the Division III Northern championship and promotion to the Second Division.

Leyton Orient, Southern section champion, lost 3-1 to Bournemouth.

Volcano Spits Back At Planes

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A sleeping volcano woke up Friday and fired an angry blast of smoke and cinders at a couple of air force pilots.

Capt. Lloyd Kelly and Lieut. Harry Krebs of Elmendorf air force base said they dipped down and buzzed the mountain at 300 miles an hour in their jet trainer plane—just out of curiosity.

Kelly said they noted a peak with a crater at the top and dipped a wing to peek in. The mountain belched an immense cloud of smoke and cinders and the pilots left the area at top speed.

From their description the mountain apparently was Mount Trident in Alaska's famous valley of 10,000 smokes, 300 miles southwest of Anchorage.

O GOD turn our steps to Thy house again tomorrow that we may rid ourselves of fear and fret and open our minds and hearts once again to the call of Thy Son, our Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

LIVE 'TEDDY' FOR PRINCESS

"Oh, isn't he cuddly," Princess Anne cried, when she saw Nikki, the Russian bear cub, who is pictured here with his keeper. The baby bear, gift to Anne from Marshal Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev, was taken from London Zoo, where he is living, to Windsor, and shown to the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and the Royal children.

Riding Clubs Active in May 24 Plans

Horsemen Announce Program of Events

Program of events in senior and junior horse shows planned in connection with Victoria Day celebrations were announced today by Victoria Riding Academy and Victoria Riding Club.

A total of 27 events are planned with the junior horse show taking place May 19 and the senior show May 21. Both will be held on the riding club grounds on Cedar Hill Cross Roads. Starting time is 2 p.m. in each case.

First of the children's events will be equitation for ages seven to ten inclusive, who will walk, trot and canter their mounts.

In the hunter hack event, walk, trot, canter and gallop may culminate in taking of two jumps. The jumping (maiden) event is open to children who have never won a first place ribbon in hunter or jumper class in any show. Performance of the rider only will count.

Seat and hands event, youngsters 14 to 18 inclusive may require individual performance at walk, trot and canter. Children's Hunter, open to youngsters over a select course will be judged on performance, manners, way of going, conformation, substance and soundness.

Maiden equitation for children who are previous non-winners will include three-foot jumps. In the open jumping event jumps will be up to four feet.

A pony class event will be open to ponies 14.2 hands and under. Open hack event will be judged for walk, trot, canter, ability to back easily and stand quietly while rider mounts and dismounts.

A junior jumping event will be open to children under 14. There will be an equitation event for children 11 to 13 inclusive. Last event is team jumping.

Entries close May 12 with post entries accepted at double fee until noon of show day. Parents' permission must be obtained on club forms.

Prizes range from $5 to $35. Entry and fees should be sent to Miss Patricia Jones, 2946 Westdowne. Committee in charge includes Mrs. J. Dunbar, Mrs. D. B. Carley, Miss Judy Mangin, Miss Pat Jones, Miss Barbara Williams, Miss Bonnie Green and Mrs. Thompson.

The senior events, judges to be announced, will include novice jumping, hack, middle and heavyweight hunter performance, ladies' saddle class, working western, team jumping, western pleasure, jumping (maiden), stake race, open jumping, sack race, light weight hunter, hack under 15.2, pair jumping and bareback wrestling.

Anti-Red Plots Foiled in U.K.

Underground Plans to Kill Khrushchev Nipped by Yard

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A British government source said today that two anti-Communist underground groups had plotted to assassinate Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev during the visit of the Soviet leaders to Britain.

"One of the organizations was reported to be centred on the Continent and the other in Britain," the source said.

Both Scotland Yard and the foreign office had been tipped off, and agents had identified the plotters as "emigrants."

Scotland Yard declined comment.

Two British newspapers say the vigilance of Scotland Yard blocked the plot. There were no major incidents during the visit of the Soviet chiefs.

The Daily Express and Daily Sketch report that secret agents on the Continent tipped British security officials on the reported conspiracy long before the Soviet premier and Communist party head arrived on their goodwill mission.

The famed British force didn't relax until the Soviet chiefs boarded the Russian cruiser Ordzhonikidze at Portsmouth Friday and Khrushchev's shouted "stay healthy... goodbye, good luck!" echoed across the docks.

The Express says the plotters were members of "a small but effective underground anti-Communist society" on the Continent, and had "drawn lots as to which man would make the attempt."

All known members of the underground organization were barred from entering the country, the paper adds, and "checks on White Russians who used to serve in Russia's navy were made, as it was possible the plotters would try to mine part of the River Thames when B and K visited Greenwich by boat."

The Daily Sketch said "just who the plotters were was never quite established."

Today there was an unmistakable air of relief in London that the visit was over.

Pact Signed by Japan

MANILA (AP)—Japan and the Philippines Friday initiated drafts of an $800,000,000 reparations agreement. It was the second—and largest—settlement of war obligations Japan has accepted to date. The Japanese in 1954 reached a $200,000,000 accord with Burma.

QOR's Win Plaudits From Area General

Men of Second Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, are unbeatable if they stay as sharp as they are now, their area commander told them Friday after annual inspection.

It was Brig. George Kitchen's fourth inspection of the Gordon Head Unit since its arrival early last summer from duty in Korea.

"I would like to congratulate you all on keeping up such a high standard."

"You have made a great name for yourselves here in Victoria and in B.C.," the officer said. He advised them:

"Get to know the civilian people... stay as smart as you are, and nothing can beat you."

His words were heard also by more than 200 spectators, the largest public turnout for a formal occasion yet seen by the unit in Victoria.

About 400 men paraded in four companies with their band, the Battalion Bugles, and ceremonial ax-bearing Battalion Pioneers, all led by Rtn. Deane Horn, the unit's Great Dane mascot trimmed out in his individual dress jacket in regimental colors red and green.

COLOURFUL UNIT

A colorful unit, QORs sparked in bright mid-afternoon sunlight, their distinctive red, green and black fittings and insignia broken by the flash of silver from badges, bugles and drums.

Shouting commands across the wind-swept parade square was CO Lieut. Col. W. H. V. Matthews.

A repeat performance is scheduled for May 3, next Thursday, when Western Command general officer commanding Maj. Gen. Chris Vokes makes his annual inspection.

He will also see troops at Work Point.

Chest Denies Aid Refusal to Esquimalt Women

Community Chest president R. B. Wilson today denied that the welfare agency refused aid to three Esquimalt aged women last Christmas.

J. E. Carey, Esquimalt Community Club secretary-treasurer, said earlier he knew three persons who applied for Chest help and were refused.

A total of nine names were turned over to the Chest Christmas Bureau, four of whom received hampers from the bureau.

Two others were living in the Salvation Army home and were assured help by that organization.

Of the other three, two lived with children who were in a position to provide proper care, and the last person, not needing a Christmas hamper, was given a small gift of money.

Labor Body Winds Up With Rush

TORONTO (CP)—The executive council of the new Canadian Labor Congress today took over the job of rounding out the shape of the 1,000,000-member organization whose birth was presided over by 1,600 delegates from across Canada.

The five-day founding convention ended Friday in a flurry of business which left almost 100 resolutions to be dealt with by the executive.

More than 100 resolutions covering subjects from human rights, communism, forced arbitration, housing, education and automation were passed before the delegates wound up the session.

Claude Jodoin, newly-elected president of the CLC, told members of Communist-dominated unions they would do well to change allegiance to a CLC-affiliated union.

URGES NEW LEADERS

"Get rid of your Communist leadership and you are welcome in the ranks of labor," the 42-year-old leader said.

Delegates decided Communist delegates may attend future conventions of the CLC but their unions will be denied affiliation.

The congress, a merger of the 600,000-member Trades and Labor Congress and the 400,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, voted authority to its executive to negotiate with other unions to increase its strength.

Delegates worked out a five-point program representing the immediate aims of the CLC:

1. A national health insurance program.
2. A contributory national industrial pension plan.

3. A national labor code to replace existing federal or provincial labor legislation.
4. Implementation of a program of full employment.

5. Assistance for underdeveloped countries.

Delegates adopted a resolution submitted by Dovan Swales of Winnipeg, chairman of the committee on human rights, which pledged active support to the maintenance and expansion of freedom in Canada.

A succession of speakers warned any threat to the right to strike was a threat to the trade union movement in general.

Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg, a CCF member of Parliament and a member of the International Typographical Union, said Prime Minister St. Laurent had threatened rail unions with compulsory arbitration each time there was talk of a strike to back up their demands.

Frank Hall, chairman of the master negotiating committee of rail unions, said under the Labor Act, railway employees have the right to strike. Any special legislation to deny that right must be opposed.

Book Lover Marooned by Rising Tide

A 21-year-old woman marooned on a rock off Oak Bay golf course Friday night when a rising tide prevented her returning to shore, was whisked to safety by police.

Miss Helena De Lazarko, 929 Island road, had perched comfortably on the rock at the foot of Newport to escape a brisk wind and read a book.

Miss De Lazarko said she realized she was trapped on the rock at about 7.30 p.m. when she noticed the rock surrounded by the rising tide.

She stood on top of the rock, waving to attract attention of a passing motorist or someone in a nearby house.

Mrs. W. R. Hobbs, 677 Beach, spotted her as darkness was closing in and quickly notified police.

PAPA BUSY TODAY

12 Say 'I Will' At Mass Wedding

BLENHEIM, Ont. (CP)—Dutch immigrant Leo Dorsers waited four times down the aisle with daughters today, then two of his sons met brides at the altar and 12 newlyweds said "I will."

Flashbulbs and floodlights lit up the mass ceremony in the little 76-year-old Roman Catholic church of St. Mary, which stands in the centre of this southwestern Ontario farm town.

There was standing room only—and not much of that—in the 100-seat balcony, only accommodation for uninvited guests.

Six times the bearded rector, Rev. J. Willibrord, asked the Dorsers to take their places "for better or for worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health."

RINGS LABELLED
He was flanked by two deacons, four servers and a little girl who held a satin cushion with recesses for the six wedding rings, each with a label bearing the groom's name.

Brown-cowled Franciscan friars of Father Willibrord's little monastery, two blocks from the church, stood at either side of the altar. After the 40-minute vow-taking, there was an hour-long solemn nuptial high mass.

Several hundred of the 2,800 townspeople waited outside the church to watch the couples leave in a convoy of pink-ribboned limousines. Hundreds more lined the main street to cheer them on to a town hall reception in a procession of local military and community organizations led by a brass band.

It's been a hectic week in Blenheim. Merchants, catching the spirit of the gala event, decked their shops with bunting. Dozens of neighbors have aided the amity in preparations.

The mass wedding raises to 10 the number of children in the Dorsers family who have married. There are five other children still unmarried.

U.S. House Delays Atomic Ship Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives appropriations committee Friday disallowed, for the time being at least, an administration request for funds to build an atomic-powered tanker and two other experimental merchant ships.

The committee withheld the $37,900,000 requested for the three ships "pending further advice and consultation" with the House merchant marine committee, which has questioned the maritime administration's authority to build the vessels.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Between Times is back to normal again today. Namely, ag'in progress.

The progress I am ag'in today is the progress which has eliminated the cradle.

I mean the honest-to-goodness, trough-like cradle on rockers, which, a few generations ago, provided baby with the restful motion most conducive to a quiet snooze.

The disappearance of the cradle is a phenomenon to be viewed with the utmost alarm.

In case you think this great revelation came to me in a flash of inspiration, it didn't. It came after reading an article in the current Satevepost, which decries the passing of the cradle from the land.

But the Post article views with alarm from a different viewpoint than I do.

The Post article is upset because the cradle was such a useful instrument for putting the baby in the land of nod, when the baby was all for whooping and hollering and raising general pandemonium.

The Post article says the cradle not only lulled baby into the arms of Morpheus, it eliminated wear and tear on Daddy's poor tired feet. With a cradle, there was no need for floor walking.

I'll admit this happy faculty of pleasing both Baby and Daddy is all to the cradle's credit. But it isn't the important point.

Which I will discuss in a moment. But first, the facts. You can't buy a cradle in the city of Victoria.

I doubt if you can buy a cradle anywhere. The manufacturers just don't manufacture them anymore, having quit the cradle game at about the same time they went out of the buggy whip business.

Yesterday I called department stores and furniture stores, making enquiries about cradles, and I received a uniform answer:

"No, ha."

So you can see I am not fooling about the disappearance of the cradle.

Now for the important issue involved.

Under the circumstances as outlined above, there is no person to rule the world!

Everyone knows the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

Therefore, with no cradle to rock, there is no hand to rock the cradle, and no hand to rule the world.

What this world needs more than anything else is a hand to rule it.

And we won't have a hand to rule the world until the cradle returns.

Let us make all haste to go backward and return the cradle to its proper place in the home, thus making the world a better place in which to live.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Fined $25 was George W. Friend, Metehosin; Harold E. Pratt, 3424 Saanich, and James Pilgrim, RR 1, Victoria; Earl B. Allen, 501 Niagara, and Gillies J. Briere, 2844 Keith Road, each paid $15 fines, while David N. Copeman, 556 Ker, and a juvenile girl were fined $10 each.

Paul James Oslie, 31, Victoria, was remanded to Tuesday without plea when he appeared in city police court Friday charged with unlawfully pointing a revolver at Doris Corrine Rutherford last Wednesday. Bail was set at $500. Defence counsel is James Proudfoot.

Keith Doak, 409 Dunedin, was fined $25 or five days in jail when he pleaded guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday to a charge of driving without a driver's licence April 21.

A meeting of the Indian Arts and Welfare Society will be held in the music room of the Victoria Public Library at 8 tonight.

Three pure white Pekin ducks henceforth will grace the grounds at Government House. They were purchased from Sidney Duck Farm by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross to help beautify the grounds by their presence.

The Sidney establishment sends Pekin ducks to the lieutenant-governor's Douglas Lake Cattle Co. in the interior each year.

Pollution tests will be carried out in the Gorge within two weeks and are expected to result in lifting of the swimming ban imposed by health authorities almost 20 years ago.

Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgewood, chairman of the Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, has predicted the tests will show up cleaner than many other areas in the province where swimming is permitted.

Son of a Victoria couple, Flt. Sgt. Eric Tippet, now stationed in Edmonton, has been promoted to flying officer following high standing in recent RCAF examinations.

Parents of the air force accountant are Mr. and Mrs. George D. Tippet, 972 Heywood. Tippet is expected to do an overseas tour of duty following leave here.

Victoria Motorcycle Club will hold the first of two cross-country races for the Castrol trophy Sunday at 1 p.m. at Metehosin road, near Victoria Gun Club.

Twenty riders are expected to compete over a 4-mile course which includes several jumps. The main event will have 25 laps, preceded by four heat races.

Last year's winners, John Colyer, Wes Morhart and Chuck Arnold, will be defending their leadership.

NOTES CAME OUT

WAY DOWN HERE

High School Bandsmen Blow Blue At Post-Breakfast Jam Session

Pass the brasso, dad, the kids got loose in the music store today.

Music suppliers with nerves of steel and a fortune in brass took opportunity to display their wares for hundreds of junior oompah artists gathered for a provincial band clinic at S. J. Willis Junior High.

The hurry-and-wait routine so common to mass organization found scores of youngsters idling about the shiny new horns in the interval before classes began.

One lad couldn't resist fowling the sousaphone. He slipped in his mouthpiece and pumped out a fog-hornish baritone beat.

Rhythm-conscious feet began to shuffle. Another daring youngster spied a new clarinet and rigged his reed.

"... be down to get you in a taxi, honey," said a smiling sax which also seemed to leap from the counter.

"... meet me on the corner 'bout half-past eight," quoth a trembling trombone.

A clarinet chimed in and busy fingers sneaked across the skin of a snare drum.

Hands clapped, shoulders began to weave and the second chorus gained in volume.

"Gonna wear out both my shoes. When they play those jelly-roll blues..."

For a moment it appeared even the organizers were going to get reorganized, and the jazz age was about to be reborn.

This just after breakfast, before the flutes had even been separated from the piccolos and the clinic classes started.

What will happen tonight at Memorial Arena if anyone should absent-mindedly hum a foot-stamper in presence of the eager 900 is anybody's guess. Like feathers in a flood, they get carried away.

Employment Service to Aid Students Seek Summer Jobs

Last exams were written by close to 350 students at Victoria College Friday and the annual search for summer jobs is reported underway.

College authorities say many of the young people have jobs lined up but many others will hit the pavement next week in hopes of earning next year's tuition. Others will spend the summer months in service with army, navy and air force reserve units.

Unemployment Insurance Commission authorities indicated today the students would find plenty of work.

Survey parties and forestry

fire parties will be taking students into the woods. Many girls will be referred to various summer resorts who make a point of providing this type of employment for students.

"We will do everything to help them," the official stated.

Submarine Power Cable Ready to Ship

July Start for Island Hook-Up

Construction of the 95-mile submarine power line that is to bring unlimited electric power from Vancouver to Vancouver Island has been completed.

The final link was finished this week at the Manchester, England, works of British Insulated Callenders Cables Ltd. Work on the heavily-armored cable has been proceeding night and day for the past 15 months.

It will be shipped to Vancouver next month aboard the Ocean Layer, Britain's largest cable ship, and the actual laying of the power line between here and Vancouver is scheduled to begin July 1.

The power line will carry 132,000 volts—highest voltage yet planned for any underwater cable—and will have a carrying capacity exceeding 120,000 kilowatts.

COST $6 MILLION

It has been built at a cost to the B.C. Electric of $6,000,000.

The line comprises five single conductor cables. Three will be in constant use; the other two will be held in reserve.

Originally, B.C. Electric ordered a 77-mile power line at a cost of $5,000,000. This was increased to 95 miles last fall on the advice of the company's engineers in Vancouver.

TWO IN RESERVE

"They believed it would be better to have two cables in reserve," a B.C. Electric spokesman said today. "Otherwise if one cable failed we would be entirely dependent on the three cables, which are the absolute minimum required."

The cable ship Ocean Layer, expected around June 25, was built in Germany and acquired by the British government as payment for German war debts. She is equipped to locate and repair cables at sea.

High schools here have been invited to enter a B.C. high school chess tournament to be held at Qualicum Beach Oct. 26 and 27.

The tournament was announced by Paul Smith teacher at Qualicum Junior-Senior High School, who scored a win over chessmaster Sammy Reshevsky in the recent Times-sponsored exhibition here. He is confident the B.C. Chess Federation will recognize the contest as a B.C. high school championship.

Except for transportation and an entrance fee of $1, there will be little expense for contestants, since billets will be provided by students of the host school.

The guild has disassociated itself from the efforts of directors of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau to establish a six-day shopping week, which have the approval of 52 downtown retailers.

His group represents 75 per cent of the trade in Victoria, including most of the larger shops, Mr. Davies said.

Copyright Conditions Reviewed in City Talk

Efforts being made to improve conditions for future copyright law were reviewed here Thursday night by Dr. Frank Stilling, national president of the Canadian Authors' Association and principal of University College, University of Western Ontario in London.

He spoke at a meeting of the Victoria branch of the association, held at the home of Mrs. J. Beatty, 1009 Terrace Avenue.

Galiano Mishap Traps Engineer Below Deck

A Crofton marine engineer escaped death Thursday at 5.15 p.m. when a barge overturned at Galiano Island with a truck and 20 tons of structural steel on board.

The accident occurred when attempts were being made to unload the barge at the government dock at Galiano.

Truck driver George Baker, about 36, started up the ramp of the barge, but felt the truck slip backward and knew the steel had shifted.

Anticipating disaster, he leaped to safety on the wharf just seconds before the barge capsized.

Skipper of the barge, Harry Nixon, about 45, of Crofton, jumped to the wharf, but Ray Blashfield, engineer, was below decks at the time and managed to escape through a hatchway before the barge turned turtle.

A poor swimmer, he was rescued when Nixon swam to the barge lifeboat, which had floated free, then paddled to Blashfield. The barge remained afloat.

POWER LINE

The 20 tons of galvanized structural steel, destined for the construction by Hume & Rumble Ltd. of two towers for the B.C. Electric power line from the mainland to Vancouver Island, was given a tentative valuation of $3,600.

Attempts had been made the day before to unload the truck at the beach, but the ground was too soft. As a result, when the second try was made at the wharf, only 10 tons of steel was on the truck, and the remainder was lying loose on the deck.

SALVAGE STARTS

Both truck and barge belong to George Whittaker, Duncan logging operator. The truck was a heavy FWD used in Mr. Whittaker's logging operations.

Salvage operations began Friday under direction of David Reed of Hume & Rumble, with a derrick and diver of Nanaimo Towing Co. doing the actual raising.

It is understood an effort would be made today to raise the truck, and that the steel will be raised by Monday night.

WITHOUT DELAY

Reeve Ash advocated the use of the funds immediately so that there would be no delay in the construction of the addition.

"The reorganization of our administration branch and the efficiency of a streamlined administration depends on adequate space," he said. "The critical conditions now prevailing at our hall must be remedied at once."

Detailed plans for the erection and dedication of the world's tallest totem pole will be made at a meeting next Tuesday.

Officials of the Times, sponsors of the project, will meet.

Ambulance Corps Issues Record Awards Here

A record 1,275 St. John Ambulance awards were gained by candidates in Victoria in 1955, the annual report of the association disclosed today.

In addition there were 92 industrial first aid certificates issued.

The report said St. John members in Victoria were working toward erection of a permanent building to house activities. A local committee is studying the matter.

Cadets in Victoria gave a total of 899 hours in public duty and 341 hours in other voluntary duty in 1955. A total of 45 proficiency certificates were issued, cadets, covering such subjects as firefighting.

Strait Swimmer Pat Russell Hurt

Former strait swimmer Pat Russell of Vancouver and a 10-year-old boy were injured in separate accidents Friday.

Miss Russell, 19-year-old swimmer, was examined at hospital after receiving a bump to her head in a two-car rear-end collision at Douglas and Fisgard at about 10.50 p.m.

Police said a car driven south on Douglas by Lloyd A. Sleeman, 166 Joseph, collided with the rear of an auto owned by William Marchak, Nanaimo, who had stopped in a line of traffic for a red control signal light.

Albert Vanderveite, 10, 2581 Vancouver, suffered a cut on his chin which required five stitches to suture, and also received shock when he fell from his bicycle at Hillside and Quadra at about 7.10 p.m.

Police said the lad apparently lost his balance and fell when he swerved to miss a striking a dog.

Saanich Split On New Hall Referendum

Saanich councillors today are split over the question of whether they should approve expenditure of $125,000 for an addition to the Royal Oak municipal hall "without seeking the approval of ratepayers."

Reeve Arthur Ash Friday raised the issue when he said he would ask council Tuesday to use $70,000 from reverted land sales fund and $55,000 from revenue surplus.

He did not think it necessary to submit a referendum as the money is available, and no borrowing is necessary.

While council as a whole favors an addition to the hall because of the lack of working facilities for municipal employees, some members feel that ratepayers should be consulted.

Senior councillor George Austin said he does not think it right to ignore ratepayers when it was a question of using their funds for capital expenditures.

He is in favor of following the example of the city which submitted a referendum to its ratepayers for replacement of the Point Ellis Bridge.

"The city proposed to use reverted land funds for the project, but it still went to its taxpayers," he said. "I think we legally have to do the same."

Councillors Leslie Passmore and Eugene Diespecker feel the same way.

WITHOUT DELAY

Reeve Ash advocated the use of the funds immediately so that there would be no delay in the construction of the addition.

"The reorganization of our administration branch and the efficiency of a streamlined administration depends on adequate space," he said. "The critical conditions now prevailing at our hall must be remedied at once."

City council agreed Thursday to accept the pole on behalf of the city and approved the site in Beacon Hill Park, adjacent to Lovell's Lane.

City engineer James Garnett; Charles Craig, architect in charge of site committee; George Wheaton, contractor, who will erect forms for the concrete base, and Donald Smith of Evans, Coleman and Johnson who will pour the concrete, will be present with other totem officials.

It is probable the date for dedication of the pole will be fixed, likely near the end of May.

Shares in the pole are still available by mail, or at the downtown Broad Street office, or at 2631 Douglas, at 50 cents each.

Q.—Are there any natural hot springs on southern Vancouver Island? If so, are they accessible by car?—Mrs. T.R.M.

A.—Yes, there is a hot spring at Hot Springs Cove, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, South of Clo-ose, some 15 miles south of Hesquiat. There is no highway leading to the spot. It is reached only by boat.

CRITICAL OIL—The importance of the Middle East crisis to the Western nations' oil supply is shown by these charts. In 1945, the Middle East had 32 per cent of the world's reserves. By 1955, it had 60 per cent. Saudi Arabia alone had a 35-billion-barrel reserve in 1955. During this decade, U.S. reserves dwindled from 34 per cent to 19 per cent. But Soviet Russia's reserves were more than halved, dropping from 14 per cent in 1945 to 6 per cent in 1955.

New Sulphur Plant For Peace River

Pacific Petroleum Ltd. Signs Contract With Jefferson Lake

Development of the Peace River natural gas fields which will supply the Pacific Northwest is opening up a vast new petro-chemical industry for western Canada.

A contract for construction of a sulphur manufacturing plant, and the sale of northwestern Canada's large new sulphur production, has been signed between Pacific Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary and Jefferson Lake Sulphur Company of New Orleans, it was learned here today.

The sulphur will be manufactured from hydrogen sulphide extracted from the natural gas of the Peace River area of Alberta and Canada. This gas will flow into the West Coast Transmission Company's natural gas pipeline, now being built to serve the Pacific Northwest of the United States.

VERY IMPORTANT

"From a western Canadian viewpoint, the contract with Jefferson is very important."

NATHANAEL V. DAVIS

NEW PROGRAM—Nathanael V. Davis, president of Aluminum Ltd., has announced a possible $250,000 program for construction of a hydro-electric project on the Peribonka River in northern Quebec. The project will support a minimum of 150,000 tons of new aluminum smelting capacity in the Saguenay district.

Relief for Profit-Share Employees

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris has initiated parliamentary machinery to provide three-way tax relief for Canadian employees participating in profit-sharing plans.

He gave notice on the Commons order paper today of a resolution to amend the Income Tax Act to bring his March 20 budget proposal into operation.

Many firms operate plans where employees share in the company's profits, with payments made either annually or set aside to provide more income for the employee when he retires.

Elaborating on his original announcement, Mr. Harris said the amendments would:

1. Provide that investment gains and losses made by trustees administering the plans be considered as capital gains and losses. Investment profits made by trustees no longer will enter into the employee's income calculations.
2. Dividends received by such trustees from investments and included in the employee's income will be eligible for the 20-per-cent income tax credit allowed on dividends. Previously, employees couldn't get this credit under the trustee set-up.
3. Income from the plans set aside for employees in the first three years of operations—by which employees cannot get it if they quit during that initial period—will not be subject to income tax. Previously the tax was calculated on an annual basis and applied to all employees whether they eventually quit or not.

MAIN SUPPLIER

Pacific Petroleum, main gas supplier of West Coast, is now constructing an 18 million dollar gas processing plant which will remove the hydrogen sulphide and liquid hydrocarbons from the gas.

Jefferson Lake, together with Pacific, will construct a plant to process the hydrogen sulphide into elemental sulphur. These plants are located in the Peace River area near the town of Fort St. John, B.C.

A Canadian subsidiary of Jefferson Lake, one of the world's oldest Frasch process (a method of sulphur extraction) producers, will operate the $1,800,000 sulphur plant and market the product.

INITIAL OUTPUT

Initial output will be at the rate of 300 long tons of sulphur a day, or 108,000 long tons annually. (A long ton is 2,240 pounds.)

It is estimated that within five years production could reach between 500 and 600 long tons daily, or between 180,000 and 215,000 long tons annually.

In the present contract, Jefferson Lake will take more than two million tons of sulphur, thus assuring a market for this new British Columbia product.

Jefferson Lake, one of the world's leading sulphur producers, is now active in the chemical and petrochemical manufacturing business, as well as sulphur production.

"It is our company's belief that this new source of sulphur together with a plentiful supply of petroleum raw materials will attract new chemical manufacturing operations to this rapidly developing area," F. E. Lewis, vice-president of Jefferson Lake, said.

Ford to Open New Office

TORONTO (CP)—Ford Motor Company of Canada Friday announced that a contract for a new parts and accessories depot and district office in Edmonton has been awarded to Dominion Construction Co. Ltd., of Edmonton and Vancouver.

The one-story brick and steel building will have 75,000 square feet of space and will be on a 10-acre site on 111th avenue. It will be completed in November.

When it goes into operation the present depot in Calgary will become Alberta headquarters of the company's subsidiary, Ford Tractor and Equipment Sales Company of Canada Ltd.

Noranda Chief Leaves Post

TORONTO—James Y. Murdoch, chairman and president of Noranda Mines Ltd., has resigned as president, it was reported here today.

He is succeeded as president by John R. Bradfield. Mr. Murdoch continues as chairman.

B.C. WANTS MORE POWER

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia must choose between salmon and hydro electricity from the Fraser River, publisher Howard T. Mitchell said here today.

Mr. Mitchell, 54-year-old trade expert and publisher of several business magazines, told the annual meeting of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce that B.C.'s power needs are increasing at the rate of 17 per cent a year.

"So many people depend on the salmon run for their livelihood, but we must not forget our power needs," he said. He said by 1970 all streams near Vancouver, except the Fraser and Columbia Rivers, will have been developed for hydro purposes.

Government Aid For Pipe Line Capital Rumor

OTTAWA—Reports persist in the capital that the cabinet has approved in principle a new plan to give further financial aid to Trans Canada Pipelines Ltd. to enable the company to make a start this year on construction of the Alberta-Winnipeg section of the all-Canadian gas pipeline.

The cabinet had the proposal under consideration at its lengthy meeting Thursday. Prime Minister L. S. St. Laurent later said he had no announcement to make.

However, it was learned from authoritative sources Friday that the cabinet "approved in principle" some form of "loan" or "advance" to Trans-Canada in order to enable it to get started this year.

Details of the new plan are lacking. Cabinet has referred the proposal to Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of finance, to work out the details. An announcement may be made next week. The temporary loan to Trans-Canada would be a short term loan. In the event that the company was unable to pay off the loan, presumably the western section of the line would revert to the government.

The amount of the loan, rates of interest and its length of time are all details yet to be worked out between Mr. Harris and Mr. Howe. It is understood. It is expected the detailed proposal will go back to cabinet for final approval.

Trans-Canada Pipelines Limited has encountered great difficulties in arranging for financing of the western section of the line. Among the obstacles it has been unable to surmount have been the long drawn-out hearings before the federal power commission in Washington, with no guarantee there of final approval, and the threatened filibuster by the Opposition in the House of Commons against the measure to permit the federal government to join with the Ontario government in building the northern Ontario section of the line.

Cabinet is reported to have looked favorably upon the idea of providing some form of short-term assistance to Trans-Canada to make a start on the line to Winnipeg and Emerson. The company would thereby be in a position to make a start without waiting for approval by the U.S. Federal Power Commission of the pipeline plans, at Washington. Now it remains for Mr. Harris and Mr. Harris to work out a proposition that will be acceptable to the federal government.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Rise in Demand For Base Metals

By NORMAN CRIBBENS, Times Business Editor

The stock market this week seemed uncertain which way it should go. On the Canadian exchanges it was an inconclusive week, though investors showed willingness to move in on favorable corporate news.

Speculators, too, were ready to jump in where property developments favored mining and western oil stocks.

On the Toronto market, gold posted their first advance of the week following Thursday's announcement that government subsidies to gold mines—due to end this year—would be continued for a further two-year period.

METALS IN DEMAND

Closing sessions of the week showed a rise in demand for senior base metal producers, including Hudson Bay, up 175, and International Nickel, up $1.25.

News that British American Oil is seeking to acquire the assets of Canadian Gulf Oil broke a long-winning run for B.A. Traders took profits with the announcement and the stock ran lower for the rest of the week. Its total loss was $4.25, closing at $38.75.

During the week Weston A and B issues each lost $2.50. Eastern Mining gained 60 cents among the mines. Consolidated West Pete climbed $2 to lead advancing western oils.

In Ottawa Trade Minister Howe denied that there is any disappointment over the new International Wheat Agreement, apart from Britain's decision to remain outside the pact.

Hon. Earl Rowe (C.P. Dufferin, Simcoe) referred to a one-third cut in Canada's IWA quota to 103,000,000 bushels a year and asked Mr. Howe if he expected a 30 per cent decrease in Canada's share of the world wheat market.

Mr. Howe said he did not. "In the last year Canada did more business outside the agreement than under its terms," he said.

Thomas C. Lockwood, transportation executive recently named to the board of Pacific Western Airlines, will receive 1,000 shares of the company at $1 a share.

Permission to issue the stock to Lockwood at that price has been granted PWA by the deputy superintendent of brokers.

J. R. White was re-elected president of Imperial Oil Ltd. at a directors' meeting in Toronto yesterday.

W. O. Twilts was re-elected executive vice-president; J. K. Jamieson and T. F. Moore vice-presidents.

A 175-hp pulp-drying machine which will increase capacity by two-thirds has been ordered by Alaska Pine and Cellulose Ltd. for their Port Alice mill on Vancouver Island.

Total cost of the machine with building to house it and auxiliaries, is $5,000,000. The machine is scheduled for installation early in 1957.

This is part of the $12,000,000 Port Alice modernization plan announced earlier this year.

"This new machine will increase our chemical cellulose capacity to 125,000 tons a year compared with the 75,000 tons present capacity," W. E. Breitenbach, executive vice-president, said today.

Peter T. Sinclair has been elected president and chief executive officer by the board of

To the Bride!

and Happiness!

The Bride's Book at Bridgman's is a wonderful help to the bride and family of the bride, in selecting the wedding gifts she most desires.

In this special book, prospective brides may list patterns they are saving in china, crystal and flatware and accessories. When this list is available to those who are selecting gifts, there is no uncertainty about the choice... the bride receives a much-wanted item instead of something chosen at random.

So many brides and their families and friends have found The Bride's Book a great help. If your wedding is in the offing, we suggest you enter your name soon.

(centre) with flat bow at hipline. This is in its blue. The empire line appears (right) in lemon yellow dress with net top and skirt width achieved through soft, unpursed pleats. All three designs are by Murray Hamburger in chromspun taffeta. Best length for a bridesmaid's dress is ballerina.

Choose Ballerina Length Dresses To Serve You Later on in the Year

Those clouds of color, provided at every wedding by the bridesmaids' dresses, tend to ward the deepened pastels this year.

The 1956 bridesmaid will look picture-pretty in her ballerina-length dress. But she's practical too. Her dress is chosen with condition that it can serve in her wardrobe later on.

Unlike this year's bride, who is formal and elegant, the bridesmaid wants to know that she's buying a double-duty dress, not just a useless dress to fold away in tissue paper when the wedding is over. Therefore, she wants neckline cover-up and a shorter length than that chosen by the bride. She wants soft color, too, and favors the minty greens, pinks, blues, yellows and aquas. She likes bell-shaped dresses, embroidered organidies, taffetas and nylon chiffon. Stoles and detachable fichus

Wedding Should Always Be Portrait-Pretty Affair

A bride, in her big moment, may be subject to as many cameras as a visiting dignitary. This makes camera beauty an important aspect of bridal beauty.

The first photographer she meets is the professional who takes her portrait. She should make her appointment well in advance. And have the picture taken before the wedding day if possible. She should be there on time, whether "there" is the store where she bought her dress, her home or the studio. She should be well-rested. She should bring the foundation garment over which her dress was fitted, the kind of cosmetics she regularly wears and her proper shoes.

The photographer will provide fake flowers in the approximate design of the bouquet, if the bride will let him know what kind she's going to carry. The next photographers are the friends and family who will want to record the entire proceedings of the big day, from the nervous breakfast, to the rice and old shoes.

If the bride is lucky, her family and friends will have easy-to-operate cameras and enough film. And she should be ready for them. The make-up should be subtle and soft. Too little is better than too much. Throat and exposed areas of the shoulders should match the face foundation and powder. Lipstick and rouge should be right. That pair of hands that will pop up in many pictures, complete with cherished diamond, cutting the cake, throwing the bouquet, shaking and holding other hands, should be unwrinkled and with nails polished, if at all, in soft pink.

When you know sister-in-law's camera is on you, try to look pleasant, but don't force a smile. Moisture your lips just before the shutter clicks. Try to avoid facing the camera head on. Turn slightly.

When the time comes to throw the bouquet, try to use the arm away from the camera, to avoid a headless picture.

If your photographic fans don't think of it themselves, ask them to try to get pictures of children in the wedding party, along with you, and any grandparents who are there.

Time Essential For Mexico Visit

Mexico City and the other different and charming cities of Mexico are becoming more and more popular with Canadian motorists as a holiday spot.

The Republic of Mexico gives the tourist the feeling of being in a foreign country, a feeling that is missed in the United States because Canadians are pretty much at home anywhere in the U.S.

The spirit of adventure comes to the fore when one can thumb through the guide book, find the phrase "Dime treinta litros de gasolina," then drive into a gas station with a flourish and ask for 30 litres of gasoline just like a native.

If left to open, the conversation, the attendant, possibly would say "Shall I fill 'er up?" but it is more fun in Spanish.

FIVE WEEKS NEEDED

Before a Mexican holiday can be considered, though, sufficient time must be found. Unless one wants to drive 600 to 700 miles per day, at least five weeks should be allowed. From Seattle to Los Angeles requires up to three days; from Los Angeles to Laredo is up to five days of steady driving through pretty hot country, and from Laredo to Mexico City via the Pan American Highway would be leisurely to give the touring party a proper view of the country.

Canadians should have passports, and a check on their car insurance policies to make sure they are valid in Mexico.

On arrival at Laredo it would be wise to check with the AAA to make sure all is in order both for going into Mexico and even more important, for being a Canadian and coming back to the United States from a foreign country.

Once into Mexico, it is well to remember that the pace is slow and that nearly everything can be done "manana." Mexico is like every other nation in that a smile and courteous request will do more than arrogance and demands.

There is a bit of special advice for women. They may travel alone, as in any civilized country, but are advised to either know Spanish or have a reliable guide for horseback trips into the hinterland.

Women may go to movies, concerts, theatres and even the better cabarets without escorts. It is not the custom in Mexico for girls to go out unchaperoned with men they do not know well. Those who do may be subjecting themselves to unpleasant experiences.

Mexicans make allowances for differences in customs, though, so women who conduct themselves with tact will have no more trouble than at home. Where to go in Mexico? Anywhere, although fabulous, fantastic Mexico City should be on the list. Mexicans enjoy movies, baseball, horse racing, dancing (the hupango might be new to you), excellent beer, and tequila. It offers everything for a vacation.

Mention must be made, however, about the bullfights. They are held every Sunday in Mexico City from October through March, starting sharply at 4 p.m., and the music and color are said to provide one of the most brilliant spectacles of the world.

Some say they cannot stand the bullfight because they are sorry for the bull, which usually fights a losing battle for his life, and that the "bull has no chance."

In defence of the sport, the "adicionados" say the fighting bull leads a better life than that raised for the abattoir, and in the heat of fighting suffers little during the 15 minutes in the ring.

Certainly some tourists go expecting to be horrified and instead become fascinated. Others go bravely and come away with a feeling of revulsion. It is up to the individual to find out for himself.

'Think' Slogan Featured for Forest Safety

A plane load of safety experts will start from point to point in B.C. May 7 raising pennants at forest industry plants to signal start of Safety Week in the industry.

B.C. Forest Products plants in Victoria plan a large program to kick off the five days of special attention to good safety practices. All employees will wear lapel pins lettered with the single word "THINK" in brilliant red ink.

Everywhere, loggers and mill workers will be urged to wear hard hats, many provided by the Joint Committee on Forest Products Safety, labelled "Gull Guard."

A master score board made of clear planks will keep track of safety at mills throughout B.C. It will be set up at Workmen's Compensation Board headquarters in Vancouver and on planks representing defaulting mills ugly knot-holes will appear.

The committee hopes that all other industrial enterprises may be brought into the scope of safety week next year.

On the aircraft, provided by Pacific Western Air Lines will be Joe Morris, president of District 1 International Woodworkers of America; J. Edwin Eades, chairman of Workmen's Compensation Board; W. M. "Scotty" Allison, B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association safety director; J. T. Atkinson, IWA safety director; reporters, photographers and others.

Victoria Girl Wins Long Trip

Seventeen-year-old Patricia Petrie, daughter of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory director Dr. R. M. Petrie, Friday won a free trip to New York United Nations headquarters.

She was chosen from eight Victoria grade 11 students competing in a 10-minute speech contest on the UN, sponsored by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Victoria Lodge No. 1, Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 and Carle Rebekah Lodge No. 10.

Miss Petrie will make the month-long trip in July, traveling with other students from B.C., Washington and Oregon.

They go by bus, stopping at points of interest along the way.

Distant Lands Called 'Home'

Men with industrial, agricultural or educational experience seeking a new field and a tinge of adventure in a far-off land could go to work for the YMCA World Service.

"We are always looking for people with experience willing to go overseas and do this work," secretary Arnold Ward said Friday.

"It's a sacrifice, oftentimes. Workers have to take their families, live in new climates, sometimes very warm and uncomfortable ones."

But the work is rewarding, he said.

Even the United Nations Organization asks YMCA World Service for advice in many matters concerning welfare and rehabilitation of peoples and lands overseas.

"After all, we've been at it 70 years," Mr. Ward pointed out. The Toronto man is here as part of a tour of the western YMCA's to stimulate interest of local associations in raising money for world service work.

Countries which have attained political independence recently have sought YMCA aid to develop their resources and educational methods. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is one leader to ask for help.

Incentive money to start projects is provided in countries being helped from World Service funds. The bulk of money and materials comes from countries themselves, however.

STUDENT WORK

Some of the projects being undertaken are student work in Pakistan and in Korea, leadership in Indonesia, rural reconstruction in some parts of India, youth work and physical education in Ethiopia, refugee work and trades instruction in Jordan and health education in Japan.

Mr. Ward also does national work for the YMCA-sponsored Foremen's Clubs reaching from coast to coast, designed to improve industrial foremen in their relations with work, employees and management.

The secretary has been a member of the national staff for eight years.

Shipwreck Survivors Share $70,000 Fund

CLEVELAND (AP)—Claimants for damages in the sinking of the ore carrier Henry Strenbenner three years ago have agreed to share a $73,000 fund. A total of $235,000 will go to families of 17 seamen who died when the American vessel went down in a Lake Superior storm May 11, 1953. Thirteen men who survived the ordeal, some with injuries, will divide $70,000. The Kinsman Transit Co. of Cleveland, owners of the carrier, will pay the funds.

18,000 Quit Schools In Cuba Demonstration

HAVANA (Reuters)—Eighteen thousand Havana students are on strike following recent student demonstrations against President Gualferré Batista of Cuba. Two universities have closed and several secondary schools have either suspended classes or lost their students through strikes in protest against government attempts to end university autonomy.

AT THE WHEEL

Hans Gruber

It is time someone launched a strong protest against this deplorable trend of "warning lights" in lieu of proper dash-board instruments. Not long ago, the cheapest and simplest car had, as a matter of course, at least five gauge-type instruments supplied as standard equipment: an oil pressure gauge, an ammeter, a speedometer combined with odometer and, on costlier cars, engine heat indicator, and a fuel gauge. There is a point to the order in which these instruments are enumerated just above; they are named in order of importance, in this writer's opinion.

Today, with cars costlier than ever and mechanically more complicated and advanced than ever, the majority lack what is undoubtedly the most important protective instrument, namely, the oil pressure gauge. It supplies the well being of an engine, and might be compared to the instrument used by physicians to determine a person's blood pressure.

Gauge Tells Things About Engine

The position of the oil pressure needle can tell us several vitally important things about an engine. If the indicator shows higher than normal, when the car is cold, it might mean that the oil level is too high. Or the relief valve is stuck. After the car has been run and fully warmed up, the needle showing weaker than normal pressure detects either worn bearings, too thin oil, or even excessive engine temperature. The oil pressure gauge will even inform us when the oil level becomes dangerously low, and it does so by erratic fluctuation.

What do we find in too many cars today? A "warning light." Now this warning light looks beautiful, impressive, particularly at night when the key is turned on just prior to starting the engine. And what does it tell us? That the bulb behind that red lens is not yet burned out, and that oil pressure is zero when the engine is dead! As soon as the engine runs, it is supposed to go out, meaning that oil has begun to circulate through the engine—but it has no way of telling us under what relative pressure the oil is circulating, simply because these "idiot-lights," as I prefer to call them, are so set up as to go out the moment seven lbs. (yes, seven pounds!) pressure obtains. Even when idling, an engine would not last long on seven pounds oil pressure; but if engine hurtling along a summer highway at a good clip—the light is out, all right, but remember that it would still not flash a warning even if oil pressure were eight pounds, in which event your next warning of something being amiss would come through the desolate and ear-splitting phenomenon of a piston crashing its wall through the engine block and cylinder head, through the engine hood, possibly through your windshield, on its way to describing an artistic and wide arc through the atmosphere. So much for oil warning lights.

Pretty Light But It Can Fool You

That other light that casts so atmospheric a glow through the stationary car at night, it supplies the quiet information that the generator is not charging when the engine is dead. But you start the engine and let the engine rev imperceptibly beyond idling speed—lo and behold, the light goes out, lulling you into the comfortable but disastrously misleading thought that the generator is supplying adequate replacement electricity to the battery.

Well, nothing of the sort. All it tells you is that the fan belt is properly connected and causing the generator to turn. And that is all it tells you, because that "gen." warning light will go out even when every one of the electrical aids is turned on—heater, defroster, lights, radio, lighter, electric shaver, etc., etc., when a proper ammeter gauge would show a heavy discharge even with the engine turning at 4,000 rpm.

Now the gasoline gauge has been universally retained (except by Volkswagen); it is a desirable instrument to have, to be sure, but it is incomparably less essential than the two instruments whose demise I have just deplored. This year's Oldsmobile—a truly great car otherwise—has even done away with the engine temperature indicator!

Next week, a special list of cars which have courageously kept the full range of proper gauge-type instruments, with a special shout-out to the Studebaker Hawk for their classic instrument panel—a thing of beauty and a joy to behold.

Vancouver Men Ready For Long Trip

VANCOUVER (CP)—Preparations are being made by three Vancouver men to sail round the world in a 34-foot yacht.

John Walmesley, 25, his brother, Pete, 22, and Dave Field, 24, will embark this summer if all goes well.

San Francisco is to be their first stop. There they will pick up enough supplies to carry them through the South Seas; dry-docking their yawl "Dawn W" in the Marquesas islands to make any needed repairs; before continuing the voyage.

The young sailors are now making their V-bottomed craft ship-shape and acquiring their sea legs.

For four months they lived within the confined quarters of the small boat. Now, while the interior of the hull is being remodelled, they are staying in a nearby float-house.

They are also trying to raise money to help finance the journey. "We won't be too concerned with money once we're under way," said John Walmesley. "We plan to seek work in Australia, the first stopover after the Marquesas."

They will carry 50 gallons of gasoline aboard to feed their 25-horsepower marine engine. From Australia they will sail to the Mediterranean if no trouble is brewing, through the Suez canal to England, then back to Vancouver via the Panama canal and Hawaiian islands.

"We are not out after a record voyage," said John. "We just want to take our time and enjoy the whole trip."

Advertisers spent more money in newspapers in 1955 than in radio, television, magazines and outdoor advertising media combined.

18th Driving Conviction Brings 30 Days

A young man with a driving record of 18 convictions compiled in five courts was sentenced to 30-day concurrent jail terms when he appeared in Oak Bay police court Friday on three of the charges.

Robert H. Clough, about 23, 4935 Cordova Bay Road, was convicted on a charge of careless driving. He pleaded guilty to charges of failing to report an accident and driving while his licence was suspended.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall imposed 30-day terms on each charge, and ruled they would be concurrent.

The careless driving charge arose from a two-car accident at Foul Bay and Lansdowne on April 4 when Clough pulled out from a stop sign on Foul Bay and was in collision with a car travelling east on Lansdowne.

Total damages were estimated at $750.

Clough, a plumber, said he never filed a report of the accident hoping that insurance could be obtained and he could have his licence returned.

He said he needed to drive to carry heavy tools.

Clough's previous record consisted of six convictions for driving without a licence, three speeding offences, three of driving while suspended, one impaired driving charge, one of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and one of driving contrary to a licence restriction.

Historic Sites Need Protection

MONTREAL (CP)—A plea for immediate action to save Canada's historic sites and monuments is contained in the current monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"Today is the time to preserve our memorials while they are still available," it says. "But don't let's have stuffy memorials like dull stone plaques. Let's have interesting pictures of maps and imaginatively worded sentences to show us what happened 200 or 300 years ago."

"The things preserved must be of real significance, the article says. "While other nations are proud of a history that goes back to the night of time, we belong to the sunrise. But our past is just as vital as theirs."

"The importance of our memorials is that they are new. Every fort built, every postage broken around a waterfall, every palisade erected by an adventuresome community, was an advance, a broadening of horizons, something daringly new."

The letter said every town and city in Canada has scenes, buildings and articles of historic interest. There was romance in the oldest tree, the first school, the first industry, the blacksmith's shop and the birthplace or home of a famous son.

"Every town and city in Canada has at least one building that was the scene of human adventure and significant events."

Canada has many forts, well-preserved and carefully tended from Fort Anne on the east coast, the site of a French settlement 15 years before the Pilgrim Fathers landed, to far western forts that belong to the past century.

Red River Wavers; Flood Fighters Relax

WINNIPEG (CP)—The uneasy level of the Red river, swollen by runoff from record snowfall, wavered uncertainly at Winnipeg today—nearly five feet below the tops of the main permanent dikes. Officials said that with continuing cool weather it might not rise beyond 3½ feet from the dike tops.

The murky waters reached a 1956 high of 22 feet above average winter ice level early Friday morning and clung within inches of that figure, in the following 32 hours. At 10 a.m. today the reading was 21.7 feet.

The top of permanent dikes is 26.5 feet. Many have been raised by temporary diking with clay and sandbags.

Flood forecasters said the river might not go above 23 feet but with warmer weather and rain the range could be 25 to 28 feet. Early forecasts had set the range from 27 feet to a maximum possible of 33 feet.

In 1950 flood of the Red river that cost southern Manitoba more than $26,000,000, the river dipped in the April 24-26 period, then rose sharply to 30.3 feet at Winnipeg.

Flood protection officials were optimistic enough Friday to announce that diking crews would be given a Saturday-night-to-Monday-morning layoff in most areas.

FLOODING ELSEWHERE

In the town of Starbuck 26 miles southwest of here, three more homes were hit by waters of the LaSalle river, swollen by water that escaped the Assiniboine to the north. Nine families had been evacuated as a lake built up around the community and the water was reported still rising.

One of the worst breaks in the dikes along the Assiniboine was closed on Friday between Poplar Point and Bale St. Paul, 30 miles west of here. Huttenes joined the French- and English-speaking workers and the combined force took commands in German and the other two languages as they cut off a stream of water nine feet deep that was flowing through the Water spread over farm lands three miles north of Virden, 193 miles west of here. The rising stream spread over land north of Oak Lake, 170 miles west of Winnipeg, for the third year in a row.

Oyster Farmers Planting 2,000 Cases of New Seed

Will Harvest 25-30 Gallons For Each Case

Planting of a record 2,000 cases of oyster seed from Japan is nearing completion on the commercial oyster beds of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Oysters do not propagate naturally in the tidal waters of B.C., which seldom reach the 70-degree temperatures required for oysters to release their spawn. Thus, the oyster farmers must import seed for re-stocking. Japan is the sole supplier.

The growing appetite of British Columbians for the queen of sea foods—the oyster—has shot the experiments of a few years ago into a $316,000-a-year industry.

More and more, the calls in B.C. restaurants for "half a dozen fried" or "half a dozen raw" have stimulated oyster farmers to overcome an inherent barrier to supply the demands.

Of the 84,814 gallons of oysters harvested from the lower mainland and Vancouver Island beds last year, most were marketed locally in a fresh or fresh-frozen state. Some are canned for stew and a small percentage smoked and packed flat for the hors d'oeuvre market.

BIGGEST PLANT

John Christopherson, manager of the biggest oyster packing plant in the province, estimates a return of 25 to 30 gallons from each of the 775 cases he is seeding this year. It takes 2½ to 3½ years for the seed, planted in the mud at the water's edge at low tide, to become a mature oyster.

The bulk of the industry is concentrated in the Boundary Bay area on the mainland, 24 miles south of Vancouver, and on the east coast of Vancouver Island from the southern tip 80 miles north to Comox.

The industry increases in volume across the United States border as the water gets warmer.

NEW EXPERIMENT

Meanwhile, another experiment in oyster growing is being watched with keen interest. Up to two years ago, scientists regarded the south coast waters of B.C. as having the minimum temperature for successful cultivation of oysters; that development could not occur satisfactorily in water under 50 degrees.

This theory is being challenged by a group in Prince Rupert, 480 miles north of here, where the water rarely rises to 45 degrees. Several thousand seeds have been planted there during the last two years and some growth has been noted. Maturity is expected in about five years.

B.C. Tories Rescind Drew Censure

B.C. Progressive Conservative Association today rescinded its two-year-old motion of non-confidence in national Tory leader George Drew.

The action, taken at the quarterly executive meeting held in the Empress Hotel, paves the way for complete unification of federal and provincial Tories in B.C.

The rescinding motion was presented by Robert Patch, Victoria, second vice-president, the mover of original non-confidence motion which climaxed the 1954 "Vernon rebellion."

Some 42 delegates to the quarterly meeting approved the rescinding motion unanimously.

A statement from the conference said: "Following a report by Deane Finlayson (provincial party leader) and S. Harrison Smith to the quarterly executive meeting of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association, on deliberations with the federal council, the following motion was unanimously passed:

"Whereas unfavorable conditions existing in the Conservative party of B.C. in 1954 resulted in a non-confidence motion in the national leader; "And whereas the national leader has recognized these conditions and has taken steps to rectify them, therefore be it resolved the said motion be rescinded."

Officials would not elaborate on what steps are being taken toward settling the differences which existed in 1954 and previous years. "It will be a gradual thing," a spokesman said. "All indications are that everything is now moving in the direction of one unified organization of Conservatives in B.C."

Careful Timing For Big Blast

Ripple Rock Detonation Date Will Take Fish Into Account

OTTAWA (CP)—The blast intended to destroy Ripple Rock, west coast navigational hazard 10 miles north of Campbell River, should go off at a time when the least possible damage can be done to fish in the area, Works Minister Winters said Friday.

GRADUATE — Ruth Elouise Trousil of Sidney graduated recently as a Trans-Canada Air Lines stewardess, following an intensive four-week course in Montreal. Miss Trousil received her education at Mount View High School. She graduated as a nurse in Nov., 1955, from the Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster, B.C. After working at St. Joseph's Hospital, Miss Trousil joined TCA March 26.

His department, which has assigned two Vancouver firms to the job, is working in co-operation with the federal fisheries department, he said.

He spoke during Commons consideration of his departmental spending estimates. Among them is an item for $1,000,000 towards removal of Ripple Rock.

The government last October signed a contract to pay $2,639,878 to two Vancouver firms to pulverize the rock with an explosion in an underground tunnel. They were given two and a half years to do the job.

Thomas Barnett (CCF, Comox-Alberni) said residents in the area, especially the Indians, have expressed concern over the possible effects on fish stocks.

Chemainus Registers 70 Baseballers

CHEMAINUS—More than 70 youngsters have registered to play Little League baseball here, and are working out under the guidance of several old-time baseballers.

Lineups of the four teams will be decided upon next week, and play will get underway May 15 and continue until Aug. 3. The youngsters will play their games Tuesdays and Fridays in the park adjoining the senior diamond.

At a recent meeting of the Little League committee it was decided to buy sweat shirts and caps this year. One full set of uniforms already is on hand and will be used to outfit an all-star team from the league for inter-community games.

Jim Reid, secretary-manager of Canadian Legion Branch 191, has been named delegate to the Legion Dominion convention to be held in Vancouver June 10 to 15.

The local branch will send a large representation to the travelling gavel ceremonies to be held at Ganges May 5. The branch will hold a church parade, with full color party, to the Anglican Church May 6.

The Legion is sponsoring a team in the local Little League and expects to donate $150 to the Little League committee.

Cy Shillito was elected president of the 10-pin bowling league at the group's annual meeting. Reg Hankey, Jr., was named secretary-treasurer, and H. Haddon is recorder.

Trophy for winning league play went to the Sam Yee team, with Europe Hotel runner-up. Europe Hotel won playoff prize money, while Longshoremen finished in second place. Harold Hagg finished the year with the high average of 169; Hugo Hagg had the high three of 643, and Joe Carmichael had the high single game with a score of 246.

FOOD FIRM CHALLENGES CLOSING RULE

ALBERNI—Webster and Co. Merchants Ltd., operator of Alberni Super Valu, faces a second charge of contravening the city's shop closing by-law. The company was convicted April 19 for staying open until 9 p.m. on a Friday, and store officials announced they would appeal the conviction and continue to defy the by-law.

The second charge was laid on instruction of Mayor Ben Wright, and is scheduled to be heard in police court Tuesday.

the Yukon and the Northwest Territories," he said, "but we feel that it would be to the advantage of us all to be together in the great expansion of the north."

OTTAWA UNIMPRESSED

Ottawa reaction was: "There would be no advantage for the territories in such a union. The north is at the beginning of its economic development, and needs vast sums of money which only the federal government can supply."

Authorities in the federal capital said it is possible the Yukon and the territories will some day become provinces in their own right, when they become more populated and able to stand on their own economic feet, but "at the moment it would be better for them to remain under federal jurisdiction."

The 207,000 square mile Yukon and 1,300,000 square mile Northwest Territories are administered by the federal government, with the assistance of the territorial council.

The provincially-owned PGE is now snaking its way toward Fort St. John in the Peace River, and Premier Bennett said it could be continued parallel to the Alaska Highway to Whitehorse "if Yukoners agreed to the move."

He said that while Yukon residents may be skeptical of joining B.C. because of its 5 per cent sales tax, that same tax would give them free hospital and other social services.
